LA FOLLETTE MACHINE FACES BATTLE TODAY

Kohler Seeks to Win Governorship.

Wet and dry contests feature New York primaries today. In Massachusetts 15,800 candidates seek nominations after hot campaign.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 19.—The factory vote was the target of the closing drive in Wisconsin's struggle between conservative regular Republicans and the La Follettelites, which goes to the primary polls tomorrow, the dizziest, most intense campaign in many a year. Politically, the state today was little short of a madhouse. Workers in both camps concentrated on the industrial cities along the Lake Michigan shore and down the Fox river valley, in a final effort to line up the workingman.

Hatchet men "cut costs with Kohler" by the thousands were reported putting in the last heavy licks among the voters in their precincts. La Follette men, raising the cry "A La Follette has never been defeated," were similarly engaged. The principal candidates, former Gov. Walter J. Kohler and Gov. Philip F. La Follette, made their closing speeches late into the night, Kohler reaching 3,000 precinct meetings in the state grouped around the radio, while Gov. La Follette spoke at Madison. John B. Chapple, crusading Ashland editor, and his foe, Senator John J. Blaine, likewise were on the platform on the eve of the primaries.

Urged to Vote Democratic.

Democratic leaders shouted adjurations to Democrats to vote in the Democratic primaries instead of following their usual Wisconsin custom of voting in the Republican primaries. They mixed their exhortations with imprecations against Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Montana Democrat, who has been trying to vamp the Wisconsin Democrats into voting for Blaine and La Follette in the Republican primaries, Wheeler having been running mate of the late "Fighting Bob" when he ran for the White House in 1924.

Meanwhile the voters gave signs of rolling up a record breaking vote tomorrow. All camps look for a tremendous poll. All camps are confident, but as to what is surging in the minds of the electorate everybody seems at sea.

"More factories mean more jobs," was the renewed slogan of the Kohler camp.

Refer to Nye's Victory.

As to "Wild Jackassism" both sides point to results in other states as possible barometers.

The La Follette group holds that the outcome of the battle between Senator Blaine and Editor Chapple will be akin to that in North Dakota where Senator Gerald P. Nye, one of the "sons of the wild jackass," won two to one in the primaries against Gov. George F. Shafer. Shafer defended Hoover. Nye assailed the President. Blaine has opposed Hoover, and four years ago he supported Al Smith.

The conservative regulars maintain the Chapple-Blaine contest may result like the fight in Iowa where Henry Field, Shenandoah nurseryman and radio order merchant, nailed the hide of Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart on the fence, Brookhart being one of the "sons of the wild jackass."

Milwaukee Key to Nomination.

Milwaukee county is regarded by both sides as the key to the primaries, especially on the governorship. Four years ago this county gave Mr. Kohler the nomination. Two years ago Phil La Follette carried it by 5,400, Kohler being the victim of the depression and La Follette riding in on gibes at "Hoover's prosperity around the corner."

This time Kohler two weeks ago appeared to be quite in the lead in Milwaukee county—which casts about one-sixth the total primary vote—but in the last week Gov. La Follette's platform activities in which he has displayed individual instances of how the emergency dividends tax bill has operated in increasing collections on income derived from dividends appear to have cut in. Today both camps were claiming Milwaukee county, but they had reduced their estimates of pluralities.

Call It Way to "Sock Hoover."

The general theory of the politicians is that Kohler has a larger chance of

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Cub plans are all set for clinching the pennant this afternoon in the first game of the double header between the Cubs and the second place Pittsburgh Pirates. The enterprise will get under way at Wrigley field at 1:30 o'clock, and, as near as the Cubs have figured, another National league pennant for Chicago will be assured at about 3:15 o'clock.

Guy Bush, who has been picked to pitch the world series opener at the Yankee stadium, New York, on Sept. 28, will do the pitching in this scheduled clincher this afternoon, and has promised his public that the Pirates haven't a chance to prolong the finish of the race.

Special Training Program.

Guy yesterday went into extra special training for his two honor assignments. He has foresworn all rich foods and yesterday about all the nourishment he took was from long Havana cigars, his favorite conditioners when he is bringing his form to its finest edge.

Bush did not go near his Devon avenue gas station, preferring to concentrate on the cigars and his pitching plans. The courageous young Mississippian has planned every pitch and the order thereof in this afternoon's first conflict. And when Bush really plans out a game ahead of time he makes it very tough on his adversaries.

Screw Ball's O. K. Now.

"I wasn't so good my last time out," Mr. Bush explained last night as he concluded his first day of extra special training. "I wasn't keeping my screw ball low in that final with the Giants, but in Philadelphia and Cincinnati I worked out some and I got it low and it's going to stay low, which is mighty bad news for not only the Pirates but the Yankees, who I am going to beat surer than hell.

"Mark Koenig has told me how the Yankees have terrified National league pitchers by knocking a lot of homers in batting practice before world series games, but I'll say to Joe McCarthy he might as well save all them balls, for Ruth and Gehrig and the rest can't affect me by socking some bird who is grooving them.

"I got credit for the game which put the Cubs in first place on Aug. 11. I'm going to clinch the pennant, and I hope to have the honor of pitching the world series opener. That's a pretty fine lineup for any ball player, and what a heel I'd be if I'd let down for a second."

Erect Temporary Bleachers.

Of course, there are other folks besides Bush planning for the pennant clinching and the world series. For instance, work was begun yesterday on the temporary extensions of the bleachers, over Waveland and Sheffield avenues. These structures, which cost the Cubs more than they produced in the two world series games at Wrigley field in 1929, though they were packed, furnish accommodations for 8,000 fans at each game. The seats in these sections will be sold on the day of the game for $1.10 each.

One of the features of today's celebration will be a tribute to Jackson Riggs Stephenson, who signed last winter "in the hope that he could appear in 50 or 60 games as a pinch batter." As things have turned out Riggs has played in 143 complete games, has enjoyed what many of his admirers say has been his best fielding year and, moreover, has led the team most of the year in hitting. Stephenson will be presented with gifts from fans who long have followed his impressive career.

Grimes Out of Series?

Dr. Andy Lotshaw, the club's trainer, had his clinic open all day and late into the evening to administer to all Cubs, but with special attention being given to Gabby Hartnett's injured instep and Mark Koenig's trick wrist. Last night Doc reported great improvement in the condition of both athletes and said that both will be ready to perform in several games to loosen up for the big series.

The case of Burleigh Grimes, who pitched heroically for the Cardinals in the last two world series, has not been placed in the hands of Lotshaw or even a surgeon with a diploma, as far as the Cubs have made known. The conclusion has been reached, however, that the great spitball warrior is not in as good health as his

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania personally profited from two lotteries conducted by the Loyal Order of Moose for ostensibly charitable purposes, the government charged today at the opening of the senator's trial in federal court on two indictments charging conspiracy.

"If all the profits went to charity they could at least contend that their motives were worthy," Assistant United States Attorney Treadwell told the jury. "Davis profited financially, but he would be just as guilty of conspiring in the running of the lottery if he did not receive a penny."

Describing the senator as the Mussolini of the fraternal order of which he is director general, Mr. Treadwell insisted that nothing could be done without his knowledge, and that speeches made by the senator at Moose gatherings showed clearly that he did know what was going on.

Plans to Trace Funds.

Mr. Treadwell told the jury that he would prove that Senator Davis profited financially from the alleged lotteries. He said checks totaling $172,300 from the proceeds of the drives went to pay off a note which was Mr. Davis' personal obligation, to his personal checking account, to a corporation controlled by him, and to an account from which he drew the profits of the organization department of the Moose.

In 1931 the lottery was more discreetly handled, Mr. Treadwell continued, and the drawing took place on the steamship Priscilla, outside the twelve mile limit, after which all records were thrown overboard.

Charles H. Tuttle, former United States attorney, opening the defense, informed the jury that the party on the Priscilla had gone outside the twelve mile limit for a "distinct" purpose, which any one might guess; that there had been Knights of Columbus aboard, too, and that "a good many things went overboard on the way back."

Defends Note Incident.

"When the Moose need money, it is nothing for Senator Davis to give his personal note, which is later taken up," said Mr. Tuttle.

Calmly the former secretary of labor, who had asked and won an early trial because he is a candidate for reelection this November, listened as Mr. Treadwell outlined the government's case.

Six others, indicted with Senator Davis, will be tried in November, but some of the evidence concerning their part of the alleged conspiracy will be introduced in this trial. This evidence concerns other fraternal organizations and talesmen were closely questioned on their lodge affiliations.

Approved by Davis.

The government put on the stand as the only witness of the day Donald F. Stewart, editor of the Moose magazine, who testified that all magazine material was submitted to Senator Davis before publication for his approval, and that news of the charity balls and articles urging members to take part were published in the magazine, although no mention was made of the fact that prizes were to be given.

Because court and prosecution concede the defense's contention that an early disposition of the charge is imperative, fourteen jurors will hear the evidence. Twelve constitute the jury and two are alternates, in the event of sickness or death of any juryman.

BRITISH NOBLE PLANS HOP OVER MOUNT EVEREST

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, England, Sept. 17.—The marquess of Clydesdale, known as "The Boxing Marquess," is planning an attempt to fly over Mount Everest, the highest peak in the world. It is 29,000 feet above sea level. The marquess has had considerable flying experience and is now touring the western highlands and Scottish isles by seaplane. He is squadron leader in command of the City of Glasgow bomber squadron of the Auxiliary Air force. He is the son and heir of the duke of Hamilton.

Gandhi Begins Hunger Strike at Noon Today

BOMBAY, Sept. 19.—Deaf to all pleas of his friends, Mahatma Gandhi today went ahead with plans to "fast unto the death," beginning at noon tomorrow.

For three hours today a deputation of Bombay Hindus argued with the Indian Nationalist leader at Yervada jail in Poona, begging him not to start his hunger strike and plunge India into renewed turbulence. But the mahatma remained unmoved.

It is still not known whether he will begin his fast behind the walls of the British prison. The government has announced that it will release him when his fast starts, but only under conditions he is reluctant to accept. Today an invitation was conveyed to him to fast at the Depressed Classes' Mission home in Poona.

Submit Substitute Plans.

The deputation which visited Gandhi today discussed substitutes for special constituencies for the depressed classes, the feature of the British communal award to which he objects, and in protest against which he is going on the fast. The deputation will again discuss these proposals tomorrow, and probably will return to Yervada jail on reaching an agreement.

The mahatma is being flooded with telegrams from all over India urging him to abandon his fast. Tomorrow it is expected that most of India's colleges, school, and markets will be closed, reviving memories of the worst days of the civil disobedience campaign.

Hindus Hold Parley.

A conference opened today between the caste Hindus and leaders of the depressed classes with the object of finding a compromise which would induce Gandhi to abandon his fast. The conference was representative of nearly all provinces and all shades of Hindu political opinion.

The speeches on the whole were conciliatory, but Dr. B. M. Ambedkar, a leader of the untouchables, threatened that if the caste Hindus mobilized their forces by holding meetings in the city, he would mobilize in return every member of the depressed classes. Another statement by Dr. Ambedkar was that he was willing to save Gandhi, but not at the sacrifice of his community. Unless he knew what Gandhi's proposals were to safeguard their interests, he said, he would not give up separate electorates.

Ro Rajah, who favors joint electorates, suggested that the meeting pass a resolution calling on the caste Hindus to throw open their temples as well as public streets to the depressed classes and take a vow according equality of treatment.

U.S. Prepares to Investigate Insull Crash

Two developments arising yesterday in the case of the Insull utilities crash indicated new legal actions in behalf of disillusioned Insull investors.

First was the disclosure that federal authorities will investigate all phases of Samuel Insull's financial operations to determine whether the criminal laws governing bankruptcy and use of the mails may have been violated in Insull's last desperate battle to stave off disaster last April.

Second was the indication that various stockholders' protective committees, heretofore denied a plea to intervene in the Insull receivership proceedings, may consolidate and renew their plea in order to force suits for an accounting against directors of the Insull holding companies, in an effort to salvage some of their losses.

Impending Probe Revealed.

Discovery of the impending federal investigation was made upon the return here from Washington of United States Attorney Dwight H. Green. The federal prosecutor admitted having discussed the Insull case "informally" with his chief, Attorney General Mitchell, but was otherwise non-committal.

From another high authority in the federal building, however, came the word that K. P. Aldrich, chief post-office inspector here, and A. P. Madden, chief of the intelligence unit of the bureau of internal revenue, were under orders to begin the investigation. It was said that the bureau of investigation of the department of justice might also be invoked.

Inspector Aldrich, it was learned, has been assigned to find out whether the Insull executives, in their furious selling campaign to support Insull last spring, might have violated the rigid code governing use of the mails in security sellings.

To Probe Income Tax Returns.

Mr. Madden's assignment, it was said, will be to investigate the income tax returns of the "preferred investors," a reputed group of 1,600 personal and political associates of Samuel Insull, to whom he is reported to have given subscription rights in Insull stocks at prices far below the market.

The department of justice will seek to ascertain whether assets were concealed in the receivership of the Insull concerns—Middle West Utilities company, Insull Utility Investments, Inc.; Corporation Securities company, and Mississippi Valley Utility Investment company. Receivers' reports have indicated a maze of borrowing, lending, and stock transfers among the four concerns.

Doubtful as to Results.

While the federal investigating setup appeared pretty formidable, the anonymous authority who outlined it admitted that, in the final outcome, the results probably would have little effect on the former utility magnate, now living on an $18,000 pension in a Paris hotel.

"After all, Samuel Insull was no bucketeer," the authority said. "He may have grown reckless, even ruthless, when the crisis came. But he had been the most successful as well as the most spectacular utilities operator in the country prior to his fall.

"He had the best legal advice obtainable. Besides the charters and by-laws of his companies gave him almost unlimited discretion. Hence it is probable that he did not exceed his corporate powers.

"If he did go beyond bounds it will prove an extremely difficult task to find it out. This investigation may produce much uproar, but the chances of extraditing and prosecuting Samuel Insull are exceedingly slight."

Silent on Martin Insull.

ASSEMBLYMEN ACT TO KEEP AID STATIONS OPEN

County Sales Levy Also Proposed.

With winter approaching, Chicago's relief stations, upon which more than 100,000 families depend for financial support, will close Saturday night unless funds are provided immediately. Spurred by this knowledge, state legislators met in emergency session at the headquarters of the relief commission in the Otis building yesterday afternoon and adopted a definite legislative program.

Armed with this program, Gov. Emmerson, Mayor Cermak, and city and state officials will hurry to Washington this week to ask for $8,100,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation to keep the relief stations open until the program can be adopted by the legislature which does not reconvene its special session until next Monday.

The Legislative Program.

The two phases of the legislative relief program unanimously approved by the fourteen members of the joint legislative committee [seven state senators and seven representatives], are as follows:

1. A bill to allow any county to divert its portion of the state gasoline tax from road building to relief work.

2. A bill to allow each county through its county board to adopt a county sales tax which shall be effective in that county alone, the proceeds from the tax to be devoted to relief of the poor and unemployed.

To Recommend Action.

State Senator Richard J. Barr of Joliet said the members of the committee without exception will recommend the adoption of these two measures as soon as the legislature convenes next Monday.

Inasmuch as enactment of either of these laws would not save the relief stations in Chicago from closing for a period of some weeks, beginning Saturday night, the legislators with the mayor, governor, President Wheelan of the county board, Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton, and Edward L. Ryerson Jr., head of the Joint Emergency Relief commission, hope that the adoption of a definite legislative program will convince the officials of the Reconstruction Finance corporation that Chicago should once again be given financial aid.

Attack Sales Tax Plan.

The proposal to legalize a county sales tax was attacked bitterly by members of the relief commission. They declared it represented political expediency at its worst. Corporation Counsel Sexton declared litigation would immediately tie up any attempt to enforce such a tax.

The proposal to divert the gasoline tax would make $2,700,000 immediately available in Cook county and permit another $2,000,000 each year to be devoted to relief, it was pointed out. This sum, however, would not serve to keep the relief stations open more than one month, and additional sources of revenue would be needed.

Warned by Sexton.

Corporation Counsel Sexton had previously warned the legislators that unless they had a definite program in mind when they appealed to the Reconstruction Finance corporation they would not be given a loan.

Mayor Cermak and Gov. Emmerson said they hoped to get from $2,000,000 to $5,000,000 more from the Reconstruction Finance corporation with which to keep the relief stations open for two weeks to a month while the legislature is adopting a state relief law. The corporation already has loaned $9,000,000 to the state for relief.

A sharp controversy developed between Mayor Cermak and Corporation Counsel Sexton, on one side, and the downstate contingent, led by State Senator Barr, when the various methods proposed to raise relief funds were proposed. After hot words had been exchanged the legislators went into executive session, from which they emerged with a recommendation for the two measures previously outlined.

Cermak Starts Controversy.

Mayor Cermak opened the controversy with a suggestion that road building was a poor method of relieving the poor and unemployed.

"I think all road building should be stopped at once," declared Mayor Cermak. "The money so used does not afford the relief it should. Too few persons are employed in road building to relieve unemployment. We have fewer automobiles this year than last year and we have more roads now than we need. The money should be diverted to direct relief work to keep people from starving."

Defend Road Building.

The downstate element was immediately up in arms at this suggestion. They defended road building as an unemployment relief measure. Some of the legislators favored the Meents bill, now pending before the legislature, which would allow counties to issue bonds.

"That would do no good at all," interposed County Commissioners Peter M. Kelly and George A. Miller. "Cook county couldn't sell a nickel's worth of bonds. There is no market for them."

A proposed state sales tax was opposed by the downstate contingent. The suggestion that each county be empowered to pass its own sales tax was objected to on the ground that any law making this possible would be unconstitutional, the constitution providing that taxes shall be uniform throughout the state.

Would Affect 100,000 Families.

Closing of the relief stations would mean that more than 100,000 families in Chicago and 20,000 single men and women will be deprived of the aid which has been keeping them from starvation during the last year. The joint relief commission has been spending more than $100,000 a day in recent weeks and the budget for September was $4,934,000. With the colder months the cost of relief increases.

Family relief demands on the emergency fund reached their peak last January when 122,382 families were receiving aid.

MAP REORGANIZATION

Relief other than direct unemployment relief is to be continued this winter by private funds raised by an organization that will succeed the Joint Emergency Relief Fund of Cook County, Inc. This was decided by the board of directors of the relief fund yesterday afternoon at the annual meeting. A committee composed of Samuel Insull Jr., J. Russell Forgan, and Sol Kline was appointed to effect the reorganization.

The decision to continue the work of many private agencies supported during the last year by the Joint Emergency Relief fund was voted after the annual report of the corporation was read by Edward L. Ryerson Jr., the president. Mr. Ryerson reported that a total of $10,431,282 had been received in contributions and from other sources during the eleven months ended Aug. 31. A total of $10,281,768 has been paid to agencies for relief work.

Owes Debts of $150,000.

Outstanding obligations of the fund amount to about $150,000, against which a balance of $132,157 remains in the treasurer's fund, and $21,300 in pledges is collectable. The money raised was not used for administration, the only costs being incident to the fund itself. They included $5,093 interest paid on borrowed money, $7,500 reserve to cover losses on borrowed army cots and blankets, $3,262 lost in closed suburban banks, and $1,500 advanced against this winter's campaign.

With the collection of outstanding pledges, total collections for the year will amount to 96 per cent of the total campaign subscriptions, Mr. Ryerson said. Companies subscribed 35 per cent of the total; wealthy individuals, 32½ per cent; employes, 29½ per cent, and benefit affairs raised 3 per cent. Family relief received by far the greatest amount of total expenditures.

Mr. Ryerson revealed at a later meeting that the objective of this fall's campaign probably will be $7,500,000 or less.

WOMEN AID IN ROBBERY.

Elmer W. Crim, 48 years old, 7204 South Campbell avenue, was robbed of $17, a watch valued at $250, a gold belt buckle, his coat and hat early yesterday by a colored man and two colored women who halted him at 46th street and Michigan avenue.

En Route with Roosevelt, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—A land rich in precious minerals, a land of fertile soil, but withal a land of human suffering, today received Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic nominee for the presidency.

Rolling all day through the state of Montana, the New York governor tarried long enough in Butte, its chief city, to address another plea directly to the people he has called "the forgotten man."

Standing among the 10,000 Montanans who listened to Roosevelt's speech were some thousands who have lived for many months on the bounty of charity, for in Butte almost half of its people—17,000 out of 39,000—are supported from relief funds; the others who have jobs give two per cent of their earnings to the relief fund.

Plan to Boost Silver Price.

They heard the Democratic nominee advocate a program for boosting the price of silver, and some of them cheered as Mr. Roosevelt assailed President Hoover as having failed to act in the monetary situation.

There were some farmers in the audience, too, some of whom came all the way from the "high line," the wheat lands along the Canadian border, where last winter the Red Cross expended half a million dollars to succor the panic and drought stricken farmers. To these grim faced people Gov. Roosevelt reaffirmed his position that "all prosperity comes from the soil."

"It springs from old Dame Nature," he declared, "and that is why I have continued to stress the interests of agriculture and of mining."

Pledges to Call Silver Parley.

Going then into the silver question, in which these westerners are as vitally interested as Chicagoans are interested in prohibition, Mr. Roosevelt said there was no essential difference in the public statements of the Republican and Democratic parties on this issue. "But remember well," he said, "that attitude and method—the way we do things, not just the way we say things—is nearly always the measure of our sincerity. It is so in this case.

"The Republican leaders say that when an international monetary conference is called by some one else they will participate. We promise to call such a conference without delay or evasion."

Offers No Panacea to Industry.

"The improvement of conditions in the mining industry will be attained by no single panacea," he said. "No cure-all can be put to work and be effective over night. Particularly is this true of the problem of improving the condition of silver and the restoration of trade on the Pacific."

The governor was introduced to the gathering at Butte, staged on the steps of the county courthouse, by the patriarch of Montana's Democracy, United States Senator Thomas J. Walsh. Montana is safely a "Roosevelt" state, Mr. Walsh asserted.

The senator went into greater detail in asserting the failures of the Republican administration to solve the silver question. Despite an overwhelmingly adopted resolution of the United States senate, requesting President Hoover immediately to call an international conference on silver, and despite similar requests from the International Chamber of Commerce, the United States Chamber of Commerce, the American Federation of Labor, representatives of all the mining states, the President has failed to act, Senator Walsh declared.

Speeds On to Washington.

"The President has been obdurate and no congress has been called and his purposes must be obvious to all of the reading public," the senator asserted.

The Roosevelt special train will reach Spokane, Wash., late tonight, and after the governor greets a delegation of citizens at the railway station will push on to Seattle. There the governor will spend all of tomorrow in conference with Pacific coast leaders and in making an informal address. On Wednesday, in Portland, Ore., the governor will make the third major speech of his western expedition, on the power issue.

ROOSEVELT SPECIAL HELD UP BY WRECK OF ANOTHER TRAIN

Missoula, Mont., Sept. 19.—(AP)—After several hours' delay due to a train wreck, Franklin D. Roosevelt tonight moved on to carry his campaign for the Presidency into Washington and Oregon.

For three hours his train was held at Bonner, Mont., while a wrecking crew a few miles ahead worked hurriedly to clear away the damage done by a broken axle on the engine of the eastbound North Coast Limited, a crack Northern Pacific passenger train.

The engine and two cars were derailed, but, except for throwing the tracks out of line, little damage was done. A temporary track was set up to move Gov. Roosevelt's special around the wreckage.

Gov. Roosevelt remained with the special train to rest and to put the finishing touches on several speeches to be given on the Pacific slope. Other members of the party proceeded to Missoula by automobile.

BABY LOBSTERS TAUGHT TO DIVE TO ESCAPE FISH

Hartford, Conn., Sept. 19. — (AP) — The state is teaching baby lobsters how to dive.

During the first few weeks of their existence, the board said today, lobsters float near the surface where they become easy prey for certain fish.

Experiments at the Noank hatchery with specially constructed diving compartments, however, have shown that the lobsters can be reared artificially to the diving stage within 35 days.

When released in Long Island sound, Captain Frank N. Banning of the hatchery said, lobsters propagated under this method immediately dived to the bottom, where they are safer.

SANDERS TO PUT G. O. P. MACHINE INTO HIGH GEAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican national committee, left for Chicago late today prepared to throw the Republican campaign machine into high gear for the final seven weeks' run of the campaign. His instructions from the President are to do everything possible to stimulate Republican workers and leaders to speed up their activities in behalf of the national, state, and local tickets.

[Moffett-Russell Photo.]

Having decided to invade the west for at least two speeches, President Hoover turned his attention today to the task of finding a way to spur the rank and file of party workers to greater individual efforts in behalf of the national ticket. It was reported today the President may issue a special appeal to all regular Republican congressmen and state party workers to get out into the field and carry the Republican case direct to the individual voter.

Mobilizes Many Speakers.

Following a talk with Vice President Curtis late today, Chairman Sanders said he had most of the Republican speakers mobilized for the October and early November drive. It is expected that former President Coolidge will deliver at least one speech for the Hoover-Curtis ticket. Mr. Curtis leaves tomorrow for an extensive barnstorming trip which will take him to Tennessee, Kentucky, West Virginia, Oklahoma, Missouri and the Pacific northwest. One address will be delivered in Chicago.

Secretary Mills leaves Sept. 28 for Detroit, where he speaks Sept. 29. A day later he speaks at St. Louis. He will deliver what he described as a political speech in Los Angeles Oct. 3 and address the American Bar association the following day. On Oct. 6 he speaks at San Francisco. He will also fill a speaking engagement at Chicago on his return to Washington.

Secretary Mills today was optimistic regarding the prospects for reelection of President Hoover. He said New York state already was safe for the Hoover-Curtis ticket. He minimized the importance of the Roosevelt showing of strength at this time, asserting that the Democrats often have been ahead in September only to be found bringing up the rear in November. Mr. Mills was of the opinion that the Republican campaign was gathering speed in a satisfactory manner.

Won't Reply to Rail Speech.

Secretary Mills said he would not have to reply to the railroad speech delivered by Gov. Roosevelt, the Democratic nominee, at Salt Lake Saturday night, as it represented good Republican doctrine. He said that the major portions of the Roosevelt speech were taken from President Hoover's message to congress on railroad legislation last December. Secretary Mills has been assigned the task of replying to certain of the Roosevelt utterances.

The question of whether President Hoover will make more than three speeches away from Washington is still undecided.

Among President Hoover's callers today was Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.], who arranged for a conference tonight at which the President greeted a group of newspaper editors from Michigan. The senator expressed the opinion that President Hoover would carry Michigan. A similar view was expressed about West Virginia by Senator H. D. Hatfield [Rep., W. Va.], chairman of the Republican senatorial committee, after a White House call.

AL SMITH TO KEEP SILENT TILL STATE CONVENTION OCT. 3

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Former Gov. Smith has made plans to remain silent on both state and national politics until the Democratic state convention is ready to open at Albany on Oct. 3, it was said today. With supporters of both Gov. F. D. Roosevelt, candidate for President, and Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, aspirant for the gubernatorial nomination, waiting for some open declaration of indorsement, the former governor has now fixed his schedule so that he will not voice his views on situations involving any specific candidates until the convention opening gavel is struck.

OFFERS TO TAKE GRAVE LOT IF HER EX-MATE USES IT

A cemetery lot was offered yesterday in payment of $900 alimony arrears to Mrs. Carolyn Jewel Swanson, 6707 North Campbell avenue, by the attorney of her former husband, Roy W. Swanson, when the attorney appeared before Superior Judge Joseph Sabath. Mrs. Swanson won a divorce in 1926 and was awarded $25 a week alimony and the custody of a daughter, Shirley, now 8 years old.

"What do you think of it?" the judge asked. "Will you take the lot?"

"On one condition, your honor," she answered, "that he promises to use it in thirty days."

S. DAKOTA ALSO BLAMES HOOVER FOR HARD TIMES

Local G. O. P. Finds Him a Liability.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Sioux Falls, S. D., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—All through this region of debt ridden, poverty stricken farms, President Hoover is more of a liability than an asset to the Republican party South Dakota, as does North Dakota, appears to be headed hell bent to Roosevelt, according to the admissions of the Republican leaders themselves.

Not that there is any pronounced enthusiasm for Roosevelt, except among the Democrats, who, however have never been sufficiently numerous in South Dakota to give its electoral vote to a Democratic candidate for President since 1896, when Bryan won the state by 183 votes. The swing to Roosevelt has been produced by tens of thousands of Republicans who do not love Roosevelt so much as they hate Hoover.

Anything for Change, Is Cry.

"Anything for a change from Hoover," is the cry of these normally Republican farmers and village tradesmen who reflect the farmers' views. Only among the more prosperous element of the larger cities can one detect a remnant of the Hoover sentiment that yielded the President a 55,000 plurality in 1928, much as this showing may be discounted by the outpouring that year of the Lutherans to swat Al Smith's religion.

Antagonism to Hoover on the farms is patently a manifestation of the universal grouch produced by the hardest hard times within the memory of living men and of the prevalent disposition to attribute to the party in power the making of economic conditions whether they be good or bad.

The depression in South Dakota has been tragic. What with profitless prices for wheat and other products with drought and the grasshopper plague of last year, starvation stalked the countryside. Desperate farmers were compelled to swallow their pride and to apply to the Red Cross for food, one of them returning with barely enough for all mouths and then making one less to feed by hanging himself in the barn.

Good Crops but No Profits.

This year there are exceptionally good crops almost everywhere in the state, there has been rain enough and no grasshoppers to speak of, but the prices the farmer receives leave him scarcely enough to pay the mortgage on the crop, let alone paying the interest on the farm mortgage, paying taxes and buying food and clothing.

For this plight of agriculture the farmers are prone to blame Mr. Hoover because he rejected the McNary-Haugen plan for subsidizing their industry and gave them instead the farm board system, since the establishment of which farm produce prices have steadily declined. In vain do the Hoover managers argue that without the farm board's stabilization operations prices would have gone still lower and that Winnipeg prices were always lower.

Hoover Clinches It.

The farmers remained unconvinced and then along came the President's acceptance speech which intensified their feeling that they could expect no help from Mr. Hoover. A single sentence therein sent Hoover stock down to zero on the farms. It was:

"There is no relief to the farmer by extending government bureaucracy to control his production and thus curtail his liberties, nor by subsidies that bring only more bureaucracy and their ultimate collapse, and I shall continue to oppose them."

Now, subsidies are what the South Dakota farmers want, or think they want, bureaucracy or no bureaucracy. Why are not the farmers, they demand ,as much entitled to a subsidy as are those industries which the tariff enables to obtain higher prices for their products than otherwise? Hence the Hoover acceptance speech dashed their hopes and Roosevelt's Topeka speech promising some sort of subsidizing of agriculture and refinancing of farm indebtedness revived them.

Local Tickets Endangered.

With the farmers in this state of mind Mr. Hoover has become a distinct handicap to the Republican canvass. One-third of the Republican county chairmen are off the reservation, refusing to aid the campaign and frothing at the mouth at mention of Mr. Hoover's name. Campaign orators praising Hoover are booed off the platform. The instructions to Republican speakers now are to dwell on the depression relief activities of the administration without mentioning the President by name.

The leading Republican candidates for reelection—Senator Peter Norbeck and Congressmen C. A. Christopherson and William Williamson—are doing no shouting for Hoover, which might drive away votes they will sorely need if Roosevelt should sweep South Dakota.

Norbeck Dodges in Vain.

The Hoover managers were counting on Norbeck to say a kind word for Hoover at the recent state fair where Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley defended the administration. They got the well digging senator right up to the water but they couldn't make him drink.

When Norbeck was asked to introduce Hurley he dodged. He suggested that Gov. Warren E. Green ought to do the introducing, thought Green would feel slighted if not asked. The governor was asked but dodged. So Norbeck was compelled to do the introducing but he did so without mentioning Hoover or commending the administration.

The Republican managers express confidence that in due time Norbeck will indorse Hoover, though they admit they do not expect him to do so in more than a pro-forma manner. This in spite of the fact that Norbeck is an admirer of Hoover and generally coöperates with the President in Washington. The general expectation at Republican headquarters is that Norbeck and the congressmen will be reëlected even if Roosevelt carries the state.

Prohibition Not Issue.

Prohibition is not figuring to speak of up to date. The Democratic leaders think this old time dry state is ripe to vote repeal in the interest of boosting the demand for corn, rye and barley. The Republican leaders think otherwise.

"If a man is sober enough to mark his ballot he votes dry out this way," said a county chairman.

"What's the favorite tipple?" I inquired.

OUT FOR AIR ON A WARM DAY

Mercury Reaches 87

Chicago sweltered yesterday under warm winds from the southwest, the temperature rising from 70 degrees at 8 a. m. to 87 degrees at 3 p. m. The latter mark was four degrees lower than the record for Sept. 19, which was set in 1925. The coldest Sept. 19 was in 1873, when the thermometer registered 41 degrees.

The wind probably will shift today to the northwest, C. A. Donnel, government forecaster said, and seasonal temperatures will prevail again. The normal maximum temperature for yesterday was 71 degrees and the minimum 57 degrees. With the shift in wind showers are probable, according to the prediction.

Abnormally warm temperatures prevailed yesterday over most of the eastern and southern parts of the great lakes.

HARNEY ADMITS LIQUOR MAP MAY BE INCOMPLETE

Prohibition Administrator M. L. Harney yesterday admitted that there might be a few saloons and beer flats in Chicago that were not listed on his tactical map with its 1,942 colored pins, each pin designating the location of a liquor law violator. The map, the result of a survey by special investigators under Eliot Ness, was completed on Saturday.

"It is true that our map shows only 1,942 places were liquor is sold," the administrator said, "but that includes only the city of Chicago. Naturally there are hundreds of other places in the county. Also in many cases one pin designates two or three spots in proximity. We will close those places as fast as we can. We closed thirty over the week-end."

ACTRESS LEAPS TO DEATH FROM ELECTRICAL SIGN

Fails in Struggle for Place in Films.

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—She had come to Hollywood with a favorable stage reputation. It was her ambition to become a screen star. But Hollywood turned its coldest shoulder to her, and Peg Entwistle, also known as Lillian Millicent, ended her life last night by leaping from a huge electric sign.

The sign flashes the word "Hollywood" over the green hills near this city of the movies, and Miss Entwistle made her plunge from the top of the gigantic H, more than fifty feet high. A workman had left a ladder there after repairing the sign, and it was by this that the unsuccessful actress climbed to the spot from which her death leap started.

"Sorry for Everything."

When the body of Miss Entwistle was discovered there was a note in one of her pockets. It read:

"I am afraid I am a coward. I am sorry for everything. If I had done this long ago it would have saved a lot of pain."

Miss Entwistle, a blonde, was well known in theatrical circles in New York. Her outstanding performance several years ago in "Tommy" gave her favorable notice. Later she played in the Bernhard Shaw play, "Getting Married."

Rôle in O'Neill Play.

In 1929 she appeared with a Theater Guild repertory company, making a forty weeks tour of the country. She had had roles also in Eugene O'Neill's "The Great God Brown," and in "The Home Towners," by George M. Cohan. Her first stage experience was gained ten years ago in a small part given her by Walter Hampden.

Miss Entwistle was married in 1927 to Robert Keith, actor, but the couple was divorced in 1929.

FRANCE DENIES DEAL TO SUPPORT SOVIET FOR OIL

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Sept. 19.—In response to a query, the foreign office today flatly denied the report that a representative of the French government was bargaining for the Grozny oil fields in return for French support of the soviet union in the far east. The idea was characterized as "absurd" and devoid of any foundation in fact whatever. The Societe Petrolina Francaise, which is one of the largest French oil importing organizations, signed an accord on Aug. 9 with the soviet government. The Russians obtained the right exclusively to furnish crude oil and refined products to France for the years 1932 to 1937, inclusive, in a maximum amount of 500,000 tons of crude oil annually and unstated amounts of refined products.

J. S. CARSTAIRS, THE ARTIST, DIES; SUSPECT SUICIDE

Recent Bitter Statement Supplies Motive.

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—J. Stewart Carstairs, for twenty years well known as an artist and collector, died in an ambulance today while being hurried from the Blackstone hotel to the Metropolitan hospital.

The artist, who had lived at the Blackstone for two weeks, formerly occupied a lavishly furnished apartment in East 57th street. Last April he filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, with debts of $52,407 and assets of $137,000, of which $100,000 was represented by antique furniture and fifty of his own paintings.

Raves at Public.

On July 22 he announced that he was contemplating self-destruction.

"America is my native land," he said, "but it is composed of rogues and children governed by morons. I have no desire to paint for it, since it will not appreciate my work. I shall not, in order to nauseate myself with bad food, and live in mediocre squalor, enter a profession that will bore me to death. Unless I find a congenial occupation I prefer to destroy myself."

Mr. Carstairs was a bachelor and 42 years old. A brother, Carroll Carstairs, lives in Sutton place.

Affected by Losing Collection.

Friends today said he had been severely affected by the breaking up of his art collection and the dispersion of the furnishings of his apartment.

After his bankruptcy, Mr. Carstairs was overwhelmed.

"It is hard," he said, "to realize that I have been irrevocably destroyed. They came today and even sat down on the bed of Charles II., which I never even touched. They bought my 57 first editions of Anatole France for $32."

DEADLINE PAST FOR CLAIMS ON FACTOR'S FUND

Under a United States District court ruling no more claims may be filed against the $3,000,000 trust fund established by John [Jake the Barber] Factor. The deadline for filing claims was at 5 o'clock last night. There was no final rush of investors claiming to have been bilked in Factor's London stock manipulations. Virtually all the 1,800 British investors have previously filed their claims through Attorney John H. S. Lee and are now awaiting the ruling of Judge Walter C. Lindley in Federal court.

GARIBALDI STATUE PROBLEM PUT UP TO MEMBERS OF GROUP

Lincoln park commissioners have given the Garibaldi society the choice of moving the statue of Garibaldi, the Italian patriot, at their own expense or improving the ground upon which it stands at 1900 Clark street in Lincoln park, it was revealed yesterday. The society had asked the commissioners to move the statue to a new location.

Warren Wright, president of the park board, suggested that the society landscape the ground in front of the statue which is partially obscured by trees and shrubbery, but the Italians object that there is not enough room at the present site for their celebration of Garibaldi's birthday on June 2. The bronze statue and its stone base weigh 75 tons. The moving would cost approximately $3,000, for which the park board has no funds.

The society asked first that the statue be moved to Lake Shore drive and Ball Field road, 200 feet south of Grant's statue, but this was refused because the commissioners felt it would prove to be a traffic hazard. Another site, 300 feet south of Grant's statue, west of the drive and overlooking a valley, then was offered. John A. Brizzolara, president of the society, said last night that the organization has reached no decision on its next move.

South Side Prairie Fire Burns Horse, 5 Haystacks

A prairie fire on the far south side burned a grazing horse to death, destroyed two small outhouses and five haystacks, and imperiled several farmhouses late yesterday. The fire covered a small area near Lake Calumet, 130th street, and the Nickle Plate tracks. Sparks from a locomotive were said to have started the fire. The blaze started at 3 o'clock, and lasted until 6.

WIFE ACCUSES JOHN WILLITS OF BEATING HER

Suit for divorce was filed in Superior court here yesterday by Mrs. Margaret Liggett Willits, 890 Roslyn circle, Highland Park, against John MacGregor Willits, son of Ward W. Willits, president of a railway supply manufacturing company. Three charges of cruelty were made.

The Willitses were married Nov. 19, 1926, and separated a week ago, according to the suit. The wife asked for the custody of their two children, June, 5 years old, and Anne, 15 months old.

Says Husband Beat Her.

In September, 1930, Willits became angry at his wife and pulled her roughly up the front stairs of their home in Highland Park, she charged. A year later, in September, 1931, he beat her, bruising her in several places, during a party at the Exmoor Country club, according to the suit. Last July he dragged her out of their automobile in front of their home, according to the bill, and struck her.

Former Resident of New York.

Mrs. Willits is a former resident of New York and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Liggett. Mr. Liggett is a member of L. K. Liggett, wholesale druggists. Mrs. Willits attended Rogers hall, Lowell, Mass., and later was graduated at The Sorbonne in Paris.

THOMAS NORRIS, HEAD OF HAULING CO., IS MISSING

A search was begun yesterday for Thomas Norris, head of the Norris Brothers Teaming company, 1618-20 Newberry avenue. Norris disappeared on July 7, it was revealed by James E. Gillis, office manager for the company.

Norris is 57 years old, a bachelor and the sole survivor of the three brothers who originally owned the company. Gillis discounted the suggestion of police that Norris might have been mistaken by hoodlums for his cousin, Michael [Mickey] Norris, identified by police as a labor racketeer and accused in connection with the killing of Edward J. Coleman in a labor dispute in 1920. Gillis also discounted the likelihood of suicide because he said the company had prospered despite the economic situation.

TROOPS PATROL MINING TOWN IN WAKE OF BOMBS

BY CHESLY MANLY.

Taylorville, Ill., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Two companies of Illinois National Guard troops patrolled the streets of Taylorville—scene of six weeks' strife in the Midland coal mine strike—and peace prevailed today after a week-end of violence which included two bombings.

The Daily Breeze, whose plant was bombed early yesterday, came out as usual today, and Editor Floyd Jewell, who put out an extra one hour after the bombing, charging it to the striking coal miners, reiterated his intention of printing the truth as he sees it, regardless of what the miners say or do.

Prohibit Massmeeting.

The troops, sent here yesterday by Gov. Emmerson at the request of Sheriff Charles Weinecke, spent most of the day lounging on the courthouse lawn, but the streets were patrolled throughout the day by squads, and an attempted massmeeting called by the striking miners was dispersed in Manners park.

About 2,000 striking miners gathered in Manners park for the massmeeting, which was called a meeting of taxpayers to protest against the use of the troops at the expense of Christian county. Sheriff Weinecke, however, said the only taxpayers interested were striking miners.

The crowd disappeared, with only a few sarcastic mutterings about "freedom of speech," when Capt. Howard Bentley, Company C, 130th infantry, and his troops appeared. They planned to move on to Pawnee for their meeting, and Capt. Meacham planned to follow them.

Strikers Deny Bombing.

Besides the bombing of the Daily Breeze, which shattered all the windows of the plant and did some damage to the machinery, another dynamite explosion occurred a few minutes later at the door of the office of subdistrict No. 6, United Mine Workers of America, across the street from the Breeze. Editor Jewell stated in his extra that both bombings were believed to have been done by the striking miners, who, he said, had threatened both him and officials of the U. M. W. of A.

The outlaw miners, who have broken away from the A. F. L. union and formed one of their own, issued a statement today, signed by Edward R. Hemmer, their leader, and promising to do everything in their power to assist in the apprehension of the bombers.

The strikers charged that the bombing was done by "thugs" in the employ of the Peabody Coal company, operators of the four mines in this vicinity, and that the outrages were inspired by a desire of the operators to get troops here.

Editor Once a Miner.

Editor Jewell, who was once a coal miner himself and knows something about the coal industry, has taken the position throughout the coal strike that the miners should accept the $5 basic wage voted upon by the local unions several months ago. He has stated editorially that this wage is all the operators can hope to pay if they are to compete with nonunion operators of Kentucky and West Virginia and that it is better for the miners to work for $5 than to remain idle, depending upon the credit of hard pressed local merchants or county relief for their sustenance.

HAWAII DANCERS MAY BE SEEN AT 1933 WORLD'S FAIR

Plans for bringing hula dancers and surf board riders from the beach at Waikiki to the World's Fair in Chicago next year were discussed yesterday by E. K. Fernandez, a member of the Hawaiian legislature, and exposition officials. The legislature has made an initial appropriation of $7,500 for Hawaiian participation in the fair.

"I shall recommend," said Mr. Fernandez, "that our finest swimmers, divers, and surf board riders be brought here, as well as the Royal Hawaiian band and some of our best dancers. An interesting exhibit would show Hawaiians living in grass huts, weaving cloth out of bark and making ukuleles."

Exhibitors have purchased 65 per cent of the World's Fair display area at a cost of more than $4,000,000, officials announced.

INVESTIGATE DEATH ON RAILS.

Gary officials began an investigation yesterday into the death of a man believed to have been John Morris, a peddler, who was hit by a railroad train Sunday at Highland.

HIT BY JUDGMENT

MARY DUNCAN.

San Francisco, Cal., Sept. 19.—(AP)—A judgment for $780.50 against Mary Duncan, stage and screen actress, was entered here today in favor of D. C. Herkner, assignee of the Bergedorf and Goodman company of New York. The suit charged Miss Duncan more than a year ago bought apparel worth $830.50 and paid $50 on account, but nothing thereafter.

AURORA MAYOR, 2 COMMISSIONERS ASK FOR PAY CUT

Mayor Conrad Bjorseth and two of Aurora's four city commissioners, Wilbur Barclay and John Wetz, yesterday requested the chairman of the council finance committee to cut their salaries 25 per cent. Wetz is chairman of the committee.

Also at the meeting were the other commissioners, George Hayward and Frank Biever. They made no request for a reduction and refused to discuss the motion of the others. Legally, it has been pointed out, there would be no way to compel the city officials to accept lower pay during their term of office, which still has three years to run.

The present salary of the mayor is $4,000 and that of the commissioners $3,500. These sums already have been reduced by the withholding of a month's pay.

ROB OAK PARK OFFICE.

ANOTHER FARM STRIKE STARTS IN MINNESOTA

Deputies Rescue Blockade Runner.

Worthington, Minn., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Nearly 400 farmers today took their stations on highways leading into Worthington and announced their intention to halt all trucks carrying farm produce to market, in the hope that the "farm holiday" movement will cause a rise in prices.

One clash was reported, in which the picketing forces were defeated. S. V. Calvin, a farmer living south of here, was halted and ordered to return home with a load of sheep. He battled with the sentinels until he was overpowered. His team was unhitched and his wagon run into a ditch.

However, deputy sheriffs arrived and Calvin was guarded as he continued to market with his sheep.

Iowa Reinforcements Ousted.

M. X. Miller, vice chairman of the Nobles county unit of the State Farmers' Holiday association, which had defied the parent body in establishing the picket lines, said that no more farm products would be allowed to pass. The local picketers were reinforced by others from Iowa, but Sheriff Rowe ordered all the Iowans off the roads. It was said they would comply with the command.

Reports were received from Sioux City, Ia., to the effect that all roads leading there were open except one leading into South Dakota. Receipts for the day at the stockyards in Sioux City were said to be normal. At Bemidji, Minn., farmers were picketing roads.

Dump Milk in Indiana.

Vincennes, Ind., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Members of the Knox County Milk Producers association today established a guard over the Wabash river Memorial bridge and dumped the milk of three farmers who attempted to cross and make delivery to a local creamery.

A strike was called against the creamery because the price paid, one and one-fourth cents a quart, was regarded as too low. H. W. Noelting, spokesman for the picketers, said all roads leading into Vincennes would be guarded tomorrow. One of the farmers who was halted today fought with the sentinels and injured two by striking them with a tire pump.

Spiritualist Disappears; Kidnaped, His Wife Says

Mrs. Bertha Livingston, 62 years old, 4433 North Albany avenue, yesterday informed the police that she had been told by spirits that her husband, Elmer Livingston, secretary of the National Spiritualists' association of Illinois, had been kidnaped. Livingston disappeared last Friday. On the following day, Mrs. Livingston said, she received an envelope, mailed in the loop, containing a $10 bill and a note reading: "My darling Bertha: Everything is all right. You will hear from me soon. Elmer."

RAPISTS GET HEAVY PENALTIES

CLARENCE JAMES. RICHARD KAMROWSKI. CLARENCE HAERLE.

BROOKHART IS ASKED TO LEAD BATTLE FOR FARMERS OF IOWA

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—The announcement today by Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart, Iowa radical Republican, that he would leave immediately by plane to attend a farmers' massmeeting at Sioux City revived reports that he intends to run independently at the coming elections.

Senator Brookhart, who was defeated in the primaries by Henry Field, decided upon the trip on receipt of a telegram from Ed A. Ellison of Sioux City, who described himself as chairman of the farmers' meeting executive committee. The wire stated that farmers were tired of being "at the mercy of a political financial system which wants us to slop the hogs only for the benefit of eastern bankerr and railroads." It called on Senator Brookhart to lead the farm fight.

Senator Brookhart replied that he was "ready for the fight." He had not yet decided, however, he said, whether to run as independent, but wished first to look over the Iowa situation.

"I don't know whether the bombers had a grudge against the garage or the neighborhood," said Lieut. James Devereaux of the North Racine avenue station. "Damage to the garage amounts to $100, but to the neighborhood it goes around $1,000."

The front door of the garage was smashed in and several automobile windshields were shattered. Windows in homes and stores as far away as adjoining blocks were broken. About 60 cars, including limousines and hearses are stored in the garage. Robert Napoleon, 644 Noble street, owner of the garage, and Antonio Romano, 3402 Monroe street, owner of the building, have had no labor or other troubles to explain the bombing, they said.

FOUND GUILTY OF BIGAMY; ONE TO FIVE YEARS

Anthony Harry Alden, 57 years old, was found guilty of bigamy yesterday and sentenced to one to five years in prison by Judge Michael Feinberg, who heard the case without a jury. Testimony showed that Alden married Alice C. Hansen, 8351 Oglesby avenue, on April 23, 1924. Late in 1930 she went to Miami on a business trip, she testified, and returned to find that Alden had left her. Later she discovered, she said, that he had married Miss Anna Farr, 23 years old, 155 West North avenue.

Alden and his second wife were arrested on April 29, 1932, at 637 North Dearborn street. Miss Farr, who was charged with living with a bigamist, refused to testify and the prosecution had to introduce legal documents to prove the charge against Alden.

Asked why he married the second time, Alden said: "I gave Alice two insurance policies on the understanding that she would divorce me."

2 RAPISTS GIVEN A YEAR TO LIFE PLUS 105 YEARS

Prey on Women Driving Their Own Cars.

Two confessed rapists, who robbed their victims, were given two terms of one year to life each and also extra sentences totaling 105 years yesterday by Chief Justice John J. Prystalski in the Criminal court. The sentences were made to run consecutively.

The men are Richard Kamrowski, 26 years old, 2820 North Marmora avenue, and Clarence James, 19 years old, 2249 North Mason avenue. The former was sentenced to serve 65 years on three rape charges to be served after he has completed the two consecutive robbery sentences of one year to life. James was given 40 years in addition to the robbery terms.

Policeman's Son Involved.

Both men will face additional sentences today when they are arraigned on further charges of robbery and rape, in which a third defendant, Clarence Haerle, 2922 North Marmora avenue, the son of a policeman, is involved.

The men specialized, Prosecutor Robert Donigan said, in robbing and assaulting unescorted women of the northwest side, who drove their own automobiles. The victims were forced to drive their own cars to the forest preserve, where they were attacked and beaten and their money and valuables taken, the prosecutor said.

Plea for Mercy Ridiculed.

One of the victims testified that when she pleaded for mercy, Kamrowski said: "If its sympathy you're looking for, I haven't any." The retort was used as the keynote for the closing argument of the prosecution when Prosecutors Donigan and Voyle Johnson asked the judge to punish the men to the extent of the law.

After Kamrowski and James had entered pleas of guilty on one charge, Judge Prystalski, who heard the case without a jury, inquired about the other charges.

"We thought that only one would be tried today," their attorney answered. Judge Prystalski then demanded that a plea be entered in each of the three rape and two robbery charges.

Kamrowski, who is charged with a total of four cases of rape and eight robberies, was charged with rape on two previous occasions, but managed to escape punishment both times. James, who faces two other charges of robbery and one of rape, was placed on probation by Municipal Judge Thomas H. Green on a larceny charge on April 3, 1932.

ESCORT IS HELD ON CHARGE OF ATTACKING GIRL

Harry Weinheimer, 28 years old, an insurance investigator, was arrested yesterday in his home at 7329 Clarence avenue on a warrant charging him with attempt to commit rape. The complainant is Miss Debora Costello, 22 years old, of 1242 Columbia avenue.

Miss Costello got the warrant in Evanston from Magistrate Harry H. Porter. She charged that she accompanied Weinheimer to a roadhouse on the night of Aug. 25, and that on the way home, near Tessville, he tried to attack her. She received injuries, she said, which kept her in her home under medical care until yesterday.

The warrant was served on Weinheimer by Detectives William Johnson and Otto Gray of the Evanston force, and he was held in $10,000 bail. He refused to comment. His case will be heard Friday.

25,000 START STUDIES IN SIX NIGHT SCHOOLS

New Courses at Crane Prove Popular.

About 25,000 students of varying ages and ambitions last night began a study of such divers subjects as salesmanship, Latin, physics, millinery, aeronautics, and ancient history in six Chicago evening schools. The classes are being conducted in the Lake View, Schurz, Austin, Crane, Englewood, and Fenger high school buildings.

In the Crane evening school, at Oakley and Jackson boulevards, which includes a junior college department, several thousand men and women, young and middle aged, milled around the corridors and registered for classes. Registration there is expected to be virtually completed tonight, when, according to Arthur M. Nichelson, principal of the evening school, the enrollment probably will approximate last year's total of 5,270, of which 1,600 were in the college.

Course in Steam Engineering.

Crane's new evening courses are attracting attention. Guy F. Wetzel, instructor in steam engineering and air conditioning, said that this course also would include a study of ventilating and heating, "a practical course for practical men." A course in refrigeration also is to be taught. A perspiring teacher was kept busy explaining that it wasn't meant to teach students how to sell refrigerators.

Thirty students have enrolled for the class in aeronautics, which is primarily concerned with construction, said Principal Nichelson.

150 in Millinery Class.

"We expect to have about 150 girls take millinery and sewing," said Mr. Nichelsen. "Last year 500 pupils took courses in stenography and typing, but that is a small number for evening schools. The majority of our students study mathematics, physics, chemistry and accounting. We have a large number in English courses, too, including three naturalization classes of about 40 each.

"In the latter we have some graduates of colleges abroad. We have one Austrian electrical engineer, a pianist who has a downtown studio, and a chemist among our registrants. They study only history and English and civics in the naturalization classes.

Many Older Students.

"A large number of the students in our high school classes are young persons who quit their regular school courses to go to work. Many, however, are mature. One of our students is a physician in the University of Illinois Medical school who decided to take some languages here. Another is the superintendent of chemical workers in a factory, taking advanced chemistry. We have 25 nurses studying bacteriology. Many pupils are also parents."

C. F. Dunn, a Latin teacher, was found in a classroom registering his fifty pupils. One of them was Miss Josephine N. Kreutzenauer, 27 years old, 2608 Lemoyne street, who said she was a secretary in a trust company until last week. She has always wanted to study Latin and now that she has lost her job she has time, she said.

Takes Latin for Fun of It.

"I just registered a 49 year old woman who is taking second year Latin just for the fun of it, not even asking for credit," said Mr. Dunn.

A Negro boy, studying a pre-legal course, also registered for the Latin class. A young man who wanted to study medicine came next.

"I don't have many failures in my evening classes," said Mr. Dunn. "Persons who go to school nights are more ambitious, and those who aren't inspired make up for it by sticking to the job."

BATH ATTENDANT ECONOMY MAY PROVE COSTLY

A possibility that the board of education took on an added expense when it abolished the jobs of forty-nine bath attendants a week ago as an economy measure, was revealed yesterday at a meeting of union representatives. The attendants were ousted on the motion of Trustee Joseph Savage, who told the board the duties could be taken over by the janitresses and the measure would "save approximately $50,000."

Elizabeth Grady, president of the Janitresses' union, declared at the union meeting that her members already have enough duties to perform, and the jobs would have to be done by other employés. The meeting was held at the office of Paul David, financial secretary of the Building Service Employés International union.

Bath attendants are paid $110 a month. If their positions are filled by employing janitresses, whose compensation is $125 a month, the board's economy measure would prove costly.

The forty-nine bath attendants dismissed had just been certified by the civil service commission. It was reported that an aunt of one of the school trustees had failed to pass the examination.

The duties of bath attendants, according to Mary McHale, president of their union, consist of taking care of the showers, manipulating the water, taking care of suits, and seeing that children are clean before they go into a school swimming pool.

TEACHERS ASK GOVERNOR'S AID TO GET NEW LAW

The all city publicity committee of Chicago school teachers, headed by Miss Mary L. Leitch, last night sent a letter to Gov. Emmerson urging him to recommend to the legislature that a measure be introduced to authorize the use of teachers as tax collectors. County Treasurer McDonough refused to accept such a plan.

The cost of bonding 1,000 teacher-collectors would be prohibitive and the danger from racketeers would be too great, Mr. McDonough argued. Miss Leitch and her group then sent a telegram appealing to the governor.

"This matter is one to take up with the members of the general assembly," Gov. Emmerson wrote in reply. "The governor does not enact legislation and can only approve or veto the acts of the general assembly. I am doing everything in my power to bring about a better condition in Illinois, but conditions are so unusual that no one seems to have the proper solution. What have you in mind that the governor can do?"

Show Opens Today

An exhibit of the International Association of Printing House Craftsmen will be opened this evening at the Hamilton club under the auspices of the Chicago Club of Printing House Craftsmen. A dinner, to be held in connection with the opening, will be addressed by City Greeter George D. Gaw and Fred J. Hagen, president of the International association. More than 5,000 samples of printing, selected from more than 20,000 submitted works, will be displayed. The exhibit will be open to the public.

ST. CHRYSOSTOM'S CHURCH HUNTS 2 STOLEN CHALICES

A quiet search for two chalices, stolen from a safe in the sacristy of St. Chrysostom's church at 1416 North Dearborn street has been in progress for three weeks, it was learned yesterday.

The chalices, of silver covered with gold plate, were valued at about $1,100. A much larger gold piece, an alms plate, was overlooked or disregarded by the thief. The theft, it was said, occurred sometime between Aug. 24 and Aug. 28, the burglar apparently having been able to work the safe combination.

According to the Rev. Dudley Stark, pastor of the church, no one in particular was suspected. He added that he understood the police had been notified.

WRITE FRIENDS OF SUICIDE PACT, DIE IN GARAGE

Prudenville, Mich., Sept. 20.—[Special.]—Lewis Gould, 60, and his wife, Francis, 55, concluded a suicide pact here last night when they drove their car into a garage at their home, closed up all doors, and, clasped in each other's arms, succumbed to the fumes of carbon monoxide gas.

On Saturday the Goulds had gone to Roscommon, the county seat of Roscommon county, made their wills, and put their affairs in order. Returning home, they wrote letters to friends and relatives telling of their intention to end their lives. Nearby friends receiving their letters came to Prudenville, broke open the garage and found them dead, locked in each other's arms.

104,850 PUPILS IN HIGH SCHOOLS SET NEW RECORD

Schurz Leads with 9,697; Seat Shortage 45,000.

Enrollment in Chicago's senior high schools yesterday mounted to 104,850, an increase of 6,083 over last year and the largest number of high school students in the city's history. As a result there is a shortage of 45,000 seats, according to Don C. Rogers, director of research and building survey for the school system.

The largest high school is the Schurz at 3601 Milwaukee avenue, with 9,697 students. The overflow is taken care of by teaching half the student body in the morning and half in the afternoon, and by the use of 50 portables. The enrollment at Schurz is nearly twice the number of all high school students in Chicago during the World's Fair year of 1893.

Austin Gains 868 Students.

Schurz High school showed an increase of 863 students over 1931; Austin High with 7,760 students, an increase of 868; Lake View with 4,776, an increase of 780, and Hyde Park with 4,840, an increase of 716.

The increase in the senior high schools was made despite a revision of boundaries last summer and the assignment of hundreds of 9th grade pupils to junior high schools who ordinarily would have gone into senior high schools.

There are 24 senior and 28 junior high schools in the city. The enrollment in the junior high schools is now 46,132, or an increase of 5,688 over last year. William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, said that it would be possible to absorb most of these students in the junior high school buildings.

Portables in Demand.

Frank P. Sullivan, director of educational expenditure, announced that 51 portables have been moved this year to take care of increases and there have been requests for portables at 50 other schools. It costs the school board approximately $1,000 to move a portable.

The total enrollment for all branches of the school system last night had reached 492,437, an increase of 12,297 over the corresponding period of registration in 1931.

The J. Sterling Morton High school in Cicero opened yesterday, two weeks later than usual, in accordance with an economy plan. Five elementary schools in Wilmette and five in Berwyn also opened.

Gov. Judd of Hawaii, Who Freed Massie, Here

Lawrence M. Judd, governor of Hawaii, who freed the defendants in the Massie trial last May, passed through Chicago yesterday on his annual visit to Washington, D. C. Refusing to comment on the Massie trial, Gov. Judd said he would seek a loan for Hawaii from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Hawaii has not been hit as hard by the depression as some parts of the United States, he said, but its principal business, sugar, has been hurt.

SEEK 2 SAILORS AFTER CHILD'S DEATH IN FIRE

The authorities at Great Lakes naval training station were asked last night to hold two sailors, Emerald Jones and Avon Carlson, for questioning in connection with the death of 2 year old Phyllis Slovnic, who was trapped in her burning home at 214 North County street, Waukegan, early Saturday morning.

The request that the sailors be held was made by Assistant State's Attorney George S. McGaughey of Lake county after it was discovered that Jones had taken out a $500 insurance policy on the life of the child, and that with Carlson he had taken out policies on the lives of three children of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parrish, who also reside at the County street address.

The fire which caused the death of Phyllis was alleged to have been caused by a cigaret thrown away by Jones. He was exonerated, however, at the inquest held on Saturday. At that hearing Jones admitted that he was in the Slovnic home just before the fire and had been smoking. He denied that he was responsible for the fire.

With Charles Bond, a special investigator, Prosecutor McGaughey uncovered the insurance policies, all of which, McGaughey said, had been issued a month before the fire. McGaughey said that Mrs. Slovnic, who is separated from her husband, declared the policy on her child's life had been taken out without her knowledge or consent. Mrs. Parrish knew of the insurance taken out for her children but her husband did not, according to McGaughey. Mrs. Slovnic and the elder Parrishes are the beneficiaries named in the policies, the prosecutor said.

OFFICERS HELD IN HALL AFTER BOY, 9, IS SLAIN

South River, N. J., Sept. 19.—(AP)—A crowd of men and women, numbering approximately 3,000, held 40 deputies and 13 borough policemen virtual prisoners in the Borough hall tonight, following upon the fatal shooting of a nine year old boy and the wounding of three other persons during a clash between needle workers and private police late this afternoon. Needle workers are on strike.

The crowd, composed of workers in the needle industry and sympathizers, had chased the officers from the scene of the riot to Borough hall when news of the death of Walter Rojek, 9, spread. Late tonight, it kept its ground outside the hall while the borough council met in a private home to make plans for halting the disorder.

Rojek died in a hospital from a bullet wound in the head. It was not known who did the shooting.

Shotgun Robbers Hold Up Two Girls at Traffic Light

Dorothy and Mary Krimbill, sisters, 7526 Essex avenue, were halted by a band of five holdup men, two with shotguns, as they stopped their automobile for a red light at 76th street and Jeffery avenue last night. Three of the robbers entered the girls' car and, pressing the shotguns to their backs, compelled them to drive a half block, then took $8 from Mary. The robbers were frightened away by a special watchman, Ray T. Hickey, 7508 Essex avenue. They lifted their shotguns to fire at him, but were dissuaded by their companions in the trailing car.

END WISCONSIN FIGHT FOR VOTES; PRIMARY TODAY

Kohler, La Follette Both Claim Victory.

beating La Follette than Chapple has of defeating Blaine. Indications for weeks have been that the voters—farmers, industrial workers—are seething with political discontent, and that the key to their possible voting is the idea of "socking the ins." The La Follette group, aided by Democratic Senator Wheeler, has spread the idea that to vote for La Follette and Blaine is one way to "sock Hoover." The regular Republicans, meanwhile, deeming Hoover a dead weight in the primaries, have refrained from mentioning his name in the campaign.

One great factor in this situation, naturally, is how large a Democratic vote will be cast. The La Folletteites have controlled in the Republican through aid of the Democrats, whose state party for nearly a quarter of a century, was whittled down to almost nothing—a few years ago it had one solitary member of the legislature. A light Democratic vote would help La Follette, a heavy Democratic vote would aid Kohler.

Fears that Democrats may turn Republican for a day—only 17,000 votes were cast in the Democratic primaries two years ago, as against 252,000 cast in the Roosevelt delegate primaries last April—led Democratic chiefs today to send out final bulletins against "party suicide."

Strengthen Roosevelt Forces.

Otto A. Labudde, Democratic state chairman, appealed to the Democrats to vote in their own primaries and thus "strengthen the Roosevelt fighting forces."

In the final arguments the Kohler forces stressed reduction in cost of government and the need of building up individual income. "To have a job there must first be a factory," their appeal read. "Many factories, many jobs; few factories, few jobs; no factories, no jobs."

Editor Chapple, who has been a trail blazer in the campaign of the conservative regulars, in his final statement said: "The outstanding issue is whether the people want to preserve their personal rights or whether they want to turn over their affairs to a personal clique more interested in perpetuating itself than in soundly advancing the welfare of the people.

"All the smoke screens and false issues trumped up by the Blaine-La Follette political racket to mislead the people cannot obscure that one outstanding fact."

Massachusetts Votes Today.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 19.—(AP)—A barrage of oratory from rally platforms and over the radio with a colorful background of torchlight parades and other demonstrations tonight wound up the campaign of candidates for office in tomorrow's primaries.

GOV. J. B. ELY.

Apathy, noticed earlier in the campaign and attributed chiefly to the absence of a U. S. senatorial fight and the lack of opposition for Gov. Joseph B. Ely [Dem.], who seeks renomination, was replaced by interest aroused by last minute drives in the many local contests.

An unprecedented lineup of 15,800 candidates for widely diversified offices will confront the electorate, with the contests for state offices and congressional nominations holding the spotlight.

Repeal New York Issue.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 19.—(AP)—A primary election, spotted with contests between prohibitionists and repealists, will determine tomorrow New York state's candidates for congress.

At the same time the primary vote will settle legislative contests in 10 state senatorial and 19 assembly districts. The picking of the state tickets will be left to conventions of the Republicans and Democrats, on the same days, Oct. 3 and 4, the former at Buffalo and the latter at Albany.

The prohibition fights in the congressional primaries are confined entirely to upstate Republican districts, where President Hoover's advocation of a change in the prohibition law does not find favorable response with some candidates.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Senora Francisca Aceves, first wife of former President Pascual Ortiz Rubio, was killed early today near Cuernavaca in a motor accident. HORNER PLEDGES TO REPEAL PET LAW OF SMALL Charges Measure Foiled State Office Inquiry.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Canton, Ill., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Resuming his campaign for the governorship today, Judge Henry Horner, the Democratic candidate, charged his opponent, Len Small, with compelling the legislature to amend the quo warranto act in 1927 to prevent the investigation of state officers.

Small himself was convicted of withholding interest from the state. Judge Horner called the present law the most insidious section of the statutes, and promised the voters at two large massmeetings, here and in Macomb, that one of his first acts as governor will be to obtain its repeal.

Voters to Control Government.

"Henry Horner wants to be answerable to the people," the candidate declared. "I want to be accountable not only on election day but every other day of my term in office. The voters are for once trying to get control of the government. They want those officers they choose responsible to them for their official conduct. It shall be one of my first recommendations to the legislature to repeal this insiduous legislation."

The judge and several of those speaking with him also loosed a broadside on the prohibition law. A crowd of several thousand gathered about the steps of the McDonough county courthouse at Macomb cheered the Horner declaration for repeal of the search and seizure law and his plan to replace it with legislation to prevent the return of the saloon.

Most of the candidates on the state ticket appeared for that meeting. Thomas F. Donovan of Joliet, candidate for lieutenant governor, and Judge Otto Kerner of River Forest, candidate for attorney general, joined Judge Horner and Martin A. Brennan of Bloomington, candidate for congressman at large, and John C. Martin of Salem, candidate for state treasurer. The party, headed by Congressman William H. Dieterich of Heardstown, candidate for United States senator, was the only group of campaigning candidates not represented.

Donovan Receives Applause.

Mr. Donovan got the lion's share of the applause for his declarations against the prohibition law and his attack upon Len Small's sudden "flop" to the wet side of the fence.

"That man Small was dry until one Wednesday morning last spring when he decided to be a wet," said Donovan. "He came out on the highway, saw the repeal band wagon flashing by and hitch hiked a ride. He was the driest of the drys before that."

The candidate for lieutenant governor declared that 200,000 men would be put to work tomorrow in breweries throughout the country if beer came back. And the government would be enriched one billion dollars annually in excise taxes.

Fine Roads but No Farms.

Donovan also drew cheers from an audience consisting largely of farmers when he told it that "Ten years ago you had fine farms and no roads; now you have fine roads and no farms."

Judge Horner began his second week of active campaigning at Macomb, arriving there early today from Chicago, where he attended the Democratic picnic Sunday.

He spent the morning pursuing his favorite form of campaigning handshaking trips into small villages nearby, visiting Blandinsville and Colchester.

G. O. P. ISSUES BOOKLETS FOR YOUNG VOTERS

Iowan Gets National Campaign Post.

The Young Republican league of the Republican national committee has ready for distribution campaign literature especially written for the 28,000,000 voters under the age of 36, according to a statement issued yesterday from Republican headquarters in the Palmer house. The literature includes a booklet called "Campaign Ammunition" and two pamphlets, "The Young Republican League" and "Young Republican Clubs." These publications give campaign information and set forth the method of organizing Young Republican leagues.

Lieut. Gov. Arch W. McFarlane of Iowa has been appointed national chairman of the Hoover-Curtis traveling men's committee, Republican headquarters announced. The appointment was made by N. W. MacChesney, director of the national Hoover-Curtis organization bureau.

Traveling Men a Factor.

"Traveling men, representing the great business and industry of this nation, will be an important factor in the presidential campaign," the headquarters statement quoted McFarlane as saying. "Everywhere people are demanding to know more about the President's program for economic reconstruction and how it is working out. It is the traveling man who is most frequently asked this question and it is essential that he know the answer.

"We as traveling men know that if there is any hope for sunshine at all in this dark day for American industry, it is to be found in the policies of the Republican party. We cannot risk our entire future by experimenting with theories and radical ideas of untried and inexperienced leaders."

Mrs. Simms Offers Services.

Among the visitors yesterday at Republican headquarters was Mrs. Albert G. Simms, the former Ruth Hanna McCormick. She offered her services to the Hoover-Curtis forces and said that she expects to campaign steadily from the time she arrives at her home in Albuquerque until the election Nov. 8. She and her husband, former Congressman Simms of New Mexico, went to her farm at Byron, Ill., yesterday where they will stay for a few days before leaving for Albuquerque.

A large Republican gathering is scheduled for Sept. 23 at the Mackinaw Dells, in Woodford county between Bloomington and Peoria. Secretary of Agriculture Hyde is announced as one of the principal speakers.

MAINE CONDUCTS AN INQUIRY INTO STATE ELECTION

Houlton, Me., Sept. 19.—(AP)—An investigator for the attorney general's department came to Aroostook county today seeking depositions from the election officials in charge of ten voting precincts in last Monday's state election, in which a Democratic governor and two Democratic congressmen were elected by narrow margins. The investigator, United States Commissioner Richard K. Gould of Portland, declined to explain the object of his inquiry.

Aroostook county is part of the Third district, in which, on the face of unofficial returns, John G. Utterback, Democratic congressional candidate, defeated former Gov. Ralph O. Brewster, Republican, 34,369 to 33,195. The county gave Utterback a majority of 354. Burleigh Martin, defeated Republican gubernatorial candidate, carried Aroostook by a margin of 1,378 over Louis J. Brann, Democratic governor elect.

The ten precincts covered by Gould's investigation, all comparatively small communities, gave generous majorities to both Brann and Utterback.

Give a Blood Transfusion to Vice Admiral Pringle

San Diego, Calif., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Vice Admiral Joel R. P. Pringle, 59, commander of the battleship division of the U. S. fleet, who was brought to the naval hospital here after becoming ill at Port Angeles, Wash., underwent a blood transfusion today. Capt. L. W. Johnson of the naval corps said Admiral Pringle was suffering from anemia and added his condition was serious, but not critical.

CHANGE IN NAME COSTS J. F. HAAS PLACE ON TICKET

The canvassing board of the election commissioners, as the result of an injunction issued by Superior Judge William J. Lindsay, adjourned yesterday without certifying the nomination of Joseph F. Haas as a Republican candidate for the Municipal court. A meeting of the Republican city central committee has been called for Thursday to fill the vacancy in the list of candidates resulting from the board's action.

The petition for the injunction barring Haas' name from the ballot was filed by Assistant State's Attorney Edgar B. Elder, who was defeated for nomination in the primary in which Haas was successful.

At the hearings on the petition evidence was introduced showing that Haas' real name is Joseph F. Mull. Mull obtained permission from the Supreme court to change his name to Joseph F. Haas, that of a former county recorder. Mr. Elder claimed that the change was made by Mull to gain support of voters who would believe they were voting for the real Joseph F. Haas.

PLAN LUNCHEON TO GREET MAYOR AND CANDIDATES

A luncheon to greet Mayor Cermak and the candidates on the Democratic ticket will be given on Saturday by the Illinois Woman's Democratic club at the Hotel Sherman. The luncheon will formally open the activities of women in the campaign. The chief speaker will be Miss Frances Perkins of New York, appointed state industrial commissioner by Alfred E. Smith when he was governor of New York. She will represent the national candidates at the luncheon. Mrs. Elizabeth A. Conkey, president of the club, will preside.

JUNIOR A. OF C. OPENS DRIVE TO BRING OUT VOTES

The Chicago Junior Association of Commerce yesterday announced a nonpartisan campaign to encourage a large vote in the coming presidential election. The purpose is to combat the growing tendency to indifference towards the conduct of government, it was declared.

The first effort will be to get all citizens to register Oct. 1 and 11. Everyone must register this year.

The association pointed out that those who are unable to get to the polls may file their affidavits with the election commissioners at any time between the first registration day and noon of the day preceding the second registration day.

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

Lodges Complaint Before Shannon Committee.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Free government hospitalization of private citizens injures both the taxpayer and the private physician, Dr. William C. Woodward of Chicago, head of the legislative bureau of the American Medical association testified today before the Shannon house committee investigating federal invasion of the field of private enterprise.

DR. W. C. WOODWARD.

For the government to give free medical service to those not incurring injury or illness in federal service, Dr. Woodward declared, tends to break down the economic basis on which private medical and hospital services are organized.

Cites Veterans' Hospitals.

He made special reference to veterans' hospitals, pointing out there could be no objection to the treatment of soldiers and veterans for disabilities incurred in military service, but pointing out also that congress had so broadened the veterans' laws as to permit hospitalization of virtually any veteran for any disability, no matter how or when acquired.

"The federal government," he said, "is now buying medical and hospital services at the expense of the taxpayer and is giving these services free to selected persons, rich and poor, for the treatment of diseases and injuries not incurred in the line of any public duty, either civil or military, and not in the discharge of any obligation whatever owed by the federal government to the beneficiaries.

U. S. Competition Assailed.

"Government competition of this character will tend furthermore to undermine the morale of the medical profession, to hinder its development, and to leave the people without adequate medical service in time of need and without adequate medical resources in case of military necessity."

ROBOT UTTERS A WARNING, THEN SHOOTS MASTER

BRIGHTON, England, Sept. 19.—(AP)—"Alpha," the electric mechanical man invented by Harry May, has made good his threat to wreak vengeance upon his inventor.

During a demonstration of the robot at an electrical exhibition yesterday one of May's hands was severely burned by the premature discharge of the gun in the robot's hand. May was inserting the cartridges in the gun, during which the robot customarily says: "Look out, or I'll blow your hand off!" As it uttered the words the gun was fired.

It was the inventor's third injury at the robot's hands. Twice before it raised its steel fist and crashed it down on his head. May was unable to explain how yesterday's accident occurred unless somebody in the audience said something which affected the iron man's mechanism.

GIRL, 2, KILLED BY A TRUCK IN FRONT OF HOME

Catherine De Boer, 2 years old, 1418 South 55th court, Cicero, was fatally injured yesterday by an automobile truck in front of her home. She died at the Frances Willard hospital. Adolph Holzman of Cudahy, Wis., the driver, was held by Cicero police. The girl was playing with her brother, Albert, 5, and ran into the street.

This death and three others increased the Cook county motor toll for 1932 to 820. The other victims:

Oscar Gallia, 61 years old, of 2202 Berwyn avenue, died last night in the Alexian Brothers hospital. He walked into the side of a street car Sunday while trying to dodge an automobile at Center and Osgood streets.

Mrs. Ida Klymer, 39 years old, 203 East Washington street, West Chicago. Died in the German Deaconess hospital of injuries received on Sept. 11 when a car in which she was riding was struck by a truck at Garfield boulevard and Normal avenue.

Edward Molewski, 13 years old, 2800 Lock street. Fatally injured last night when the car he was driving struck a lamp post at 35th street and Archer avenue. He died in St. Anthony's hospital.

Louis Heldt, 50 years old, a farmer of Eagle Lake, died yesterday in St. James' hospital, Chicago Heights. His wagon was struck by a hit and run motorist on the Lincoln highway between Crete and Beecher last week.

A verdict of accidental death was returned yesterday in the death of Oscar Perfect, 57 years old, 3611 South Wells street, who was killed Saturday at 34th street and Michigan avenue by the automobile of Mme. Blanche Bilboe, French actress, who lives at 1120 Lake Shore drive. Robert Lockwood, her chauffeur, was alone in the car at the time.

Edward Bittunis, 35 years old, 2315 South Oakley avenue, a fruit peddler, was shot yesterday by Margaret Lusaitis, 22, of 2153 West 34th street, after he had thrown a brick through a window in the Lusaitis home. Bittunis, the girl said, had tried to force his attentions on her widowed mother, Anna, 45 years old.

NATION CANNOT PAY MORE TAXES, STRAWN WARNS

Governments Must Slash Costs, He Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Silas H. Strawn, Chicago attorney and former chairman of the United States Chamber of Commerce, declared today in a speech before the National Municipal league that taxes must be reduced because the nation "has reached the end of its financial rope"—the point where it is impossible to raise sufficient revenue to meet the cost of government functions.

SILAS H. STRAWN

Mr. Strawn pointed to the rising cost of government, federal, state and local, as compared with the decreasing income from taxation, in support of his assertion. In the 16 years from 1913 to 1929, he said, the cost of all government increased by 400 per cent while at the same time the national income had increased by only 148 per cent. In 1930, he said, income taxes amounted to 2 billions 413 millions; in 1931 they dropped to 1 billion 860 millions; and in 1932 they hit a new low of 1 billion 57 million.

New Excises Hazardous.

"Casting about for new sources of revenue by increasing taxes or creating excise tolls upon different kinds of business is a hazardous undertaking," he said, "because the probability is that the revenue thus anticipated will not be realized and the result will be inability to meet present obligations and a piling up of indebtedness."

"I would not predict trouble," he added, "but I fear that the efforts of the last congress to balance the budget by this kind of legislation will be very disappointing and at the next session the congress will find the anticipated revenue has not been forthcoming."

"Soak the Rich" Fails.

Commenting on the "soak the rich" policy noted in congress at the last session Mr. Strawn declared it "hopelessly fallacious" and that there are few rich left to "soak" and because those who still retain a part of their fortunes will invest in tax exempt securities thereby defeating the very purpose of tax legislation aimed at the wealthy class.

JOHN W. DAVIS SAYS SOARING TAXES ARE MENACE TO NATION

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for president in 1924 and present vice president of the citizen's budget commission, tonight warned that taxes have reached the point where they are becoming confiscatory. He declared that existing conditions, unless speedily remedied, mean government failure, big business failures and one man failures.

"Large fortunes," he said, "will disappear and small incomes cease. Wages will stop when, because of over taxation, factories can only operate at a loss."

Mr. Davis pointed out that whereas in 1913 the taxes collected for the national government, represented $7 per capita, and for local governments about $12 per capita; in 1930 they had risen to $28 per capita for the national government, $14 per capita for state governments, and $41 per capita for local governments, with subsequent years showing no decrease.

DEPUTY RAIDER KILLS MAN, SAYS FEDERAL AGENT

Jefferson City, Mo., Sept. 19.—(AP)—George Craig, federal prohibition agent working out of Jefferson City, said today a man identified as Claude Brown had been shot and fatally wounded by W. Bracken, deputy Howard county sheriff, during a raid on a still six miles northwest of Boonville.

Craig said that he, Bracken and George Ray, another Howard county deputy sheriff, had secreted themselves near a still early this morning awaiting the operators. When they appeared the officers arrested Price Staats, but Brown fled through the underbrush. Then, Craig said, Bracken fired at Brown against his orders.

SEIZE CAPONE BEER TRUCK AND ARREST 3 MEN

Surprised while they were making a beer delivery at the Electric Type Club saloon, 232 West Randolph street, two employes of the Capone liquor syndicate and the alleged owner of the saloon were arrested yesterday by a squad of prohibition agents headed by Chief Investigator Eliot Ness. They are Joe Bue, known as a convoy driver for Capone beer trucks; the truck driver, who gave the name of "Jack," and C. B. Taylor, Bue, one of the sixty-six under indictment in the Capone liquor conspiracy case, has been arrested twice before on liquor charges.

Ness and his squad were cruising in their car when they saw the men taking beer from the truck to the second floor saloon. They arrested the trio and seized the truck, which had the name "J. Swanson" painted on the side. Bue's car, equipped with a police siren, was parked nearby.

Taylor denied ownership of the saloon. He said that he was waiting for a street car when he saw the men unloading the beer and decided to lend a hand. After making the arrests, agents went to the second floor saloon, which is equipped with bar and booths, and seized assorted liquors and a barrel of beer on tap. Bue, the truck driver, and Taylor were arraigned before United States Commissioner Walker and the case was continued until Sept. 27. Bond of $2,000 was set for the driver and Bue, and $1,000 for Taylor.

BARE HIGH COST OF REPORTING IN CRIMINAL COURT

5 Judges; 9 Reporters; Duplication Charged.

Irregularities in the services of the nine official shorthand reporters of the Criminal court were revealed yesterday in a report to the county board by County Efficiency Expert Thor E. Madsen of J. L. Jacobs & Co.

THOR E. MADSEN.

The report was ordered following the disclosure last Aug. 24 that each of the nine reporters is paid $3,600 a year by the state, presumably to act for nine Criminal court judges, although only five judges sit in the court most of the year and only one or two in the summer months.

In his investigation Mr. Madsen found duplication of service, overcharging and over appropriation. He recommended more stringent supervision, elimination of duplication, reduction in the number of employes, the stopping of payment on three bills turned in by court reporters, and action to secure return of $1,913 to the county.

Finance Committee to Act.

The finance committee of the county board is to act on the report today. Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court is to enter an order making it imperative that all reporters' bills be approved by him before payment.

The legislature authorized the hiring of the reporters at state expense, one to a judge, in 1928, but the judges did not take advantage of the new law until 1931.

Under the law the reporters are entitled to charge 20 cents per 100 words for making transcripts and the fees are to be paid by the person who orders the transcript in addition to the $300 a month salary. If a judge orders a transcript he may direct payment of the charges.

Duplication Is Charged.

At more important trials, Mr. Madsen's report said, two reporters have been duplicating testimony, the official reporter and a reporter assigned to the state's attorney's office. The state's attorney's reporters receive 50 cents per page, 15 cents for the first copy, 10 cents for each additional copy, and $3 a day for attendance in court.

For carbon copies the official reporters receive 25 cents a page or 66 per cent more than the reporters employed by the state's attorney. Mr. Madsen declared there is no necessity for the two reporters.

In five cases official reporters received payment from the county for making bills of exception for defendants where there was no obligation to pay, the Madsen report said. The reporters and the amounts charged are:

Harriet Heineman	$ 38.50
John A. Witt	207.50
John A. Witt	600.00
Gene Charters	62.10

Mr Madsen recommended that steps be taken to secure the return of the money paid to Witt and that the vouchers for the other two reporters be cancelled. He said that his audit is not complete and that other recommendations may be made later.

The report cited as "a flagrant irregularity" a bill tendered to the county by Witt for $545 for services in the "Old Doc" Tilton cancer trial, covering the cost of a carbon copy of 2,180 pages of proceedings at 25 cents a page.

Witt Also Bills State.

Witt, according to the report, billed the state department of registration and education for the same transcript as follows:

Total	$1,417

The department has paid $1,090 and is disputing the balance of the bill. The Tilton trial covered the period from May 20 to June 14 with an average of three hours of court work a day. For services in this period, Mr. Madsen estimated, Witt would receive $2,262 on the basis of his charge to the county, the state department and his salary of $300 a month. Madsen suggested that the bill of $545 to the county be cancelled.

Mr. Madsen asked that the county board end duplication of taking notes of evidence by having the state's attorney accept the services of the official reporters.

These reporters, he said, should be reduced in number to conform with the number of judges on duty, they should be required to prepare invoices on standard forms of the county and the board should reduce the price for carbon copies to the 15 cents per page rate now paid the state's attorney's reporters.

1 JAR RESINOL HEALED SEVERE ECZEMA

"More than 35 years ago, when I was a child, I developed a severe case of eczema behind my left ear. In spite of all the remedies used the disease spread rapidly over my head. Finally our doctor, one of the best in Kansas City, told Mother to try Resinol Ointment as he knew it was good. It was wonderful and after using a full jar the affection was entirely healed. Since then I have been an ardent user of Resinol for burns, cuts, and all manner of skin affections, and have never known it to fail. There is nothing like it for the skin disorders of babies, it is so soothing and healing." (Signed) Mrs. O. S. Plott, 297 Carrollton Ave., Shreveport, Louisiana.

Colombia Clamors for War With Peru over Seized City

BOGOTA, Colombia, Sept. 19.—(AP)—While public demonstrations demanding war with Peru continued without abatement tonight, the senate unanimously approved a $10,000,000 national defense bill on third reading. The bill was sent to the house, which passed it unanimously on first reading.

The action followed upon the seizure by Peruvians of Leticia, Amazon river port city ceded to Colombia by Peru in 1922 in a boundary treaty. The bill would authorize the government to arrange a credit of $10,000,000 to be used for national defense.

President Enrique Olaya-Herrera returned to the capital today to find thousands of dollars pledged by various organizations and women offering jewels to finance a military expedition against the Peruvians.

Peru Gathers "Defense Fund."

LIMA, Peru, Sept. 19.—(AP)—It was announced today that President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro had given one month's salary, amounting to 3,500 soles [$1,680 at par], toward a national defense fund destined to purchase armaments for Peru.

Bolivia Denies "Weakness."

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Sept. 19.—(AP)—An army statement today said Bolivia's conditional acceptance of the American neutral commission's request for a truce in the Gran Chaco fighting "was not a sign of weakness but a consequence of Bolivia's pacifist spirit to settle the conflict by lawful means."

The government yesterday answered the note from the commission in Washington, D. C., by agreeing to end the conflict over the disputed Chaco region if Paraguay agreed before hand to do likewise.

Paraguay Demands Security.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Paraguay advised the American neutrals tonight that she was willing to cease hostilities in the Chaco jungles, but must insist upon proper security before negotiating any agreement.

The ministry of war issued a bulletin today stating Paraguayan troops in the Fort Boqueron sector had repulsed Bolivian attempts to break through the lines at Castillo and Yuera.

The bulletin said a Chilean officer leading the Bolivian forces was among the prisoners captured.

Brazil Claims Rout of Rebels.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Sept. 19.—(AP)—The government announced tonight that federal troops, closing around Campinas, had repelled a counter attack and routed Sao Paulo rebels south of Amparo after a seven hour battle. Rebel losses were reported to be heavy.

RETURN OF WORK HORSE PREDICTED BY BLACKSMITHS

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 19.—(AP)—The international convention of Master Horseshoers, Blacksmiths and Carriage Makers began its 42d annual session here today, confident the work horse is "returning to stay."

J. A. Carlson of Arthur, Ia., president of the American section of the convention, said that, though the truck and tractor maintained their lead on main highways, the horse came into its own off main roadways.

INSULL RESORT PROPERTY SOLD BY RECEIVER

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Quivira Lakes, a resort developed by a Samuel Insull organization at a cost of $1,200,000, was auctioned off today for $189,644 at a receiver's sale.

The successful bidder was Arthur Hargrave of Kansas City, treasurer of the development company, and his bid was approximately the amount of a first mortgage, plus interest.

Eugene V. R. Thayer, receiver for the Mississippi Valley Utilities Investment company, an Insull subsidiary, announced prior to the bidding that he would ask the Kansas Supreme court to decide whether a half million dollar mortgage held by that concern on the Quivira Lakes property had priority over all other mortgages.

The Wyandotte county, Kansas, district court ruled that the Insull concern held a second mortgage.

JAN. 1 DEADLINE ON MIDDLE WEST CLAIMS ORDERED

Federal Judge Charles G. Briggle issued formal notice yesterday to all persons, firms, and corporations having claims against the Middle West Utilities to file them before Jan. 1 next.

This action was taken at the request of the receivers, Edward N. Hurley and Charles A. McCulloch. The claims are to be filed with the receivers at 20 North Wacker drive, Chicago. Claims not filed before the date specified are to be forfeited.

Rock Island Man Is Shot at Peoria; Three Are Held

dent of Middle West Utilities, or Marshall E. Sampsell, former president of Central Illinois Public Service company. Both have been accused of diverting company funds to their private trading accounts and Martin Insull has become a voluntary exile at Orellia, Ont

Possibility of suits for accounting against Insull directors was forecast by Samuel A. Ettelson, former corporation counsel, and attorney for the so-called independent protective committee on Middle West common stock. Mr. Ettelson announced that he would repetition Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley for the right to intervene in the Middle West receivership.

Makes Report to Swanson.

The state investigation of Insull affairs got started yesterday, as promised by State's Attorney Swanson. Euclid Taylor, an assistant prosecutor, handed Mr. Swanson a report on American extradition treaties with France and Canada.

"The treaties with both countries are identical," he said. "They provide that if the offense charged in Illinois is also a criminal offense in the respective country, then the defendant shall be liable to extradition."

The French republic has no criminal statute similar to the Illinois blue sky law, Mr. Taylor found. French law has a number of kindred statutes, several of which might be invoked if the state investigation warrants a demand for extradition, he said.

HELD ON ARSON CHARGE.

Centralia, Ill., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Jack Randall, said by Kansas City authorities to have confessed that he started a $350,000 fire here last May which for a time threatened to destroy the entire business district, was in the custody of Marion county authorities today.

U. S. DRY OFFICIAL RELEASED ON BAIL IN CONTEMPT CASE

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Harold D. Wilson, deputy prohibition administrator for Nebraska, was released in bail of $1,000 today after spending several hours in the custody of a United States marshal on a charge of contempt of court placed against him nearly two years ago.

The Nebraska deputy was released pending an appeal to the circuit court on the ground that District Court Judge John P. Nields erred in holding Wilson today because the case in which the charge arose no longer existed.

While serving as deputy administrator in Delaware in October, 1930, Wilson raided the club house of the Democratic league of Delaware. The club appealed to the district court on the ground the raid was illegal. During a hearing on the appeal, Wilson refused to tell from whom he received a key with which he entered the place and Judge Nields ordered him held in contempt. The circuit court of appeals recently upheld Judge Nields and the case came before him today for final disposition.

HOTEL OWNERS UNITE TO GIVE FINANCIAL AID

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Aiming at the reestablishment of the hotel industry throughout the country, a group of nationally known hotel men, bankers and industrialists, have formed the Hotel Reconstruction Finance corporation. The group plans to make the resources of the new venture immediately available to hotels and hotel companies in distress, to the proper authorities in Washington and to the courts handling the receivership of such enterprises.

The purposes of the corporation, according to Robert E. Graham, one of the directors, who announced its formation today, are "to afford the industry competent and scientific management and financial assistance with the expectation of definitely stabilizing the industry and restoring it to normal conditions."

Chaotic conditions have resulted from the appointment of receivers for many hotels, the announcement points out. In those cases where the receivers have been interested only in gross patronage, price cutting of rooms and meals has been such as to force other hotels into dangerous financial situations, it is said.

GOV. ROOSEVELT RULES FILIPINOS 'FOR THE PEOPLE'

Establishes Policy of "Break" for Little Man.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., Aug. 22.—[By Mail.]—Theodore Roosevelt, the living, marches under his own flags now. A short, sturdy, soldierly figure, he strides down the great hall of Malacanang palace under the colors of his regiment, the 36th, the flag of the governor general of Porto Rico and the flag of the governor general of the Philippines.

GOV. GEN. THEODORE ROOSEVELT. [Assoc. Press Photo.]

His father, as assistant secretary of the navy, ordered Dewey into Manila bay. It may rest with Gov. Gen. Roosevelt to order the Americans out of the bay, if congress should grant independence quickly. In the meantime he points the way toward that event which may be divine and still far off. He leads through these people, yet holds firmly the reins of responsibility which touch the destinies of 13,000,000 of them.

Champion of Common Man.

The governor of the Philippines always has a chair a little higher than any other chair in sight. His appearances are presidential, or kingly. It is a tribute which goes with this high American office, which in power and local prestige becomes a little White House. Who has had better training for the easy, human exercise of such power than this Roosevelt? He has already become in these islands the prophet and the champion of the common man, the little farmer. His thunders are felt in remote barrios.

The loom of time weaves new patterns. The other day Gov. Roosevelt, sitting in his high chair at the head of the table in the state dining room, had at his right hand Gen. Servillano Aquino, father of Senator B. S. Aquino, acting president of the Philippine senate. The general was of the old fashioned revolutionary vintage, gray haired, alert, Spanish talking. In the course of conversation with the governor, who speaks Spanish fluently, the general remarked that this was the second time he had been in the palace.

Sentenced to Die First Time.

"And what was the first time?" asked the governor.

"When I was court martialed and condemned to death," was the reply.

"And why were you not executed?"

"Because your father, President Roosevelt, pardoned me."

Death, treachery, intrigue, cruelty, as well as high and noble motive, have stalked through this old palace, its foundations laid hundreds of years ago under Spanish rule. The yellow Pasig river flows gently by the lofty gios, giant acacias shelter it and royal palms lead the way to the great doors. There are two wings of rambling high ceilinged rooms, done in the beautiful woods of the Philippines, heavy carved furniture, bare floors and walls opening everywhere to the soft and fragrant world of trees and flowers and lawns.

A passageway connects the executive offices, filled with brown faces, and the private mansion quarters. A tennis court and big open air swimming pool furnish the chief recreation for Gov. Roosevelt. Here he plays with Filipinos and Americans and in the manner of his father discusses affairs of state frankly. His daily luncheons give another informal contact with all manner of people.

"All in the Family."

"All in the family" is an expression used with newspaper correspondents of the foreign press who gather with him for weekly conference. He keeps them in touch and informed about everything and the relations are happy, a method which President Hoover started but was not able to keep up.

Gov. Roosevelt delegates power of action to the Filipino officials who constitute 98 per cent of the government under him. He stimulates them and backs them up, but the ultimate decision in a multitude of affairs rests with him, and in order to understand and decide wisely he has had to work day and night. His secretaries sometimes are still busy at 10 o'clock at night. An illustration of what this means was given by a member of the legislature.

"Soon after the governor came here last March," he said, "I went to him to get him to cable the President to sign a new rice tariff bill. I represent a rice growing community and I started to tell him how important it was and what the bill provided. He stopped me, called in a secretary and began to dictate a cable. I was surprised, for he knew just what the bill was and just what the rice situation was. I mentioned corn and he also knew all about that.

Refuses a Pardon.

"Later I had a client who wanted me to take up a pardon case with the governor. I went to him again and began to talk to him about this case. 'Wait a minute,' he said. 'Wasn't that a bad case?' And he went on to tell me things I did not think he knew, and then said he could not grant the pardon. Well, I was satisfied. I told the boys, 'Look out, this fellow knows what it is all about.' But he is square and we are satisfied."

The keynote of the Roosevelt administration seems to be to lead and work through the Filipinos. There is no dictatorial, driving atmosphere at Malacanang, but still nothing of importance goes through governmental channels without the palace sanction.

"What does Malacanang think?" is the question most frequently heard.

Effective government of these islands today can only exist with the support of the Filipinos. Gov. Roosevelt has won their support. Manuel Quezon, who is absent most of the time from his throne as president of the senate but who remains as the most potent Filipino voice, even from his sick chamber, has vigorously backed up the main Roosevelt program centering around economy in government, even to the extent of reorganization which would throw about 8,000 of the 28,000 government employés out of jobs.

A Heroic Program.

It is a gallant, even politically heroic, thing that the Philippine people have attempted here through their legislature. It would be comparable to cutting a billion dollars out of the expenses of the United States government. It has set its face against more borrowing and postponement of the evil day, which was the course of the Australian governments. It is doubtful whether this could have been done without the impetus of a similarly minded American governor, for the execution of the reorganization will have to rest with him, and the politicos will be able to point to him as the one who cut their friends from the public pay roll.

The governor has set a lesson in economy by putting into effect an emergency order cutting all governmental salaries, including his own, ten per cent, putting up the government yacht Apo, as Hoover discarded the Mayflower, garaging two of the six palace automobiles, and stopping leaks in many places.

Dwight Davis, as governor general, campaigned against graft in government service and sought to widen the idea that public office is a public trust. Gov. Roosevelt has taken up the cudgels for the small landowner against the money lenders. He has talked of the "rights" of the people, until in some quarters it is feared that the more ignorant of the poor and dispossessed may take this as a signal to seize their lands, taken from them through laws and papers they could not comprehend.

Radicalism Crops Up.

Radicalism has cropped up in the islands, particularly in the northern Luzon rice fields. It is communist inspired, diluted to the understanding of the peasants. The governor, through the provincial governors, Filipinos elected by the people, is working to counteract this, and there is a beginning of a new liberality and safety in tenant life, and a coöperative movement which may get the rice trade out of Chinese into Filipino hands.

The governor has visited all but one of the 48 provinces and has made many surprise calls on farmers and officials. His knowledge of Spanish has been a great aid in getting provincial people to talk to him and tell him their troubles. He has taken up the question of land titles, begun rural credit associations and sought to extend the teaching of modern agricultural methods, leading toward diversification of crops so that the Filipinos, in the day of independence, will not be caught with one or two major crops which they will be unable to sell in the open world market.

After dealing with the necessity of economy in government and setting forth practical ways to accomplish this, the governor in his first message set the tone of his administration in the following manner:

"The second all important matter that merits your consideration is the condition of the small man in the islands. He is the backbone of any nation and on his well being depends ultimately the success or failure of all. The strength of the islands lies in the fact that wealth here as a rule is fairly evenly distributed.

"There are only a few who are very rich, and a comparatively small number who are literally destitute. We must shape our policies in such fashion as not merely to continue this condition, but to better the lot of the little man. The goal for which we must aim is a condition of affairs where every man may have an opportunity to gain by his own efforts, not by gifts or charity, governmental or otherwise, a comfortable living for himself and family."

The making of the little schoolhouses in all the barrios into centers of education and practical help for the "little man" and the farmer is part of the plan. It is as simple and old-fashioned as the Bible, but Gov. Roosevelt is no radical. He is seeking to dramatize old truths.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 19.—A state of siege exists at Birkenhead, where nine policemen were injured and 44 demonstrators were arrested as a result of looting and street fighting inspired over the week-end by communist agitators.

One hundred extra police were detailed to the town from Liverpool to help maintain order. Sporadic fighting broke out again at 6 o'clock this morning. A number of shops were stripped of merchandise and scores of windows were broken. In some cases steel shutters were ripped down by the mob, which scattered goods on the pavement.

In clashes with the police the rioters fought with bricks, bottles, and spiked iron palings yanked from a school fence. Officers toured the town throughout the night in groups, due to attacks on solitary patrolmen. Brushes occurred repeatedly, but by 8 o'clock this morning order was restored.

QUEBEC, Que., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Fourteen alleged communists, arrested for participation in May day riots in the mining districts of northern Quebec, are to be deported during the first week in October, immigration officials said today.

DRYS' INFORMER CAUGHT HAULING LIQUOR; JAILED

George Harris of Hazelcrest, who said he had served as an investigator for Prohibition Agent George E. [Hardboiled] Golding and Reformer Daniel L. Gilday, was arrested yesterday by prohibition agents on a charge of transporting alcohol.

He was seized at 79th and Halsted streets when agents found 15 gallons of alcohol in the automobile in which he was riding with John Merzhirch and Tony Taubenberger. All three were arraigned before United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker, who continued the case until Sept. 26 and set bonds of $2,500 each.

Harris said he worked as an informer during the régime of Golding, whose terms as special dry agent in Chicago was marked by the shooting of two citizens. Later, he said, he investigated liquor conditions for Daniel L. Gilday, reformer, who is under sentence of 1 to 14 years for shooting Herman Knoll, 17 years old, when the latter found him intoxicated and tried to aid him.

Heart Disease Is Fatal to Man Shot by Banker

Antonius Van Worden, 68 years old, 2035 Pensacola avenue, was found dead in bed of heart disease yesterday morning. Last December Van Worden was shot and wounded by John Jacob Visser, 35 years old, vice president of the closed Kimball Trust and Savings bank, who then committed suicide. Van Worden was made penniless through Visser's transactions, an investigation disclosed, and his financial troubles may have aggravated his heart disease, a physician said.

JUDGE REVOKES PROBATION FOR SHOTGUN BANDIT

Trimble Ordered to Join Pals in Prison.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Richard Kamrowski, rape and robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary for robbery and 65 years for rape; Clarence James, rape and robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life for robbery and 40 years for rape; Eli Serrano, crime against children, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary; Noel Driver, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary, by Chief Justice John Prystalski.

Anthony Alden, bigamy, sentenced to 1 to 5 years in the penitentiary by Judge Michael Feinberg.

Jesse Smith, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

Judge James J. Kelly sentenced Ralph Trimble, shotgun bandit, to one year to life in prison yesterday after cancelling the probation order which he had previously granted. Two companions of Trimble in four loan agency robberies, St. Clair McInerny and George Dilley, were sent to prison last month after their probation was revoked.

Trimble was re-arrested last Friday. There was no hearing yesterday when he was taken before Judge Kelly. The question of the merits of the probation had been threshed out at a previous hearing in which Judge Kelly sustained his own original order as legal but ruled that he was in error in his first belief that he could keep the bandits on probation for three or four consecutive periods of two years each.

Judge Pronounces Sentence.

The only question yesterday was whether Judge Kelly had vacated the probation order for Trimble at the previous hearing or had continued State's Attorney Swanson's motion to have it vacated. To make sure, Judge Kelly ordered the probation set aside and then pronounced sentence. Trimble was sentenced to one year to life on each of four robbery charges, but the sentences were made concurrent.

"Now, are the parties in the contempt matter present?" Judge Kelly asked a few minutes later. Presumably the parties were Willard Edwards and James Gavin, reporters for THE TRIBUNE, who collaborated on the news item telling of the order of Judge Kelly in granting probation to the three bandits who confessed their parts in four holdups.

Reporters Called by Judge.

Judge Kelly had summoned the reporters after Gavin, at a previous hearing, had told of hearing the protest of Police Sergeant Timothy Dwyer concerning the probation granted the bandits. Through a misunderstanding THE TRIBUNE stated that Dwyer made his protest in open court instead of outside the court. This mistake was later corrected in THE TRIBUNE. Investigation revealed that Judge Kelly, however, had been acquainted with all the facts in the bandits' case at earlier hearings.

Gavin and Edwards were in court yesterday, but were told to return today.

BOASTS OF CRIME

EDWARD COLLINS.

Edward Collins, 52 years old, known to police as an international burglar, was held yesterday at the Hyde Park station as the prowler who three weeks ago tried to rob the home of Mrs. Harold J. Bradley, 1639 Hyde Park boulevard. The police, after getting a description of the man who sought to enter the Bradley home, arrested Collins in his apartment at 1311 East 62d street. He was identified by Mrs. Bradley.

SEXUAL REFORM LEAGUE MEETS IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

The doctors, both men and women, will open their sessions tomorrow under the chairmanship of Dr. Magnus Hirschfeld of Germany.

The problems they will attempt to solve include:

Political and economic sexual equality of the sexes—how to obtain it; liberation of marriage and divorce from church and state influence; birth control; eugenic marriage selection; protection of women with illegitimate children and their children; prevention of prostitution and social diseases; proper instruction fo. children regarding sex, and the classification of sexual inversion as illness instead of crime.

Dr. Hannah Stone will speak on results obtained by the birth control clinic of New York, and Dr. Abraham Stone of New York will lecture on "Sexual Disharmony."

WIDOW POLLAK BALKS AT PAYING THE UNDERTAKER

Mrs. Dorothy Pollak who was acquitted recently of the murder of her husband, Joseph Pollak, is now in difficulties with the undertaker.

Mrs. Pollak appeared in Coroner Frank J. Walsh's office yesterday to collect some jewelry belonging to the husband she killed, and to protest the turning over of $400 in checks and $163 in cash to John Eudeikis, the undertaker. Accompanying her were relatives and a lawyer.

The checks and cash were turned over to Eudeikis on an order allegedly approved by the widow. Supported by her relatives and attorney, Mrs. Pollak denied issuing any such order, but Eudeikis countered with an offer to produce the alleged order. Mrs. Pollak added that she had ordered only a $600 funeral, but Eudeikis asserted she had asked for a more elaborate one, and still owed part of the bill. Coroner Walsh announced that he would let the Probate court handle the matter.

JUST ASLEEP AT THE SWITCH

—THAT'S ALL!

PUT out a model, style, design or idea which the public doesn't want and it's just another dud.

It doesn't make any difference whether it's an automobile, radio set, wallpaper, or a newspaper —you can't fall asleep at the switch.

You don't panic the public with just a gadget. You need more than a few dabs of paint on the old job to get buyers excited. To keep up with the parade you've got to give the public what it wants.

Because they haven't kept up with the growth of Chicago and suburbs, some Chicago newspapers try to capitalize their failures at the expense of advertisers. Because they fall short of delivering the reader interest, the power to get a message across to enough families in this market, they make a virtue out of being less influential, less appealing, less effective than they were before the war.

In 1917—fifteen years ago—the Daily News reached 57 per cent of the families in Chicago and suburbs. The American had a coverage of 42 per cent. The Tribune had a coverage of 36 per cent.

New ideas, new principles, new standards came with the great expansion of the post-war years. Chicago and its suburbs increased from 748,136 families to 1,157,677—55 per cent. Here was tremendous growth but only one Chicago daily newspaper kept pace.

The News, first among Chicago newspapers in 1917, slumped to a coverage of 35 per cent. The American dropped to 40 per cent.

The Tribune increased its coverage of Chicago and suburbs to 55 per cent. Every other daily newspaper in 1917 slipped, merged, or went out of business.

A newspaper grows as it serves its community. Only by printing the real news, accurately and promptly, does a newspaper get and hold readers. Only by reporting the facts, fearlessly and completely, without knuckling under or catering to some special interests, does a newspaper become a respected authority. Only by defending the best interests of its community, putting public welfare above immediate profit, does a newspaper become a helpful friend, eagerly welcomed every day.

To live and grow, a newspaper must feel and reflect the daily interests of its community. And it hasn't done that if it has less acceptance, less prestige, less coverage than it had 15 years ago!

You can't cut down on news content without cutting reader interest. You can't cheapen a newspaper in quality and in quantity and not lose in response from readers. If a newspaper becomes something just to glance over, in time it doesn't even get the glance.

The Tribune does not sell readers publicity handouts, official propaganda, or writeups of falsehoods. It brings to readers the important news of the day, gathered by competent reporters, regularly employed, and taking orders from no one but the Tribune.

Because the Tribune prints the full facts without bias or penury, it is the most closely and widely read newspaper in Chicago and suburbs. Because it prints reliable news of interest to people in all walks of life, it is the most effective advertising medium for all advertisers seeking to reach all levels of family income.

FAMILIES AND DAILY NEWSPAPER CIRCULATIONS IN METROPOLITAN CHICAGO

Note. Circulations are averages for six months' periods ended March 31, and for city and suburbs only.

After all, if you don't reach people, you don't sell them. And no newspaper with less coverage than it had before the war has the circulation and the influence to arouse the million-plus families in this market.

GERMANS STRIKE BACK AT BRITAIN IN ARMS DISPUTE

London's Rebuke Angers Von Papen's Cabinet.

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Both the government and the press today assailed the British statement on Germany's demand for equality in armaments, in which the London government took the position that Berlin had no legal right to seek revision of her military status outside the world disarmament conference. The government has decided there will be no formal reply to the note, nor will Germany be represented at the sessions of the bureau of the conference which opens on Wednesday.

"It goes without saying," said a government spokesman, "that we cannot accept the reasoning of the British memorandum, according to which Germany of her own accord and without compelling reason raised a political issue of vast implications.

"The unfriendly form which clothes the charge that we proceeded in a manner tactically wrong and calculated to disturb the harmony between nations does not establish the truthfulness of this charge."

Criticize British Position.

German newspapers, especially those of the extreme right, sharply criticized the British position, although journals of moderate political opinion tempered their criticism with recriminations against the internal and foreign policies of the present German government.

"We can only advise the English government to take its educational efforts elsewhere, perhaps to Africa or the South Sea islands," said the Nationalist Boersen Zeitung. "The government should stand fast and not permit itself to be blocked by England."

Der Abend, a Socialist paper, deplored Germany's foreign policies, saying they tended to isolate the nation, and criticised internal conditions, touching particularly on the activities of Adolf Hitler's Nazi storm troops and the steel helmet organization of war veterans. These associations, together with the Nationalist newspapers, furnish material to jingo elements in other nations, Der Abend said.

Nazis Are Chuckling.

Der Angriff, organ of Hitler's Nazis, said the British action constituted another reversal for Chancellor von Papen, and added: "Only a Nazi government can possibly rectify internal and foreign policies."

An authorized government commentator, referring to the reported suggestion by Premier Herriot of France that an international investigation be made into Germany's "clandestine armaments," said:

"Any German government would and should be whipped like a mangy dog if it permitted foreign powers to exercise such control in Germany."

Hint U. S. Backs Britain.

PARIS, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Authoritative American sources understand that Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania and Ambassador Walter E. Edge told Premier Herriot today that the people of the United States are inclined to believe Germany's recent move for equality in armaments was inopportune and the American view was similar to the view of Great Britain.

The senator and ambassador discussed disarmament and the action taken by the German government at a luncheon given by the premier and attended also by J. Theodore Marriner, counsellor to the American embassy, and Minister of War Joseph Paul-Boncour and other French government officials.

The Americans informed Herriot that the United States government stands for progressive disarmament and the sanctity of treaties.

There was no discussion of war debts.

U. S. Regrets German Stand.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—(AP)—In so far as the German demand for arms equality in Europe affects the course of world disarmament efforts, it is viewed by this government with keen regret.

This position was expressed today by a high official after press reports from Paris told that Ambassador Edge and Senator Reed of Pennsylvania had laid before Premier Herriot views closely according with those of Great Britain and regarding the German move as inopportune.

However, beyond effect on the scheduled resumption of the disarmament conference and on the American proposal for a general one-third cut in armaments, it was emphasized that such a European political problem as the German was not for American consideration.

Not Inspired by U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 19.—Authoritative quarters today flatly denied that the answer to the German demand for equality in armaments was inspired by a consultation with the United States government. The only communication passing between Britain and America was a copy of the reply to Germany, it was stated.

President Eamon de Valera of the Irish Free State changed trains here early today on his way to Geneva to preside at the meeting of the league of nations' council on Wednesday.

PADLOCK PERIL FACES CENTRAL PARK CASINO

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Attorneys for the Central Park Casino, it became known today, have declined to file a bond guaranteeing that the management will not violate the prohibition law and are prepared to stand trial on the government's padlock suit brought as a result of a raid last June.

No liquor was seized at the Casino and the United States attorney's office is to demand a padlock on the ground that waiters sold "set-ups."

In the belief that a padlock cannot legally be granted on that plea, it is understood the government's offer to accept a bond has been declined.

GERMAN ARMY ROLLS WOODEN CANNONS INTO ACTION IN WAR GAMES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 19.—The "battle for Berlin" began today in the first big German army maneuver in three years. Sham warfare is being conducted in the area between the rivers Oder and Warthe. President von Hindenburg will view the maneuvers tomorrow.

Fifteen thousand of the republic's army of 100,000 men are engaged. All branches of service are in the field. The cavalry has the leading rôle. Lacking airplanes because of the restrictions of the Versailles treaty, military leaders are testing the value of cavalry reconnoitering under modern conditions of warfare. Wooden cannons, with stove pipes for barrels and cardboard covered trucks representing heavy artillery and tanks, which are also forbidden by the treaty, are used by the river armies.

Encounters today were confined to minor clashes and reconnoitering by cavalry patrols. The main bodies will meet tomorrow. Thirteen foreign military attachés are witnessing the war games, including Lieut. Col. Jacob Wuest and Maj. John Hineman of the United States. Attachés of France, Belgium, Poland and Rumania will not participate as German army officers have never invited them to their maneuvers. Extensive maneuvers by the German navy in the North sea were concluded today. They were based on the defense of mercantile ships as represented by a number of chartered vessels.

'Blue Devils' Will Welcome French Visitors to Fair

French visitors to the 1933 fair will be welcomed by members of Les Diables Bleus de Chicago—otherwise the Blue Devils of Chicago—a new club whose organization was announced yesterday. Its members, former French subjects, will wear uniforms resembling those of the famous war time "Blue Devils," as the French Alpine chasseurs were called. An inaugural party will be held by the club at Medinah Athletic club Thursday evening. Rene Weiller, French consul, will attend. Henri Hiltz, 930 Airdrie place, is president of the club. Mrs. Adolphus Peine, 4300 Lake Shore drive, will be in charge of social arrangements.

Harry Jensen and Wife Open Court Battle Today

Harry Jensen, labor leader and former head of the state department of pardons and paroles, will face his wife, Barbara, in Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady's court at Waukegan today. Both Jensen and his wife are seeking a divorce. He charges cruelty and habitual drunkenness and she charges cruelty and adultery. Jensen must also explain why he is $490 in arrears in temporary alimony. Jensen lives at Gilmer, near Lake Zurich, in Lake county.

NOW SCIENCE TELLS WHY BRAN IS SO GOOD FOR HEALTH

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Has "Bulk" and Vitamin B; Also Healthful Iron

By using Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, millions of people have overcome common constipation, and the headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so frequently result.

New laboratory tests show ALL-BRAN supplies two things needed to overcome temporary and recurring constipation: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines, Vitamin B to help tone the intestinal tract.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Within the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently it clears the intestines of wastes.

Further experiments prove ALL-BRAN provides twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.

Eat this delicious cereal and avoid pills and drugs. They cause artificial action, and often lead to harmful habits.

Try two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN daily—sufficient to overcome most types of constipation. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN has a delicious, nut-sweet flavor. Enjoy as a cereal with milk or cream, or use in making fluffy bran muffins, breads, omelets, etc. Recipes on the red-and-green package. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

G. A. R. GIVES DAY TO VISITATION OF LINCOLN SHRINES

Business Sessions Start Tomorrow.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 19.—(AP)—The lure of Lincoln shrines, in which Springfield is rich, today split the activities of the Union veterans and their affiliated organizations here for their 66th encampment.

But although the business of dedicating trees and tablets divided their attention, it was united again at the modest white house on South Eighth street from which their "Father Abraham" went to Washington as President.

Man after man of the Grand Army of the Republic visited the old Lincoln home. They came in automobiles, not on foot as they used to do before their bodies failed their spirits. They paid their respects, paused to peer at a tablet mounted today by Illinois members of the Woman's Relief corps, and passed on to other shrines—the old Sangamon county courthouse, where Lincoln practiced law, his old office and his tomb.

Welcomed to City.

It was their last good opportunity to meander Springfield's streets, for their first semi-official meeting was held tonight. Welcome was extended by Mayor Andy Hall, state director of public health, for Illinois; Mayor John W. Kapp Jr., for Springfield, and by Commander Henry C. First of Rock Island for the department of Illinois.

Tomorrow the veterans will visit Camp Butler, a confederate prison camp in civil war days and now a national cemetery. At night Commander Samuel P. Town will hold his reception and ball.

Business Starts Wednesday.

The G. A. R. will get down to business Wednesday. Chief item will be selection of the 1933 encampment site. St. Paul, runner up for the honor this year, has the best organized bid, its signs are the only ones in evidence, and its financial guarantee has been posted for a year.

The Woman's Relief corps dedicated a tree on the old Sangamon county courthouse lawn today to the memory of John B. Inman of Springfield, commander in chief in 1925, who died here in 1929.

Sons of union veterans and their auxiliary presented a tablet of Lincoln's Gettysburg address to the Lincoln library. It is their custom at each encampment.

Issues Writ for J. C. Wahl, Ex-Official of Pen Company

Superior Judge Joseph Sabath issued an attachment yesterday for John C. Wahl, once a $25,000 a year vice president of the Wahl Pen company, when he failed to appear to show cause why he should not be held in contempt of court for failure to pay $6,640 in alimony arrears to his former wife, Mrs. June E. Wahl, 517 Oakdale avenue. At a previous hearing Wahl pleaded poverty. Mrs. Wahl won a divorce in 1926 and was awarded $400 a month alimony.

MEMORIAL DAY COMMITTEE IS ASKED FOR CITY

A proposed ordinance providing for the creation of a civic committee which would control future Memorial day observances in Chicago has been prepared by Corporation Counsel Sexton for submission to the city council on Sept. 23.

Under the provisions of the ordinance the mayor would be chairman of the civic committee. Among the other members would be three aldermen, the presidents of the Lincoln park and south park boards, a G. A. R. veteran, and representatives of the American Legion, Spanish-American War Veterans, Gold Star Mothers, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The ordinance would not restrict the activities of individual organizations, but would place the committee in charge of making all arrangements for the Memorial day parade. The movement for creation of the committee was started by Maj. Gen. of Militia Roy D. Keehn.

CLEVELAND G. O. P. LEADER ON TRIAL OVER SHORTAGE

Cleveland, Sept. 19—(AP)—Maurice Maschke, nationally prominent Republican leader, and five other Cleveland men active in business and politics were summoned to trial here today on charges involving an alleged embezzlement of $177,000 from the Cuyahoga county treasury.

For two decades Maschke, the dominant figure in Cleveland Republican politics, has been the target for scores of violent political attacks, but the embezzlement case marks the first time his personal integrity has been openly challenged.

Co-defendants with the veteran Maschke are Councilman Herman H. Finkle, former Deputy County Treasurer Alex Bernstein, his brother, Charles, Henry A. Beckerman, and H. H. Feisman. Alex Bernstein alone faced a charge of actual embezzlement. The others were charged with aiding and abetting him.

The shortages mentioned in the indictments were discovered by state examiners several weeks ago, but other auditors later expressed belief the total might reach $500,000 or more.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

A SCANDALOUS WASTE CONTINUES.

No better demonstration could be given of the resistance to retrenchment which the demand for tax relief is encountering and will continue to encounter than is disclosed in a TRIBUNE dispatch on navy yards and army posts. Both the navy and army authorities have repeatedly reported that many of these establishments are unnecessary. Recommendations for their elimination in the interest of economy and efficiency have been made repeatedly both by the officials directly in touch with the facts and by several Presidents, including Mr. Hoover. Last year it was announced that the departments were making a new survey and subsequently the navy department reported that twenty navy yards and shore properties could be abandoned, while the war department proposed to shut down ten posts.

But there the matter seems to have stopped cold. The screws had been put on. Every locality about to lose its bit of pork got busy. The reasons for these eliminations were familiar and incontrovertible. The retention of such establishments had been a scandal for years. In the present critical state of the nation's finance and of the overburdened taxpayers it has become worse than a scandal. Yet Mr. Hoover did not recommend their elimination and they were budgeted as usual.

Now Mr. Hoover announces that he expects a half billion cut on executive expenditures for next year. But what reasonable expectation can the taxpayers cherish in the face of the record on these notorious superfluities? We have had too much lip service to economy. Both congress and the President have yielded to political considerations and to selfish local pressure in spite of the critical need for immediate reduction.

The warning is plain to the nation. The organization for relief must be extended as rapidly as possible. The demand for immediate retrenchment must be made imperative. There will be no relief from the taxes which are the chief obstruction to national recovery until it becomes politically fatal to refuse it. That will come when the demand for retrenchment has been organized throughout the nation into a political force so powerful that logrolling politics, bureaucratic lobbying and the selfishness of local beneficiaries of waste are outfought and defeated.

A YEAR'S LIVING FOR A MONTH'S WORK.

In North Dakota Mr. Henning has found the citizenry in a political ferment. They are damning every one and everything except themselves, an omission which is startling in view of their responsibility for much of the trouble in which they now find themselves.

Many of the farmers of North Dakota, to be sure, are beginning to learn the gospel of diversification, but the growing of wheat still plays an impressive part in North Dakota's economy. That is to say, North Dakotans are still lazy. Wheat is the lazy man's crop. It requires no cultivation once it is seeded. It is impossible to devote more than a month's time to growing wheat. The North Dakota wheat farmer, accordingly, expects to make a 12 months' living out of a month's work. That month is expected to produce enough cash revenue to provide an automobile and the gasoline it consumes, to build and maintain roads and schools, and to pay for food, clothing and fuel, if not, indeed, a winter vacation in Florida.

If a man is lazy he and his family must expect to suffer, but the Dakota wheat farmers lack the intellectual honesty to face that fact. They have been encouraged in their folly by their politicians. These gentlemen began to tell the farmers years ago that the trouble lay with the middlemen. If only the middlemen could be pushed out of the way the farmers would receive so much more for their wheat that all would be merry. The state therefore went into the elevator business, with disastrous results. The wheat farmers drove private traders in wheat out of the state, never realizing that in so doing they were removing the men whose business it was to find some one to whom to sell what the farmers had grown. At every step the North Dakotans moved toward their own destruction. By substituting state business for private business they removed taxpayers from their state and concentrated an increasing portion of the tax load upon the backs of farmers. For efficient commercial handling of grain they substituted inefficient state socialism.

As if that and similar experiences had not been sufficient, a bill which would declare a three year moratorium on payments of interest, principal, and taxes is to be passed upon by the voters this autumn. Whether this kind of law is constitutional is beside the point. Its significance lies in the light it throws upon the moral fiber of the people and their capacity for thought. If enacted the bill will inevitably drive all capital out of the state as rapidly as capital can flee, precisely as a similar confiscation has made it next to impossible for Russia to obtain credit on favorable terms. Unless North Dakotans think that their present borrowings are all the money they will ever require from outside the state, the scheme is bound to prove disastrous.

A state which regards laziness as a virtue and political quackery as statesmanship is now considering an experiment in thievery. And, of course, the citizens continue to look to Washington for salvation. Government grants and loans, taken from the earnings of the industrious, are to be showered upon the wheat farmers. Unless it is the purpose of the government to encourage shiftlessness and dishonesty it is difficult to see any reason for extending relief to these people. They don't deserve it and there is ample reason to fear that if they get it they will refuse to repay what has been lent them.

FULL PUBLICITY.

The progressive revelations of financial jugglery in the various Insull corporations have already reached a stage which challenges attention not merely by the public but by the authorities. The fall of the vast structure erected by an overweening and reckless ambition for power, unchecked by the restraints which were supposed to exist for the protection of investors, has brought ruin to thousands of innocent individuals. It has been a major disaster of the country's history, having consequences of the most serious and probably lasting nature, socially and economically. The full nature of this disaster, its motives, causes, operations, and responsible participants, must be exposed. Disclosure is a duty of the authorities and of the newspapers. It is an unescapable duty to the direct victims of the catastrophe and to the public, which must be protected so far as possible from any repetition of the wrongs committed.

We call especial attention at this time to the reported existence of a list of favored individuals who were permitted, it is alleged, to purchase stock in Insull Utility Investment, Inc., at $12 a share when the public was offered it at $30 and over. This favoritism involved considerations of a nature which the public has a right to examine and considerations of personal embarrassment should not prevent publication. If, as has been rumored, this favoritism in some cases was intended to influence publicity or suppress it, it obviously calls for exposure and special condemnation. The responsible press will demand that any writer commenting on financial affairs who may have accepted favor of this or any other kind should be known.

COURT VACATION.

The opening of the Circuit and Superior courts after the summer vacations finds nearly forty thousand cases waiting on the doorstep of justice. There are thirty judges to dispose of them. The summer vacation runs ten weeks. To previous suggestions that it is too long it has been asserted that the lawyers are primarily responsible, owing to the charms of the links and other allurements of summer time which the judicial conscience would resist if left to itself. We do not think the alibi very impressive. If the judges were determined to keep the wheels of justice moving they could do it without depriving themselves or the lawyers of a reasonable vacation. The duties of both are exacting and all work and no play would make a dull judge or lawyer or a dead one. But, except teachers, no other profession indulges in such long rests, e. g., the doctors, who have as arduous a life as any lawyer or judge, if not more so.

The public's interest is clear in this matter. The greatest weakness of our law is its delay. The long vacation not only slows down justice but by overloading dockets probably reduces deliberation and efficiency. A month is sufficient rest for any competent judge or lawyer; the rest is self-indulgence and not only litigants but the taxpayers pay for it. A judge is paid for twelve months in the year. A month off is enough. Lawyers who want more can distribute their work accordingly. The courts have no duty to guarantee a litigant the services of any particular lawyer by postponing action until he sees fit to appear in court.

Editorial of the Day

MR. HURLEY AND THE PRESS.

[Illinois State Register.]

Arthur Sears Henning, one of the ablest political writers in the country, told an interesting story under a Washington dateline in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Wednesday which touches a delicate nerve center in our national life.

According to this story, Drew Pearson, a Washington reporter, was discharged by his employer upon complaint of Secretary of War Patrick Jay Hurley because the reporter's writings were critical of and unsatisfactory to the distinguished war secretary.

Reciting how other reporters have been penalized for not "coloring their stuff" in favor of certain officials or groups, Mr. Henning says:

"These incidents have focused attention on the multitudinous influences that may be brought to bear by officialdom to control the press. Such influences take an exceedingly wide range. Some correspondents and their editors and publishers are content to close their eyes to what is going on in consideration of largesses of exclusive news of what the administration has done or is about to do. Others are kept in hand by means of social blandishments, such as invitations to White House dinners, week-ends at the President's camp, etc."

The most interesting assertion that Mr. Henning makes is that "a correspondent whose reportings are displeasing to the administration is given to understand that his discharge will be produced if he does not mend his ways. . . . A Washington correspondent cannot be independent unless he has an independent editor and publisher behind him."

This is rather a serious challenge to the Fourth Estate. It was courageous of Mr. Henning to write, and for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to print, the story about Mr. Pearson and Secretary Hurley.

Secretary Hurley says Pearson is a liar and the fur is flying. The secretary says he has never made an effort to obtain favorable or to prevent unfavorable press comment.

Mr. Henning has not told half of the story. Newspaper editors and publishers, as a rule, respect the ethics of the profession. They want honest reporting and encourage honest reporters.

In this day of highly organized politics, however, there is danger to the newspapers and the public in the exercise of powerful authority over newspaper writers by those who seek to profit by the suppression or "coloring" of news.

The recent Republican and Democratic national conventions in Chicago present a striking illustration of this situation. Roosevelt delegates from downstate to the Democratic convention could tell a very interesting story. A properly conducted inquiry on the part of some of the powerful metropolitan newspapers would reveal some surprising facts.

Mr. Henning's interesting revelations should not go unchallenged. If officials in Washington and elsewhere are seeking to control or "color" news through influences suggested by Mr. Henning, or otherwise, the first great power which should assert itself in no uncertain terms is the press itself.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

A CHROMIUM STEEL ROBOT in London yesterday spoke from its iron mouth to this effect: "Look out or I will blow your hand off," and immediately shot its inventor in the hand. Well, it's probably true, this machine age is producing greater and greater wonders every day. The robot in London will probably kill his inventor yet and then invent a robot inventor that will invent still more wonderful machines that won't even need men to punch the gadgets to start 'em goin'. But there'll be just one job that men will have left when the mechanical robots have taken over all the jobs, political and otherwise—they'll never be able to take all the pins out of a new shirt. That's something that only a man can do and it takes him hours and hours. But then, you say, mechanical robots don't wear shirts, his shirts will be riveted and even a robot can find a rivet. There's something in that. The robots win.

A WEIRD TALE was bruited about yesterday in the public press of a four legged fish that was seen walking ashore. But the Democrats say proudly that wasn't no fish, naw, that was Bill Borah crawling into the Roosevelt camp.

HOW HE MUST HAVE SUFFERED!

[From the Sabbath Trib.'s Auto News.]

SPEAKING OF SNAPPY COMEBACKS, if anybody was, a Chicago husband appearing in court to explain his nonpayment of alimony to his wife said he had no money, but he would give her his single piece of property, a lot in the cemetery. "I'll take it," said the lady quickly, "provided he's in it." And however much you may deplore domestic discord you must admit that was pretty cute.

THINGS HAS CHANGED.

Sir: I ain't communed with you fer quite a spell on account of me workin' on a farm over here in Indiana but when you was gallivantin' down in Washington I threatened to write you an' ask you to bring me back one of them medals that the government's been givin' to people fer flyin' across the ocean an' cuttin 'up atoms an' doin' other things that ain't gonna do nobody no good, on account of me wantin' one fer the man that runs the grain elevator over here. There ain't nobody that deserves a medal more'n the elevator man 'cause he's a regular institution. I was born over here an' I can remember when they was three important institutions outside of Jim Watson. One was the country doctor an' another'n was the Saturday night bath and the other'n was the elevator man. But my how things has changed. There ain't no country doctor no more on account of him movin' to where there's a golf course an' the baths ain't like they was when you took 'em in the horse trough in the summer an' in the wash tub in the winter an' had to heat the water on the kitchen stove but the elevator man's still here. He can't get away an' even if he could, he ain't got no place to go. Honest, he's got more troubles than Herb Hoover an' if he ain't explainin' to a woman (the elevator man, not Herb) that there ain't no hen that'll lay more'n a egg a day, even if she et Laymore Egg Mash (the hen et it, not the woman), he's showin' how to grow two pigs where only one growed before or else he's tryin' to explain to the farmers why wheat ain't worth more'n forty cents when the government told 'em it'd be worth more'n a dollar if they held it. An' say, he ain't got much use for that preacher fella that runs the government's wheat company an' there ain't no preacher that oughta hear the things that elevator man said about him. I says to him, I says "ain't the farm board helpin' the farmers none?" an he says "naw, all them farm board guys is doin' is helpin' themselves an' say," he says to me, "ever since I've been readin' the bible I've been thinkin' that the manna that them Israelites lived on fer forty years is just another word fer farmers an' everybody's been livin' off 'em ever since." So please mister, will you try to get me one of them medals fer the elevator man?

THAT OTTAWA FELLA.

DIRGE.

And now our Jimmy Walker

EOLUS.

AND IF THAT LONDON ROBOT, Alpha, is as smart as he seems to be the British ought to grab him and put him in the cabinet. Maybe he could do something about the increase in the dole, the war debt things, and persuade Gandhi to sit up and take a little nourishment. And Alpha would be a wow to send over to Ireland and smooth things out there.

IN FACT, ALPHA seems to be the very man we're looking for over here. We've got a good mind to vote for him for President. R. H. L.

NEW USES FOR INSULIN.

INSULIN has not proved to be a cure for diabetes, using the word cure in the proper sense. If a person has a case of genuine diabetes, he cannot take a course of insulin and so thoroughly repair his organic defects as that thereafter he will remain normal in his capacity for handling sugar. It has also failed to meet public health expectations. The death rate from diabetes has increased rather than decreased since the use of insulin became general.

Although it has failed in these two particulars its discovery has been of very great service. It has enormously increased the comfort, security, and working efficiency of diabetics. Many who make use of insulin are able to keep in apparent good health, to eat enough to satisfy their needs, and to work efficiently. It has proved especially helpful in promoting the welfare of diabetic children.

The closer study of diabetics stimulated by the discovery and use of insulin has taught us many valuable points about the way the body stores sugar, how and where it is converted back and forth, and the part contributed by certain organs to these changes. It has shown us the significance of changes in blood sugar, and especially the importance of deficiency of blood sugar.

Incidentally, studies growing out of the use of insulin have thrown much light on a group of disorders which were formerly called acidosis, some of which were serious, and all of which were the cause of uncomfortable symptoms. The danger now is that enthusiasm in the use of insulin, especially in nondiabetic disorders, may get the better of judgment.

In three numbers of the Quarterly Cumulative Index of Medicine there appeared reference to 32 diseases or conditions for which, besides diabetes, insulin is now being used. However, there was some overlapping. Among these were:

Heart disease, kidney disease, disease of the pancreas, high blood pressure, pellagra, malnutrition, underweight, liver disease, diphtheria, true rheumatoid arthritis, morphine addiction, alcohol addiction, polyuria, asthenia, due to emaciation; stomach disorders, exophtholmic goiter, gastric and duodenal ulcers, grave anemia, sluggish liver, tuberculosis, severe vomiting of pregnancy, acute and chronic urticaria, deficiency in vitamin B, emaciation following gall bladder infections, gall stones, malaria, postoperative mastoiditis, emaciation in babies, pruritus in jaundice, and also as a local application in accessible cancers and ulcers.

None of these conditions is related to diabetes. It is true that in many it is used as an accessory. For instance, it is given with dextrose in conditions where sugar is needed but it cannot be given unless some agent, such as insulin, is given to assist in handling. Another illustration is its use as an aid in promoting nutrition in those various disorders where emaciation and underweight contribute to the disease picture.

However, most of these extradiabetic uses of insulin are based upon a rather vague notion as to its effect on acidosis and as to the part acidosis plays in the symptoms of the major disease. In the course of time the efficacy of some of these uses will be established. No doubt most of them will be discontinued.

GIRL TOO WEIGHTY.

R. L. writes: 1. I am a girl of 13, 5 feet 5 inches tall, and weigh 135 pounds. I have large bones. I am quite healthy and exercise a lot. About how much should I weigh?

2. Is walking a good thing for the reduction of weight?

REPLY.

1. About 120, but the size of the bones has something to do with the weight.

2. It is excellent, but unless you are on your guard your walk will increase your appetite. You will eat more food and, in consequence, will not lose weight.

NIGHTMARE.

Mrs. A. M. C. writes: In the last few years I have been having nightmare terribly, generally when I have been working hard or worrying over something. After I yell I then tremble violently and later become hysterical. Is there any cure? It is hard on my family to be awakened by that loud hoot and I must find some way to stop it if possible. I ate a finger roll about 11 p. m., after I had finished a kitchen full of dishes, and also drank a glass of water. I did not have butter on the finger roll and had supper at 7 p. m., at which I ate a slice of beef, a potato and gravy, a dish of string beans, lemon pudding, and a paper thin cookie. No coffee, but water. I had coffee at breakfast. I generally have it three times a day.

REPLY.

Nightmare comes from fear rather than from food. If you will not worry and can get fear out of your mental makeup you can eat finger rolls and much else besides. Unless you do, dieting will not help.

CAUSES OF BOILS.

D. H. writes: What is the cause and cure for boils?

REPLY.

You are interested in learning why you have boils and not in why the other fellow has them. The problem of boil prevention is individual and personal. What have you done to solve your problem? Do you have diabetes? Is your diet overly rich in sugars and starches? Are you too fat? Do you work in grease or oils? Do your hands and clothes get greasy in your job? Do you keep your skin clean? Do you properly protect it against scratches and other injuries, as well as against bacteria, dirt, and grease?

You pitched your problem at the other fellow. Back to you it bounces.

SECURE RE-ENTRY PERMIT.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—[Friend of the People.]—I came to this country from England in 1924 and the following year took out my first papers and was told that at the end of seven years those papers would become valid. I did not take out my second papers. Will I have to take out my first papers over again in order to go to England for about two years or longer and can I get a reentry ticket without getting my first papers? How long can I stay in England? My husband was born in this country. He also plans on going along. B. D.

The writer may be advised that a reentry permit may be issued to an alien who has been lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence, and who desires to proceed abroad on a visit, whether or not such person has declared her intention to become a citizen of the United States. Reentry permits, when issued, are good for one year, but may be extended for periods of six months each upon application and upon a showing of good cause. Application form may be obtained by the alien involved at this office.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Can a pawnbroker sell a pledged article within less than one year? C. P.

The state law provides "no personal property pawned or pledged shall be sold . . . within one year from . . . default . . . unless by the written consent of such pawner or pledgor." Hence the sale can be held within the year where the owner so consented in advance, but in absence of such consent the sale cannot be held until one year after default.

Does it make a difference in the above if the individual carries enough stock to fill daily or weekly orders before receipt of those orders? J. Y.

SEPTEMBER 20, 1916.

LONDON.—The situation of the Rumanian armies on both the fronts, in Transylvania and Dobrudja, is giving rise to some apprehension, although news of the latest events comes largely from enemy sources, and therefore is taken with certain reserve. Monastir, the Bulgarians' southern base in Serbia, is being evacuated by Czar Ferdinand's forces, according to reports from Athens and Saloniki.

LONDON.—A heavy downpour of rain along the western front has halted all major actions in the Somme and Verdun sectors. The French and British reports chronicle only artillery actions on the Somme and Verdun fronts and about Dixmude in Belgium. The Germans, however, broke out with five violent attacks on the Champagne front and attempted a bold stroke against Dead Man's hill, northwest of Verdun, where there has been little fighting for several weeks. The Russian contingents defending the Champagne front checked all the German attacks with screen fire, the Germans losing heavily.

ATHENS.—It is stated in the most reliable diplomatic sources here that the Austrians are preparing for the evacuation of Trieste.

BERLIN.—Taking the offensive on the Stokhod river, the Germans stormed a strong Russian bridgehead and drove the Russians across the river, the war office announced. More than 2,500 Russians were captured, as well as seventeen machine guns.

CHICAGO.—William J. Calhoun, formerly United States minister to China and celebrated as a lawyer, orator and diplomat, died at his residence, 1310 Astor street. The illness which caused his death began after he had delivered a Fourth of July oration at Wheaton, his summer home. A stroke of paralysis followed upon the exhaustion incident to that speech in the extremely hot weather. Mr. Calhoun was born in Pittsburgh in 1848. While a mere lad he struck out for himself, making his way to Poland, O. Here he became acquainted with the McKinley family, and he and William McKinley, the future President, were boyhood chums.

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Helen Evers, considered the beauty of the so-called blackmail syndicate broken up by a raid of secret service detectives on the Tyson apartments in Grand boulevard Sept. 16, was given her liberty on bonds of $25,000.

CHICAGO.—Lieut. Bruce D. Smith of Battery C, the "millionaire" organization which went to the Mexican border from the north shore as a part of the Illinois National Guard, returned to his home in Lake Forest last night on a stretcher. He is a victim of paratyphoid fever. Lieut. Smith, son of the late Byron L. Smith, head of the Northern Trust bank, was one of the athletes of the artillery. Two weeks ago he became ill and was sent to the base hospital at San Antonio, where his condition became so grave that his mother, Mrs. Byron Smith, was summoned.

CHICAGO.—With the incorporation in Springfield of the John B. Murphy Memorial association the first step was taken toward a $500,000 memorial to Dr. Murphy. Dr. W. A. Evans, health editor of THE TRIBUNE, and one of the incorporators, said last night: "The cost of the memorial will be $500,000. Provision will be made for maintenance. Whatever form the memorial will take it will be of lasting and practical service to surgery and mankind. It is fitting that such a memorial should be erected in Chicago to Dr. Murphy, because Chicago is one of the greatest surgical centers in the world, and it is such largely because of the life work of Dr. Murphy."

POLICE BUREAU OF PROSECUTION.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—The writer wishes to commend the editorial in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of Sept. 4 which indorses the suggestion of Prof. Raymond Moley of Columbia that a legal bureau be established as a police agency for examining criminal suspects.

It was not necessary, however, for THE TRIBUNE to go to New York for the idea. In July this journal published a plan for the establishment of a bureau of prosecution within the Chicago police department. It was similar to Prof. Moley's in that it recommended the setting up of such an agency under the supervision of a lawyer-police official.

A mere legal bureau as outlined by Prof. Moley and recommended by THE TRIBUNE is not sufficient, however. Its functions must be administrative as well as advisory. The New York police department has a legal bureau, but since its police attorneys occupy themselves with all the petty litigation in which a police department becomes involved the bureau constitutes a mere branch of the corporation counsel's office and exercises little or no influence on police procedure in difficult investigations and prosecutions.

A plan for such a police bureau, moreover, cannot ignore the relationships of police work and the work of the state's attorney. As police administration is laid out and as the prosecuting agencies function at present there is a wide gap between what should be two closely knit units of law enforcement, not to mention the lack of supervision and method in numerous cases in which the interests of the police overlap those of the state's attorney, and vice versa.

So long as most prosecutions require the coöperative effort of police and prosecutors at some stage or other there will be a need for a coöperative plan of action and for a centralized supervision of their activities. Such supervision is necessary in war, for example, or the artillery would be shooting the trousers off the friendly infantry several times a day.

WHAT A MAN!

CALGARY, Alberta, Sept. 1.—For the last forty-nine years it has happened that I have seldom been without some kind of a panacea to offer, and usually it has been the correct one—or led to it.

Any man, however dull, if his heart is right, is liable, once in a while, to get an idea from a lightning mind—namely: God's—and such an illumination differs from a little flashlight.

For example, some of the chief ideas to which I have had the good fortune to contribute essentially during my lifetime—panaceas that worked—were as follows: The invention of the airplane, the bag suspended military gas mask, and the deep faced automobile bumper; the first Christian Unity league in the world; the starting of the movements that ended in the Pan-American union and the federal reserve banking system; a new theory of evolution; fourteen points of a new evangel; the philosophy of integration, and the overthrow of Einstein's theory of relativity.

All of these seemed to fall at first, but now all have won and are still winning.

Therefore I am in hopes that a Standard Coinage in a World Brotherhood will be an accomplished fact before Oct. 29, 1933.

THE FREEPORT DEBATE.

Mount Carroll, Ill., Sept. 6.—That the news columns of THE TRIBUNE are open to genuine unfairness is again amply demonstrated by Arthur Evans' report in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of the Reeves-Upshaw debate held in Freeport. Not only is there almost no account of Upshaw's speech, a gross breach of honest reporting, but there is positive misrepresentation in the statement that the crowd "gave most of its applause to Col. Reeves' wet arguments." The applause for Upshaw's thrusts was widespread and repeated, while Reeves, who was obliged to read his speech, was applauded infrequently. Because of his relative lack of skill in public debate as compared with Upshaw, Reeves gave little opportunity to his supporters to applaud.

The wet colonel let himself into a trap of his own making during the rebuttal. Attempting to show that people are concerned only about the repeal of the 18th and not about other constitutional amendments, he called for a show of hands on the repeal of the 14th, 15th, and 19th amendments. "There was a generous sprinkling of hands, however, for the repeal of the 18th amendment. Then Upshaw, calling for fair play, asked for a vote of those in support of the 18th amendment. The response was genuinely a surprise to the group of middle-of-the-road citizens with whom I stood, the estimate being probably 3 to 1 in favor of the support of the 18th amendment.

FROM A SPECIAL DELIVERY MESSENGER.

Chicago, Aug. 30.—The postoffice department requires the special delivery messengers to provide themselves with automobiles and with full uniforms. Now that we have gone to the expense of buying good cars which cost us several hundred dollars, and complete uniforms at $42, the government has decided to put substitute carriers in our places. The messengers of Chicago have served the public faithfully and well for years and years, and by virtue of their long and varied experience they are naturally more efficient than the substitute carriers would be. Most messengers still owe for their cars. Some are married and others are supporting families. If we are thrown out now it will mean starvation for most of us as we'd be unable to obtain other positions at this time, whereas the sub carriers, who are under civil service, will always be given a little work by Uncle Sam even if it isn't very much. AMATEUR BOXING.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—I note with interest the efforts of the Illinois boxing commission to clean up the amateur situation. Doesn't it occur to people that this effort will be in vain and that the worthy commissioners are tackling the problem from the wrong end? Who is there who, analyzing the situation fairly, will not justify the receipt of cash instead of trinkets in such perilous economic times? Won't any one admit that even an amateur will perform better for a stipulation than for a useless bit of iron? The commissioners know full well that the way to clean up the amateur situation is from the top through the promoters, not the fighters. That some amateurs take advantage of the monetary offers and fight too often is known. That some are a sight because of this is also known by any one who frequents amateur contests. But the remedy for the situation is not forcing poor [in finances] amateurs to turn professional, but in rigid enforcement of rules and regulations and giving more attention to amateur matching so that more even contests will be the result.

TWO BURLESQUE SHOWS CLOSED BY MAYOR M'KEE

Small Girls Are Ordered Out of Cast.

SEEKS A BIG CUT

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—A reduction of the city's $10,000,000 lighting bill through possible revision of contracts with the New York Edison system is the objective of Mayor Joseph V. McKee's latest move in the direction of an aggregate saving in the 1933 budget of from $75,000,000 to $100,000,000.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Mayor Joseph V. McKee moved his siege guns to 42d street for today's good deed and knocked over a couple of flambouyantly vulgar burlesque shows, thereby ending the reign of "burlycue" at the "cross-roads of the world." At the same time the mayor ordered sixteen tiny girls removed from Earl Carroll's latest opus.

The merchants of 42d street breathed a sigh of relief and shut their eyes to such relics of Coney Island as a county seat carnival, flea circus and freak sideshow still lingering in the vicinity.

In switching from his attack on municipal extravagance to an assault on burlesque, Mayor McKee let it be known that he was "in no sense a censor." It was just that he was taking cognizance of numerous protests from the clergy, from civic associations and from property owners.

Posters Still on Display.

The famous old cross-town thoroughfare, however, remained unchanged tonight. "Miss Etta Napple from Eden" and the same undraped ladies posed on lurid posters behind protective plate glass.

New reform movements take time and a letter containing notice of revocation of the burlesque licenses will not reach the producers before tomorrow. The Eltinge and New Republic theaters will be dark then unless court action is resorted to by the impresarios.

Only last week Mayor McKee began a tilt with the corner store slot machines in an effort to curb a sweeping epidemic of neighborhood gambling. Now, the theatrical world is wondering whether he is going to swing around the corner into Broadway.

He's "Not a Censor."

"I am not a censor," explained Mr. McKee, "and the standards are set by the people themselves. But as long as I am mayor I will not allow open filth to be served to the public. If there is violation of common decency the license will be revoked, but such case will be tried separately and on its own merits."

Burlesque had a protracted hearing before License Commissioner James P. Geraghty in the days when Jimmy Walker ruled, but nothing was ever done about it. When burlesque climbed the social scale from 14th street to Times Square it dropped such ancient titles as "The Sporting Widows" or "The Ragging Cuties."

JUDGE FINNEGAN TO TRY 3,000 MARITAL CASES WITHOUT AID

Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Circuit court, at the close of his first day in the fall term of court yesterday, announced that he expects to try personally all cases in the 3,000 divorce, annulment and separate maintenance suits on his call.

"I am going to give it a try and see if it can be done," Judge Finnegan said. "Last year both Judge Trude and Judge Hood heard them. But for the first month or so I expect to size up the calendar and if it can be handled by one judge, I shall do it."

Judge Joseph Sabath and Judge James J. Kelly are confronted with 5,500 separation and divorce suits. Judge Sabath revealed in his return to the Superior court bench that he is an author in collaboration with Attorney Morris K. Levinson, of a book called "Divorce Laws of the United States, Hawaii, Alaska, Cuba, and Mexico."

GRAND JURY TO DELVE INTO FEUD SLAYING OF TWO

Troops on Guard After Shooting.

Manchester, Ky., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Investigation of the feud shooting which killed two men and wounded another here yesterday was ordered by Circuit Judge William Lewis on empanelling the grand jury here today.

Conditions causing the killings are "deplorable," Judge Lewis told the grand jury in the course of a charge that lasted an hour and a half.

Cut Troops on Guard.

A company of National Guardsmen were on duty during the day at the county courthouse from which marksmen fired yesterday the shots that killed Commonwealth Attorney Frank H. Baker and John Brockman, but as the town was quiet during the day part of the troops were ordered home. Meanwhile the court occupied itself with other cases assigned for this term.

Efforts were made to determine the antecedents of Brockman about whom little was known here, further than that he was reported to have come from Breathitt county and to have resided lately in southern Indiana. Baker was shot down in the yard of his uncle, Wiley Baker, opposite the courthouse, and Brockman, apparently running to his aid, was killed a short time later by another bullet.

Feud Leaders Leave.

Whether Brockman was involved in the ancient feud, which flared up last winter and again in the spring and to which two deaths, the burning of Baker's home and a series of arson and murder charges were attributed, could not be learned. Most of the men regarded as the principals in families long involved in the feud had left town today, lessening the feeling of tenseness which had prevailed.

Other Shot Governor Hears.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Five or six men in addition to Commonwealth's attorney, Frank Baker, and John Brockman, who were slain, and Wiley Baker, who was wounded, were shot in yesterday's outbreak at Manchester, Adjt. Gen. H. H. Denhardt reported to Gov. Ruby Laffoon today.

Others wounded were Frank Young, shot in the thigh and seriously wounded; Taylor Bolling, slightly wounded; Alfred Davidson, shot in the neck and thigh; and two or three others slightly wounded whose names he did not obtain, Mr. Denhardt said.

Gen. Denhardt returned to Frankfort this afternoon from Manchester, where he conducted an investigation of yesterday's shooting.

Recalling that thirty years ago Tom Baker, uncle of the slain Commonwealth's attorney, was shot down while surrounded by troops as protection, Gen. Denhardt said, "the governor and I were agreed that soldiers will not solve the problem. These men will shoot wherever they meet. It is up to the local authorities to work out their salvation."

Symmonds, who conducted the Salvation Army's first meeting in the United States, will be held in the Chicago citadel at 1512 West Madison street at 2:30 p. m. today. Mrs. Symmonds, who was 70 years old, died Sunday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edward Knudsen, in Racine. She had been ill for several months.

A native of England, Commandant Symmonds, nee Shirley, came to the United States when she was 15. The first open air Salvation Army meeting she held was in Philadelphia on Oct. 5, 1879. It was on her advice that officers of the army were sent here to carry on the work of the Salvation Army. Later she held important commands in Utah, Iowa, Michigan, Wisconsin, North Dakota, and Illinois. She was a corps captain in Chicago in 1905 and 1906.

Commandant Symmonds is survived by one son and five daughters.

SOCIALIST CHIEF SLATED TO HEAD SWEDISH CABINET

Conservative Regime Forced to Quit.

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Despite the fact that the Social Democrats fell short of a clear majority in the riksdag election of Sunday, their leader, Per Albin Hansson, was regarded as an almost certain choice for the premiership.

The government of Premier F. T. Hamrin resigned today when it became apparent that the Conservatives had been beaten in the election of a new lower house, that the Social Democrats had gained fourteen seats and the Agrarians nine.

There still remained a possibility that the Agrarians might assume leadership of a government, but this eventuality was considered unlikely by most political commentators.

King to Receive Leader.

King Gustav conferred with the presidents of both houses this afternoon and announced that he would receive the leader of the Social Democrats.

Hansson began his career as a clerk in a cooperative store, left that to work on a Socialist newspaper, and in 1911 was elected to a seat in the riksdag. Early in life he earned a reputation for his radical views, a reputation now diminished. His antimilitary views as reflected in the book "Comrades in Uniform" were disapproved and the volume was suppressed by the government in 1909.

In 1920, when Hialmar Branting, famous Swedish Socialist, formed his first cabinet, Hansson, or Per Albin, as he is generally known, was appointed minister of national defense. In the succeeding Socialist cabinets, under Branting and Sandler, he occupied the same office. Since 1925 Hansson has been the acknowledged leader of the Social Democrats in Sweden.

Opposition Leader Mentioned.

The possible new reign of the Social Democrats also may see the return to political prominence of Richard Sandler, now head of the central statistical bureau of the government. Sweden's new foreign minister may be Osten Unden, professor of jurisprudence at Upsala university, who has represented Sweden at league of nations sessions.

Political observers interpreted the defeat of the Conservatives as an indication that Sweden is opposed to high tariffs, though the farmers undoubtedly will demand protection.

The Swedish National Socialists [Fascists], making their first real bid for political recognition, failed to win a seat. Hamrin, the resigned premier, succeeded Carl Gustav Ekman, who quit in August after it was revealed he had accepted two gifts of about $9,000 each from the late Ivar Kreuger as a contribution to party funds.

HOLD UP CLOTHING SHOP.

Six suits of clothing and $20 were taken yesterday from the Golde clothing shop, 4737 Lincoln avenue, by two armed bandits who locked the manager, Abe Alberts, in the washroom.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

"OF THEE I SING," the cleverest and most triumphant show of the year, came to the Grand Opera house last night and was greeted with the high enthusiasm that it deserves. It is a musical comedy that rivals the works of Gilbert and Sullivan in merry mockery and humorous music. It matches those old masters of the operetta in craftsmanship and wit, but follows the spirit of modernism for inspiration. It is the high note of intelligent gayety in the contemporary theater—the show you must see, above all others, if you wish to keep abreast of the fashion.

This famous frolic deals, joyously and impertinently, with national politics during a presidential campaign. It is a high jinks of fantastic satire—a laughing lampoon that carries the essence of a thousand political caricatures without their bitterness.

It puts the sentimental, sloganeering soul of our democracy in cap and bells and lets it romp away into a wonderland of charming burlesque. It is a show of ideas twisted into extravagant mirth, with a score that represents the super-sophistication of high brow jazz. I might add that it is staged as handsomely as any of the luxurious revues.

The company that comes here is a duplicate of the New York organization, which is still the banner amusement of Broadway, and when the traveling sharpshooters have finished their ritual of comparison I believe that the Chicago interpretation will not be given second place. Oscar Shaw seems exactly the right singing man for the rôle of the dapper president, and Donald Meek is exactly the comedian for the despised, forgotten vice president.

Harriette Lake is an attractive selection for the trim little bride of the White House, Roberta Robinson is a perfect Diana of the beauty contest, and Cecil Lean is a crashing hit as the oratorical party leader. The other characters in the gleeful pageant are acted with skill, and the chorus girls are worth close observation.

"Of Thee I Sing" starts with an informal meeting of the national committee in a bottle-strewn hotel room after the convention has nominated a merry nonentity named John P. Wintergreen for president and a hermit named Alexander Throttlebottom for vice president. "The boys" have great difficulty in remembering about Throttlebottom, for they drew his name out of a hat. He wanders through the extravaganza, a shy, neglected little man who is always getting thrown out of places.

The committee is at a loss; a good live issue is needed for Wintergreen's campaign, and they are barren of ideas. However, the publisher of a chain of newspapers rises to the emergency. The issue will be "Love." Wintergreen will go to the people as the Great Lover. A bathing beauty contest will be held in Atlantic City, and the prize winner will become Miss White House, to be wooed by the lively Wintergreen in every state in the Union and married at the inauguration ceremony.

"The boys" agree that this is a stroke of genius, and take another drink. The publisher closes the meeting by telephoning his editor to order 1,000 words on love for tomorrow's paper from Calvin Coolidge.

The beauty contest results in the selection of Diana Devereaux, fairest flower of the sunny south; but the erratic Wintergreen chooses that minute to jump the track. He falls in love with a pretty secretary named Mary Turner, chiefly because she can cook corn muffins, and jilts the radiant Devereaux, who threatens a breach of promise suit.

Wintergreen stumps the country with Mary by his side, and ends his campaign at a Madison Square Garden massmeeting, where he proposes for the forty-eighth time and is coyly accepted. Then the campaign song is turned on full blast:

Of thee I sing, baby,
Summer, autumn, winter, spring, baby.
You're my silver lining,
You're my sky of blue;
There's a love-light shining,
All because of you.

John and Mary are having a happy and comic life in the White House at the opening of the second act when the storm breaks over their heads. The nation feels that he has broken the heart of Diana Devereaux and is unworthy of his high office. The cabinet asks for his resignation, and when he stands firm for his job and Mary, impeachment proceedings are started. The republic of France takes a hand in the case because Diana is an illegitimate descendant of Napoleon, and threatens war unless her wrongs are righted.

At the impeachment the lowly Throttlebottom comes into his own as presiding officer of the senate. Wintergreen is about to be deposed when Mary rushes to his defense. She announces that the American people will never convict a man who is about to become a father! Cheers for Wintergreen! He is in a delicate condition, on his wife's testimony. The impeachment case is dismissed, and the assembled multitude joins in a hallelujah chorus to the words:

Posterity is just around the corner;
Posterity is here—I don't mean maybe,
There's nothing guarantees it like a baby.

The French ambassador is still snarling as the frolic approaches its close. Mary has had twins—but what about Diana Devereaux? Then Wintergreen has his first and only stroke of diplomatic genius. Unable to marry her himself, he assigns that duty to his vice president. Diana is willing, and Throttlebottom also thinks well of the idea. France is appeased.

Good morning!

If my advice counts for anything at all in your young lives—you'll see "The Night of June 13."

Hullabaloo doesn't mean much. Some films come to town with great fanfare and little merit. Others, like the Oriental's current feature, steal upon you and surprise and thrill you by an excellence unexpected by you and, apparently unsuspected by the producers and exhibitors.

In its manner of presentation this movie is somewhat like "Grand Hotel." It carries you off to a quiet suburb of outwardly friendly neighbors and enlightens you regarding the situations, thoughts and reactions that lead to the death of the slightly unbalanced blonde wife of John Curry, and that influence their actions after that tragedy.

The picture has been directed with skill, sympathy and Puckish humor and is brilliantly acted. I should judge from the result of their labors that director and players worked in complete accord. There are no hitches anywhere.

Things happen in the movie as they do in life. Oaks of effect spring from acorns of cause. The courtroom episode, during which all the neighbors lie like troopers for an assortment of the oddest reasons, will, I am sure, go on record as one of the funniest bits of screen history.

See you soon.

Homely Girls Have Charms Beauties Lack

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If you are going in for full sleeves, which of course you are; for high and beruffled neck lines, you'd better use your own head about the belt line's place. You'll be stylish enough with the other things to ignore a high belt placing.

If your figure is short and a bit thick you'd just better ignore any high waist line orders, for if you add to a high waisted frock full sleeves and neck ruffles you're going to look like a pouter pigeon all stuffed up and looking for more!

The fuller sleeves are recommended for the thick arm. They're infinitely kinder than tight fitting sleeves with the plump areas sharply outlined. But do beware of centering all the fullness above the waist line.

You have to think of these little things in order to preserve the best lines your silhouette boasts. You know the huge fur cuffs on sleeves were shifted up toward the elbow last year to prevent that extremely wide hipped look that fur cuffs on a level with the hips gave. It is a point you might bear in mind again this year to give the hips a fairer chance.

Advanced rumblings from the other side indicate a return to the shingle and the much shorter skirt. I'm told in some of the dressmaking houses over there the skirt length hits the bulging calf right at its ugliest line, where there is a bulging calf to hit. This means getting busy with the leg exercises. It's logical that the skirt will go up again, since it has just about exhausted its long possibilities. Besides, women who have to get about quickly on business errands bent have never taken wholeheartedly to the ankle flapping skirts.

If the hair goes short again, the skirts surely will.

Dashing Models Ready for Autumn Wear.

BY RHEA SEEGAR.

THERE are more dashing, completely devastating topcoats in town this fall than have been displayed in many a season.

All of a sudden topcoat makers have decided to supply generously. You'll see all kinds, from the classic free swinging models that you can dive into in nothing flat to the form fitting double breasted numbers with as many pockets and tailored shoulders and collars as usually make the best masculine successes.

Some good British topcoats imported from a famous English shop are knockouts in the rather vigorous colors . . . flawlessly made coats that hug your silhouette warmly, coats made of a fascinating new fabric, a wool that is spongy and looks more like moss than any other thing. The sleeves have absorbed a bit of the new puffed effects with an admirable and cautious restraint. Such a model, purchased now, can be worn two or three seasons without distressing any fashion critic.

Black and brown and white checked wool fashion the greater selections of loose topcoats . . . these big over covers for trim tweed suits and thin knit dresses and sheer wool daytime frocks are the smartest, swankiest things you can wear. A short military standup collar is made to accommodate all the colorful Ascot scarfs you can spend your money for.

And from the before mentioned English sports shop you can buy some new scarfs that are anything but dull and dreary . . . for instance, a thin wool that is as transparent as chiffon, is tinted in a bright canary yellow with designs of black and white and yellow birds on the wing across one corner of the huge triangular shaped scarf. Another is copied in the lovely blurred Japanese print effects, gray blue and rose and green designs on a sky blue background.

If you are operating on a modest clothes budget you'll grab one of the unbelievably low priced novelty wool ensembles, consisting of a mighty good looking two piece suit matched to a three-quarter length topcoat of the same material. These are a find! The topcoats are as casually smart and practical as anything you could wish for . . . good tweedy mixtures in green red, blue, beige, brown, and oxford gray are available and sometimes you are presented with a dashing brimmed vagabondish hat to match the other three pieces of the ensemble . . . these four items all yours for the very few dollars marked on the price tag.

If your clothes allowance is larger, you can shop for some fur trimmed topcoats that will make you gasp—the simple fur trimmed models that are new this year. The topcoats are full and loose and trimmed with flat sports furs such as gray kidskin, lapin and leopard. Usually the fur is used in yoke formations, tailored standup collars and sleeves with three cornered designs of fur.

Black smooth woolen coats are practical and tremendously chic with tiny yokes and sleeve trim of leopard. You can't go wrong with these or with the same sort of a black coat trimmed with either silver gray Persian lamb motiffs or the oxford gray combination of wool with steel gray kidskin collar and sleeve decorations.

Music Shows to Be Given at Auditorium

Historic House to Run Operatic Series.

The Auditorium theater, historic scene of brilliant opera seasons and dramatic spectacles, will be put into commission again next November, after three years of disuse. George A. Kingsbury, former manager of the Studebaker theater, has been appointed managing director, and he has begun to map out a schedule of musical and theatrical bookings. In prospect is a series of operatic productions to start in November, under the auspices of one of the many opera impresarios seeking to enter the Chicago field.

A musical comedy spectacle to bear the title of "1893," with "Little Old Chicago" as a possible alternate, is now being arranged for an engagement at the Auditorium, beginning next May and running through the period of the Century of Progress exposition. Frank C. Reilly of New York will sponsor this show. The libretto, dealing with the World's Fair of 1893, has been written by Forrest Wilson, author of the play, "Blessed Event." Mr. Reilly plans to make this production as elaborate as that of Ziegfeld's "Show Boat."

Holabird & Root, architects, have been commissioned to restore the Auditorium to its former condition in preparation for its approaching activities. An operating company has been organized to handle its business affairs, under the supervision of the Auditorium Building corporation, which will control the property, including the Auditorium hotel and office building, when the present receivership is terminated. John Goodridge is president of the operating company and Mark Willing holds the majority of the stock.

Plan Fall Revue

Pretty Mrs. Nathaniel Owings, the former Emily Otis, always is dressed very smartly, but yesterday she looked unusually chic in a new fall outfit when she attended a general meeting of the Service club at the residence of the president, Mrs. Stanley Zaring of 1250 Lake Shore drive. Mrs. Owings is the treasurer of the club, which explains why she carried such a big book to the meeting.

Plans were discussed for "Stepping High," the club's annual revue, to be staged this year on Oct. 21 and 22 at the Goodman theater.

This afternoon Miss Jane Willett is giving a tea from 4 to 6 o'clock on the roof garden of her parents' residence at 2130 Lincoln Park, west, for Mrs. Zaring and the directors of the club. Assisting will be Miss Ann Elizabeth Walsh, Mrs. Charles Conrad, Miss Imogene Bucklin, Miss Welthyan Harmon, Miss Alice Bremner, and Miss Lapra Schreiner. A program of Spanish songs will be given.

Plan Fund Drive for Clothing for School Children

A drive to raise money for the purchase of clothing and shoes for needy school children will be launched this week, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. George Allen McCorkle, president of the School Children's Aid society, 840 South Des Plaines street. The society provided clothing for 61,055 children last year, and the need will be greater this year, Mrs. McCorkle said.

"Last week a mother brought her five barefooted children to the office and asked that we supply them with shoes so that they could return to school," Mrs. McCorkle said. "During the first week of school we had requests from 40 elementary schools for clothing for children."

Supported by donations from the public and by eight women's clubs in the city, with a combined membership of 5,000, the society has been in operation for 45 years. An annual Thanksgiving collection is taken by each school and the proceeds given the society for aid in the work.

Modern Youngsters Anxious to Return to Books Because of Interesting Ways of Teaching.

BY JUDITH CASS.

SCHOOL days are starting again for the sons and daughters of those whose activities make social news, at least for the younger sons and daughters, those who are too young to go away to school, for most of the fashionable institutions of learning in the city and on the north shore are opening this or next week.

Modern children don't mind the end of summer vacations as much as we of another generation did, for schools today make the acquisition of knowledge so much more interesting and so much more like play than old fashioned ones did that most children welcome the return to books and studies each fall.

And those wee ones who are starting their school days always are as thrilled at being old enough to go to school as their mothers are sad to have them leave their babyhood behind.

The girls who are in the fifth, sixth, seventh, and eighth grades and high school are returning to the Girls' Latin school on Scott street today, but the younger ones of the four lower grades have until next Monday to play the whole day long.

Kindergarten Opens Monday

The youngsters who are entering kindergarten at the Chicago Latin School for Boys on Dearborn parkway start their school days next Monday, but all the others who attend this school have to be there today. The school belies its name in the kindergraten, for little girls as well as boys may enter that class, but as soon as a little girl is ready for first grade she has to go to another school.

The Francis Parker school, up on Webster avenue, near Lincoln park, which is a co-educational school, opens tomorrow for all the grades, and the North Shore Country Day school in Winnetka and the Lake Forest Day school, both co-educational, also opened yesterday.

The University School for Girls on Lake Shore drive, which numbers among its alumnae so many well known young Chicago matrons, is opening today. It, like the Boys' Latin school, does not strictly live up to its name, for little boys may start to learn their ABC's—that is merely a figure of speech, of course, for no modern child starts his education by learning the alphabet—in this school. The Harris school, which occupies a floor in the Webster hotel and where both boys and girls are prepared for college, does not open until next Monday, but already a committee of mothers has been formed to advise and assist the children in their work for the Joint Emergency Relief fund this year. Last year the girls gave teas and the boys lectures for the benefit of the fund and this year they plan not only to continue but to enlarge their philanthropic efforts.

Mrs. Charles Garfield King, Mrs. Albert A. Sprague, Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, Mrs. Robert H. McCormick, Mrs. William McCormick Blair, and Mrs. Howard F. Gillette, all of whom have or have had sons in the school, are on the committee.

Garfield King, who spent the summer with his parents in Santa Barbara after graduating from St. Mark's last June, passed through the city recently on his way to Bar Harbor for a visit with Robert Hall McCormick III. before going to New Haven to enter Yale. Mr. and Mrs. King will be at home about Oct. 1.

The Kings' daughter, Mrs. Clarence B. Mitchell, and Mr. Mitchell and their two little daughters, who left their home in Santa Barbara early in the summer to spend a year abroad, are in Paris now, having taken a house there for the winter. They spent the summer at St. Jean de Luz.

Jane Boyce to Make Debut

Attractive Jane Boyce, who calls Chicago home, although she hasn't spent much time here during the last few years, tells me she is going to make her debut here in November or December after her mother, Mrs. Livingston Fairbank, arrives from Paris and opens their apartment at 999 Lake Shore drive.

Miss Boyce arrived some weeks ago, and after visiting Miss Marjorie Horton, with whom she had planned to make a joint debut last season, in Lake Forest she went to Ottawa, Ill., to be with her grandmother, Mrs. William Dixon Boyce.

Miss Boyce comes to Chicago, however, almost every week-end, for she has been an assisting debutante at several of the debut receptions on the north shore.

Just when Mrs. Fairbank is arriving Miss Boyce doesn't know. In a Paris newspaper recently I noticed an item about Mrs. Fairbank having been Lady Rothermere's guest during the August festivals at Salzburg, where she sang for some of the conductors and composers and was invited to sing at the Mozarteum during the Salzburg festival next season. From Salzburg Mrs. Fairbank went to Biarritz for the month of September, so she probably will not come to this country until next month, or perhaps later.

Mrs. Charles S. Dewey and Miss Louise Dewey, who is to be a debutante this season, will arrive in Chicago tomorrow from having spent the summer in France after Miss Dewey's presentation at the British court in June. Mrs. Dewey is president of the Alliance Française, and it is expected that Miss Dewey will take a leading part in the activities of the new junior membership of this society, which most of the "debbies" have joined.

Niblack Owns Sea Soldier

Had you heard that Sea Soldier, that gallant steeplechaser, no longer is owned by a syndicate of Chicagoans, but now is the sole property of Austin H. Nicklack, the other nine of the syndicate having given Mr. Niblack their nine-tenths interest in the horse as a sort of tribute to Mr. Niblack's untiring efforts to promote hunting and steeplechasing in this part of the country.

There isn't to be any steeplechasing in Lake Forest this fall, so Sea Soldier is going to do his part in the Onwentsia hunts which are being held three times a week at Milburn.

If you think Miss Polly Perry is looking ecstatically happy these days, it's nothing to the way she will look shortly, for her fiancé, Harold M. Kneedler, has reached California on his way from the Philippines to Chicago, and he will be here any day now. And as soon as he gets here and the Perrys know how long he can be away from his home in Manila, Miss Polly will set the date for their marriage, which is to be a small one, probably at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. Newton Perry of 1325 Astor street.

Rowe Family to Stay in Country

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Davis Rowe and their family, who have been occupying a house in the country outside Wauconda all summer, are moving on Oct. 1 to a house about three miles out of Barrington, having become so entranced with country life that they do not want to return to town even for the winter.

They formerly had a house on State parkway, but they gave it up when they went to the country last spring. They would not move from the delightful place they are in now if there were any adequate way of heating it during the cold weather, but it was built just as a summer place and the only heat is from huge fireplaces at both ends of the huge two story living room. And as much as the Rowes are liking country life they don't think they want to return to the pioneer days of keeping warm with log fires after having been accustomed to furnace heat in cold weather.

The house they have been in is the property of the Arthur Scotts, who spent this summer at Michilinda, Mich., and will be back about Oct. 1 in their house on Dorchester avenue near the University of Chicago, where Mr. Scott is a professor.

Coque Feathers Trim Shoulders of Velvet Coat

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—No matter how careful the Parisienne is about her clothes diet, she feels that she must splurge to the extent of one dressy coat in her wardrobe. This coat must be the kind that can be a good stepmother to the Five-to-Midnight frock. It must not be fussy in the sense of extraneous details, but it should have charm and distinction. A dressy coat that is worthy of the name must be, above all, different, but in a sane way.

The Schiaparelli coat, shown in the sketch today, combines all of the hard and fast rules laid down for the dressy coat for fall, as well as adding some of its own. It is in black, in the new, dull velvet that is crinkled just like the silk crêpes. It has an Empire-length bodice, and the skirt section molds the body, flaring gently from the hips. It has a side front closing, fastening at the waistline.

The roll collar which stands up in back and descends almost to the high waistline in front, is in the same kind of crinkled velvet, but in white. You will note that this coat is considerably longer than the average day length and that it completely covers the frock beneath.

What makes this coat so different and chic is the feather trimming. As you already know, if you have read these columns, feathers, in many forms, have been the badge of Parisian smartness this summer. This is the newest way they are being applied for fall, by Madame Schiaparelli, who makes coque feather epaulettes and puts them at the edge of the shoulders.

A STRAIN ON THE FAMILY TIE

The Murder of Caroline Bundy

By ALICE CAMPBELL.

SYNOPSIS.

Neil Starkey, American biographer, is engaged by Caroline Bundy to compile the life and letters of her late father, a famous English biologist. Neil is mystified by the peculiarities of Miss Bundy, who is broken in health and mentally disturbed. She has hired a photographer, named Tilbury, as bailiff, who with his wife, a common, illiterate couple, occupy the lodge, and hold a strange influence over Caroline. Neil meets Natasha Andreyev, Caroline's half Russian niece, beautiful, but fiery tempered, who is Caroline's secretary. He moves to the Bundy estate in Somerset and Caroline puts him in charge of the library in the daytime, cautioning him to admit no one. She tells him her father, a man of science, was also a mystic. Caroline and the Tilburys hold nightly meetings in the library. Neil has a friend, Giles Gisborne, who is vicar of a nearby parish and lives with his sister, Rachel. Neil has lunch in Bath with Rachel and Tasha. He sees Tasha hold a secret meeting with a strange man and later sees her pay the stranger's bill in the tearoom.

INSTALLMENT VIII.

A MIDNIGHT SORTIE.

At Rachel's pressing invitation, her two friends remained at the vicarage for dinner, which, as it was the maid's evening out, they all helped to prepare. In the present gay company Natasha showed herself a different being from the girl Neil had first known, high spirited, with flashes of wit, and when occasion demanded, an ability to hold her own in serious conversation.

All during the evening he could not rid his thoughts of the episode in the tea shop, which he kept turning over and piecing together with what had happened yesterday at Stoke Paulton. As a result, he arrived at the following conclusions:

One: The girl was in love with some one she did not wish her aunt to know about.

Two: She was defraying, or helping to defray, her lover's expenses.

Three: The man in question was the late proprietor of the two seater car, sold because he needed money.

Four: Rachel knew and disapproved.

He told himself this summing up might be hasty, still, there it was, and something Rachel said at parting made him think he was not far wrong in his surmises.

"I do hope you and Tasha are going to hit it off together," she whispered, drawing him aside on the doorstep. "I'm very fond of her, you know. Her mother and I were school friends. It's ghastly to think of what poor Sophie went through—Boris Andreyev shot down before her eyes, hideous indignities at the hands of the soviets, and then poverty and struggle in Paris. I sometimes wonder what effect all that may have had on Natasha's character."

"Not ill, is he? Met with an accident?"

"Then you think it has affected her?" he asked.

"In a way, yes. For all her fine qualities, she's developed a sort of hard fatalism—a disregard for human life—I don't know how to put it, but it's rather frightening in one so young. I only wish the right sort of man—you, for instance—could get her confidence and advise her. Do you think you could?"

"Thanks for the compliment," he answered smiling, "but what about her brother? Giles told me she had one."

"O, Michael." She mused for a moment. "No, he's hardly able to be of much use. I believe she's deeply attached to him, but——"

"You mean he's not here? Well, I'll do my best, but somehow I don't imagine she'll turn to me very readily. I'll be willing to bet she freezes up as soon as we're left alone."

Nor was he mistaken. On the short drive back he sensed an immediate change, an erection of barriers barring every approach. She was friendly enough, but maddeningly impersonal, a fact the more irritating since he was now definitely aware of her attraction.

When they had put up the car, Crabbe met them to say that Miss Bundy was still engaged in the study, but had told him not to wait up. Natasha went quickly through to the front hall. Neil hung up his coat in the lobby. As he did so the kitchen clock struck twelve. A lengthy session. He would have given a good deal to know what was going on in the closed room under old Bundy's stern eyes, and rather hoped his companion might talk it over with him, but when he joined her at the foot of the stairs her entire attention was centered on a thin gray envelope bearing a French stamp. She had just torn this open, and did not look up as he passed by into the drawing room.

He had poured himself a weak whisky and soda and was about to raise it to his lips when a smothered gasp made him turn in alarm. To his dismay he saw Natasha clutching her letter in her hand and staring straight ahead with an expression of agonized shock.

In a couple of strides he reached her to ask what was wrong. Had she received bad news? Her blanched lips parted to form the single word, "Michael," but she was speaking to herself, not him. He remembered, however, that Michael was her brother's name.

"Not ill, is he? Met with an accident?"

As she did not reply he tried to thrust the glass he held into her hand. "Here, drink this," he urged, but she pushed it away.

She had recovered sufficiently to glance wildly at the adjacent telephone, and even made a move in its direction, only to change her mind.

"Would you like me to put through a call to Paris for you?" he suggested.

For the first time she seemed aware of his presence, but looked at him as if he were something to be quickly got rid of.

"There's nothing you can do. O, please go away and leave me!"

Her distraught dismissal left him no choice, but to obey. He went up slowly to his room, but had hardly got inside when a faint grating noise drew him to the window. There was just light enough to see the garage doors open and the car slide out, with Natasha at the wheel. Another second, and car and occupant had vanished round the curving drive. What—off again, at this late hour?

Perhaps she had gone back to the vicarage, but he did not believe it. No, although she had seen this fellow in Bath last night and again this afternoon, he was confident she had dashed off post haste for another conference with him. That must mean her brother's communication called for immediate discussion, or else—and a blank feeling came over him—she was running away for good and all.

Very soon he heard the bailiff and his wife slip out the back door, and Miss Bundy's tread mounting to her room, but although he kept awake for a long time straining his ears, he did not catch any sound of the returning car.

His theorizing, as it happened, was entirely askew. Natasha had come home, and in the morning had finished breakfast before he appeared. Not till he saw the used coffee cup being removed from her place did he admit how disturbed he had been.

"Why should I mind what she does?" he scourged himself vehemently. "How can she mean anything to me?"

At the age of thirty-two he had come seriously to doubt his capacity for strong or lasting attachment. Out of numerous affairs of the senses not one had held him long, but there was no denying how pleasant it was to know that at any moment the tawny eaglet might flash across his horizon. Eaglet! It was not a bad simile, and the old woman, her aunt, was a fussy, barnyard hen, whom he could hear cackling now as she issued orders.

Inside the study, Neil opened the table drawer to take out his notes. A moment later he was holding up a sheet of yellowed note paper and examining it with frowning attention.

"Hello!" he muttered. "How did this get here?"

The heading on the sheet was "Stoke Paulton, Somerset"; the writing it contained merely a dozen lines of Theodore Bundy's scrawl, ending in a signature. In fact it was the missing page he had hunted for yesterday and abandoned as nonexistent. Perhaps he had inadvertently picked it up with his own jottings, more likely the maid had found it lodged in a corner and put it here for safety. He consigned the paper to its file and from thence on, for many weeks, thought no more about it.

As he was curious about Miss Bundy's veiled allusions, Neil could not resist dipping into the last volume of her father's diary to see if the latter contained any illumination. Diligent reading, however, revealed nothing worthy of comment except certain poetic effusions, and, just at the end, a scattering of entries so obscure as to make no sense whatever.

They disclosed tantalizingly little, suggesting that Bundy shrank from committing himself even in the privacy of his journal. Who and what was the mysterious Mrs. S., to whom frequent reference was made? Often a few words sufficed: "Mrs. S. again. Poor, unsatisfying." Or: "Mrs. S. wonderfully clear. Must follow us." These continued up to the final illness, and might, therefore, coincide with the breaking up of the writer's powers.

One passage was headed by the scriptural quotation: "And the old men shall see visions." Bundy himself had seen a vision, the authenticity of which he did not doubt. His departed wife, usually designated as "my devoted Hannah," appeared at his bedside, spoke to him words of earnest encouragement, and adjured him to "Be brave, persevere." At the last was a single cryptic line: "She is right. I must not turn back. By this sign will the millennium be inaugurated."

What sign? What millennium? Had the entry any real significance, or was it only the fantasy of a deteriorating brain? But it was now possible to see some justification for Miss Bundy's statement that her father was a mystic.

'Orphan Annie' Cast Finds It Hard to Quit

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 19.—Ordinarily there is little significance or feeling to the disbanding of a film cast after their picture has been completed, but with "Little Orphan Annie," just finished at Radio-RKO studio, it's different; all the boys and girls, men and women quit the picture with the same kind of regret and homesick feeling that the college graduate feels when he buys his ticket home after graduation and knows he'll never see all the old pals gathered together again, as long as he lives.

The company making the film version of "Orphan Annie" became something more than just a routine picture troupe; it became sort of a little family in the seven weeks it has been working.

Mitzi Green, the little star who sacrificed her hair to become Annie's fuzzy, yellow haired counterpart, took Buster Phelps, her 5 year old acting mate, right to her 11 year old bosom, tied Buster's shoes, wiped his nose, put the little fellow's makeup on him, and taught him how to cry [for film purposes[and, what is still more important, when and how to stop crying.

In return for which Buster used to bring Mitzi pieces of candy and little bouquets. May Robson, grand old woman of stage and screen, mothered the children who were used, and there hardly was a scene shot in which Director John Robertson didn't have a child in his lap. In fact, the director himself superintended the buying of gifts for all the kids in a Los Angeles orphanage, in which some of the scenes were shot. And Matt Moore might have been the children's uncle, just in from 'round the world.

Wynne Gibson says "no matter what you do in Hollywood, you lose weight. If you're not a film success, naturally economic laws and worry make you skinny. If you do get a contract, you work so hard under the hot lights and you worry so much that you get thin anyway."

Lupe Velez, who's playing the rôle of Wiggles in "Phantom Fame" at RKO, was telling listeners that she was "nothing" until Maria Conesa, famous Mexican singer and dramatic actress, began to advise and sponsor her in Mexico City. But said Lupe, naively, "I became the biggest thing in the way of an actress in all Mexico."

Marion Burns, the Hollywood born girl who had to go to New York and get a stage job in order to land in pictures, is going to have to go to Singapore and Panang in Straits Settlements to play her firm rôle. She's cast as the girl in Fox's jungle thriller, "Man Eater," whose troupe leaves shortly for the Malay peninsula, headed by Clyde Elliott and James O. Spearing, former dramatic editor of the New York Times. Marion is hoping that she can talk them out of one of the skins off the tigers they expect to have to shoot in filming their scenes and protecting their camerrmen and cast.

When Mae West finished her film "Night After Night" at Paramount she distributed envelopes to her production crew in which the cameramen assistant director, head electrician and others found bills ranging from $20 to $100. When Carole Lombard and Pat O'Brien finished "Virtue" at Columbia he distributed gold pieces and Miss Lombard gurgling packages.

Bayard Veiller is writing the script for Metro's "Tugboat Annie," which is being prepared for Marie Dressler and Wally Beery to co-star in.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Recently when I was out with my 3 weeks' old baby a little boy about 5 years old came up and asked if he could please look at my baby. After peeking into the carriage he looked up at me and said, "Missus, is that a twin baby or a plain one?" H. M.

Grandparents Show Interest in Youngsters

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Grandparents are nice relatives to have, at least when they are as nice as the ones who write to me. Anxious to hel pthe often bewildered young mothers, ready to give them some of the wisdom they have acquired through rearing their own children, or interested in some of the newer ideas of management, they are among my favorite correspondents.

So, look over my shoulder as I read some of these letters.

"I have reared a large family and am now a grandmother. I read a great deal on the sunject of children, for I feel we are never too old to learn. I wish I had had access to all the valuable information parents can get now. May I have the booklet on 'How to Gain Obedience,' as I want to pass it around our circle of young mothers?"

"I am a minister and a grandfather. I enjoy reading articles on child management and feel they do a fine work. Will you please send my grandchild, Patty, in the enclosed envelop addressed to her, your booklet on 'Prayers and Graces?'"

"I am a grandmother now and my children are nearly all grown. But I read articles on the subject still, and your daily column. I want my grandchildren to be brought up better than my children were."

"I am a grandmother with five young families around me. I read a great deal on the newer ideas on children. I often send a book or clip an article of yours and send it to the daughter or son to whom I think it best suited. They pay more attention to other people's suggestions than if Mother says so, as you can easily imagine! How much better I could have done with my children when they were little if I could have had such help as mothers get nowadays!"

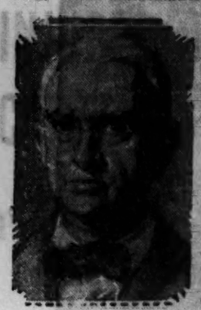
Man's Social History Told by Dr. Keller

Book Shows Tendencies Through Ages.

BY FANNY BUTCHER

"Man's Rough Road," by A. G. Keller. [Stokes-Yale University Press.] Published yesterday.



A. G. KELLER.

The sciences of chemistry and biology and mathematics and allied subjects have now achieved enough of an exact understanding of their fundamental formulas to give the intelligent man confidence in their conclusions as something about which there is no debating. The sciences of man's relationships with his fellow men, with his physical environment and with the universe, are, however, still so incompletely formulated as to provide even the intelligent man with what are little more than the merest glimpses of an exact formula.

But intelligent man must needs train his eyes upon even those fleeting indications if he is better to adjust himself and to provide for the future more adequate adjustment of himself in the guise of his children and their children. There is no period better for training the eye to such glimpses than one in which chaos seems to surround man. Just how important the present social and economic and moral chaos is it is the duty of intelligent men of the day to consider.

A. G. Keller, professor of the science of society at Yale university, published in 1927 four volumes of "The Science of Society," in collaboration with W. G. Sumner, which collated the most significant of the known facts about man in his relation to other men. It was a monumental work and added much to the available material on the social sciences. It has become a classic. Dr. Keller was persuaded to make the gist of the priceless material contained in those four volumes available for the ordinary untechnical reader, and that he has done in "Man's Rough Road."

It is a history of human society told not in words of one syllable but in words so aptly chosen from the vocabulary of the ordinary man that any one can and will find it understandable and fascinating. Dr. Keller has a certain picturesqueness of style which is vital in holding the attention of the lay reader of science. Any idea which is naturally out of that reader's ken he elucidates in the language of every day.

And that word "naturally" is a case in point. According to Dr. Keller there are practically no "natural" reactions of man other than his demand for preservation—that is, for food and the perpetuation of the race. The "natural" decency of man or his "natural" brutishness or any of the hundreds of characteristics which we are accustomed to label as "natural" are no more innate in man than clothing is a part of man's equipment at birth. The characteristics—as opposed to the instinct to preservation—are put on, just as clothes are put on and for the same reason, to make the adjustment of man to his surroundings more comfortable physically and spiritually.

Man's characteristics are the result of custom, of usage, or "mores" [one of the very few technical words which Dr. Keller uses, and then only after such detailed description of what the word signifies that the use of any less technical phrase in its place would be an affectation].

"Man's Rough Road" is the story of the conflict through the ages of man with the outer forces of life. Dr. Keller does not go into his conflict with the inner forces—that is, he does not go off into the realm of psychology and philosophy or of man's spiritual adjustment to himself. Religion, as a part of man's adjustment to life, is discussed at length, but not from any spiritual or dogmatic point of view, only for the part that it has played in the evolution of society.

"Man's Rough Road" is, as would be evident to any one, a fascinating book, oddly encouraging in the sense that Dr. Keller finds that man has throughout the ages and step by step adjusted himself more skillfully [however his failures seem to bulk].

Dr. Keller declares that man's tendencies through the ages have been toward peace rather than toward war, toward an individualistic rather than toward a communistic society, toward the betterment of his position rather than toward mere preservation [except when the ratio of land and population has been grossly out of proportion either through underpopulation or overcrowding].

"Man's Rough Road" is the work of one of the great scientists of our day. It is a rare privilege to ordinary readers to have such a genius share his findings in simple language—and vastly stimulating!

First Lady in "Of Thee I Sing"

New Broilers May Be Used on Top of a Stove

BY MARY MEADE.

If more earnest cooks had this small motto affixed over their kitchen stoves, or at least planted firmly on one of their foremost mental shelves, there might be less midnight tummyaches and mysterious upset conditions in families whose food managers are, to the best of their abilities, balancing calories and vitamizing and mineralizing their menus quite in the proper proportions.

But unfortunately, while all we need for complete health and endless vigor may be within our food as it lies on our preparation table, tragedies may happen before that food reaches the family table. For in our method of cooking lies one of the most important answers to the problem of indigestible foods. And while the frying pan, if intelligently used, offers an excellent medium of cookery, it is so sadly misused so great a proportion of the time that it is fast being supplanted among thoughtful cooks by a method which assures almost perfect cookery, freedom from soaking in indigestible cooking fat, and, most important of all, retention of the valuable juices within the food, where they rightly belong, instead of having to rescue them from the pan after they have seeped out of the drying food tissues. This method is simply —broiling.

Most gas stoves are equipped with a broiler oven where meats, fish or what you will are placed on a simple oiled grill, seared and then broiled till tender under the flames, the excess fat melting off into the dripping pan below.

Today necessity has given birth to another invention. There are now broilers for the stove top as well as the broiler oven. The first of these to appear was merely a glorified frying pan which supported the to be grilled foods on a metal grid away from the bottom of the pan and the accumulated fats.

But now kitchen minded inventors have appeared to delight us with broilers which are far from frying panish. Several of these intriguing models have appeared in downtown stores and have been snapped up almost too quickly to be kept in stock. One of the most attractive buys is composed of two square sections or grids made of polished cast aluminum, to the lower one of which is attached a removable handle. Fish, bacon, chops, steak, sausage, liver—even split chicken—may be placed on the upper grill as it sits snugly over the lower section.

The lower section is also an open grid, but is so made that its grooves fall directly below the slits in the upper grill, carrying the dripping fat safely off into a small surrounding trench.

The flame for top stove broiling should be turned low—a good point these economical days—and the broiler heated until it sizzles when a drop of water is sprinkled on it. The food to be broiled may then be arranged on the grill and quickly seared on both sides to a rich golden brown. Care should be taken to avoid puncturing meats at any time with a fork or knife.

The heat may now be lowered still more and the meat cooked—the same number of minutes on each side—until rare, medium or well done, as desired.

A Woman Writer Says It Pays to Be Homely Type

BY DORIS BLAKE.

It pays to be homely!

So declares Mildred Harrington in a current woman's monthly magazine. She claims to speak with the authority of one who, as a little girl, learned from visitors' comments that she was c-u-t-e, her sister Jane the pretty one.

A cruel blow at the time to a young ster to learn she's not entitled to the "pretty" encomiums. But a lucky break for her later on, Miss Harrington believes, after following the careers of both ugly ducklings and prime swans into mature life.

Why does it pay to be homely? If you're born to Miss America candidacy you don't have to bother to attract people. Or, take the case of Pamela Grey, as does Miss Harrington, to stress her point. Pamela was the town beauty. Her mother and her three strapping brothers saved her every effort. All the family energies were bent to the job of making for Pamela a suitable marriage.

They made it for her—but it lasted a very short while. Pamela's position as a beauty had taught her to receive but not to give, Miss Harrington observes. And herein lies beauty's greatest obstacle to happiness. The homely dear is more often found on the giving side of the fence; anyway, she tries harder to please and earn.

With the beauty "it is just a matter of reaching out and picking the most delectable plums." The homely one likes plums, too, but she has to work for hers, a habit, believes Miss Harrington, that brings a great deal of satisfaction and no end of fun.

"To the circumstances that I was forced to learn at the tender age of 7 that I would have to work for my share of the world's plums," confesses Miss Harrington, "I attribute the fact that today I am a fairly successful business woman in one of our biggest cities—and a happy wife and mother."

The plain girl's cue to be taken from Miss Harrington's experience is to make herself a good dancer; take the trouble to be nice to boys who don't matter and who so often turn out later to be the boys who do matter; to play a good game of tennis; become a fair swimmer; master bridge, and be sympathetic.

School Days Are Here for Young Society

a knoll with a gorgeous view of the surrounding country—I think one can see three lakes from one of the screened porches—is furnished most attractively with many souvenirs of Prof. Scott's trips to Africa with the Herbert Bradleys, including an elephant's hoof which has been hollowed out and now serves as a waste paper basket.

Spears, shields, and all sorts of similar accouterments decorate the walls and there are also many trophies of the hunt. The Scotts have achieved a distinctive and very attractive atmosphere in this country house and every one who visits it says it has much of the charm of English country places.

Not far from the Scotts' house is a smaller one belonging to Mrs. Scott's brother-in-law and sister, the Daniel H. Burnhams, who have been spending the summer in the senior Mrs. Burnham's house in Evanston, but who spend week-ends in their little country house.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Heagney of Havana, Cuba, are being congratulated upon the birth of a daughter, Ann, at the Evanston hospital, on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Heagney have been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy W. Woodland, in Kenilworth, for some weeks.

The women golfers of the Onwentsia club in Lake Forest, are holding their annual "Pow Pow" today with golf in the morning and again in the afternoon after luncheon.

Mrs. Jacob Baur is giving a buffet supper tonight at her residence, 1511 Astor street, for her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bartle Bull, who arrived here recently from a wedding trip around the world. After supper the moving pictures the Bulls took on their trip will be shown. The guests, about fifty in number, will be mostly young friends of the former Rosemary Baur with just a sprinkling of Mrs. Baur's friends.

New students and those returning to Vassar will be given a tea this afternoon at 4 o'clock at Vassar House by the Vassar club of Chicago.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Gervis Erdly McKenney of 116 Ridge avenue, Evanston, announce the engagement of their daughter, Isabel Jane, to Myron Converse Gates of Evanston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Newton S. Gates of Gordon, Neb.

Rev. R. G. Schell Heads Baptist Pastors' Group

The Rev. R. G. Schell was elected president of the Baptist Ministers' conference of Chicago at the meeting yesterday at the Central Y. M. C. A., 19 South La Salle street. The Rev. Mr. Schell is the pastor of the Second Baptist church, 1857 West Jackson boulevard.

Relief came with one cake of Cuticura . . . . and one box of Cuticura Ointment. Miss T. V. Ownes, of South Carolina, writes:

"After using one bar of Cuticura Soap and shampooing with it, and using a box of Cuticura Ointment, my scalp was entirely well."

Here's the Treatment! Make a parting in the hair and rub in Cuticura Ointment. Make additional partings to get ointment into skin of entire scalp, rather than on hair. Gently massage to assist cleansing, healing action. Shampoo with suds of warm water and Cuticura Soap. Do not rub soap on hair—rub lather into scalp. Use treatment twice a month. Shampoo often.

FREE! A valuable folder on care of skin and scalp. Effective, economical methods. Write Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. Z-6, Malden, Mass.

How Old?

At the age of 62.

When your system is stagnant and you feel sluggish, headachy, half-alive—don't waste money on "tonics" or "regulators" or similar patent medicines. Stimulate the liver and bowels. Use a famous physician's prescription every drug store keeps. Just ask them for Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin.

This appetizing syrup is made from fresh laxative herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. One dose will clear up almost any case of headache, biliousness, constipation. But if you want to keep in fine shape, feel fit the year 'round, take a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin every few days. You'll eat better, sleep better and feel better in every way. You will never need to take another laxative.

Give the children a little of this delicious syrup two or three times a week. A gentle, natural stimulant that makes them eat and keeps the bowels from clogging. And saves them from so many sick spells and colds.

Have a sound stomach, active liver and strong bowel muscles that expel every bit of waste and poison every day! Just keep a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin on hand; take a stimulating spoonful every now and then. See if you don't feel new vigor in every way. Syrup pepsin isn't expensive.

This MARKET has many ADVANTAGES

PHILADELPHIA is famous as a City of Homes and home owners, leading every other American city in this respect. This factor gives a stability—a permanence—to buying power here.

The Philadelphia Area is noted as an industrial center, for the variety of its products, as well as for their more than two billion dollar volume. This diversified manufacturing tends to stabilize the worker's earning power.

Philadelphia has a fine retail store system: Department stores covering city blocks, great drug and grocery chains, independent merchants . . . with a sales volume of one billion dollars yearly.

Philadelphia has hundreds of fine suburbs . . . Merion, Overbrook, Bala-Cynwyd, Narberth, Bryn Mawr, Chestnut Hill, Old York Road section . . . some of the richest communities on earth.

Philadelphia's Port comprises an available waterfront of 50 miles, dotted by 267 wharves and docks. Railroad tracks run direct to ships.

85% of the people in Philadelphia live in private, individual homes. 55% own their own. Only 15% live in apartments, hotels and rooming houses.

REACHING BUSINESS LEADERS!

In the Philadelphia Urban Area there are 65,229 families with incomes of $5,000 or over. This group naturally includes Philadelphia's Business Leaders. The Newspaper Reader Survey compiled by American Association of Advertising Agencies shows that 92.35% of these families read The Philadelphia Bulletin. Write for additional facts on income groups and newspaper coverage.

And reaching every nerve center of this compact community is one newspaper—The Philadelphia Bulletin. In the city and in suburbs, in mansion and modest home, in store and factory, among professional and business men, The Bulletin is the overwhelming newspaper choice.

Today's 505,528 (August, 1932, average) is more than two and one-half times the circulation of any other Philadelphia evening newspaper, more than all morning newspapers combined.

Its circulation is all net paid, all the reflection of Philadelphia's reading preference, all the result of a generation of careful newspaper publishing. Not a single reader has been added by premiums or circulation contests.

Seldom are the reading habits of a people so clear-cut. Rarely does one newspaper cover a great city and suburbs.

ILLINOIS BACK INJURED AFTER CATCHING PASS

Portman Receives Broken Ankle.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—The Illinois football team lost the services of a promising candidate today when Crain Portman, sophomore half back, suffered a fracture of an ankle bone. Portman had just received a forward pass and was injured on the tackle.

Coach Zuppke continued to shift his material, returning Red Gragg to full back. Gragg was used in the line in spring practice. Hoeft, another former full back, transferred to end last week, was moved to tackle today.

PICK N. U. BACK FIELD

Four days of football practice at Northwestern have just about determined the makeup of the Wildcats' first string back field. To all indications the ball carrying brigade will consist of Pug Rentner and Jakie Sullivan, half backs; George Potter, quarter back, and Ollie Olson, full back.

Potter may be forced to give way to an understudy in the opening game with Missouri a week from Saturday due to a shoulder injury received in practice. He showed up for practice yesterday, but Coach Hanley excused him from drill for several days. The team physician stated that several ligaments were torn from his collar bone. He is expected to be able to run signals soon, but may not be available for the first game.

The first string backs are the only letter men among the ball carriers. Four other backs last year won minor letters. They are Roy Auguston and Chet Sutton, full backs, and Ed Dubsky and Bill Lehnhardt, half backs. Sutton won his minor award as a guard, but has been performing well at full.

The sophomore ranks have produced six back field candidates. Three are quarter backs. They are Al Kawal of Cicero, Fred Lind of Wilmette and Red Horn of Sparton, Ark. Harry Leeper of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Walter Stanul of Two Rivers, Wis., have shown promise at the half back positions. Julian Bennett of Butler, Wis., is a full back prospect.

MAROONS BLOCK

The University of Chicago's hopeful football squad settled to serious work yesterday. Morning exercises were devoted to the dull but practical business of blocking, while the major part of the afternon went into passing and pass defense and the adaptation of the new Stagg shift to a punt formation. Scrimmage with a freshman squad topped the day's doings.

Walter Manelkis, who is slated to take the place at guard vacated by Capt. Sam Horwitz of last year's team, had his face cut in a collision with Wayne Rapp, but will be back in a suit today. The passing activities were shared by Pete Zimmer, Vin Sahlin, Bernie Johnson and Don Birney, and served to call further attention to the marked improvement of Zimmer. Page, Sahlin and Birney divided the kicking.

MICHIGAN BEATS RESERVES

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Michigan's first team went into high gear for a few minutes and ran up a score of 50 to 0 on a reserve team today.

Two touchdowns resulted from the passes of Harry Newman, the quarter back shooting one to Heston and a second to Ward. The third touchdown was scored when Everhardus took a lateral pass from Newman, cut back through tackle and slanted off to the corner of the field, 45 yards away. Newman kicked all three goals. The remaining points were scored on a safety. In the second half the first team ran wild, scoring four more touchdowns. Everhardus dashed through the reserves for two.

BADGERS SHIFT KABAT

IOWA VARSITY WINS, 7-0

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Scrimmage was ordered for the first time at University of Iowa football practice today. In a 45 minute practice game the first string combination won, 7 to 0. Coach Ossie Solem used the same varsity lineup he selected last week—Loufek and Miller at ends; Samnelson and Schammel, tackles; Moore and Hass, guards; Dolly, center; Moffit, quarter back; Kuhn and Eckdahl, half backs; and Schneidman, full back.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Ellsworth Vines Jr., inaugurated his campaign in the defense of his Pacific southwest singles tennis championship today by defeating John Alman of South Pasadena, Cal., 6-0, 6-0.

It was an eventful day for Vines. Before he took to the tournament court, the date for his marriage to Miss Verle Low was announced for Oct. 1. His engagement to Miss Low, a junior college classmate at Pasadena, was made known last spring. Other results:

"BRING ON THOSE CUB PITCHERS," SAYS BABE RUTH

"All I need now is a couple of those Cub pitchers and I think the ball will sail even faster," the Babe said.

"How do I think the Yanks are going against the Cubs?" he continued. "Why, I don't see how we can miss. First of all, we're starting the series right here in the stadium, and don't forget we lost only 15 games out of 77 all year on these grounds. The Cubs will be just another team to us, and if we grab those first two in New York there's a good chance the thing will wind up before we leave Chicago."

Night Game Scheduled in Little World's Series

Newark and Minneapolis will play one night game in the Little World series to avoid conflict with the main event between the Yankees and the National league champions, it was announced yesterday. The Newark-Minneapolis series will open at Newark on Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 27. The second game will be played Wednesday night and the third on Friday afternoon. The teams will then go to Minneapolis to resume the series on Sunday, Oct. 2.

Somerville Goes Home; Silent on Plans for Future

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 19.—(AP)—C. Ross Somerville, first Canadian ever to win the United States amateur golf championship, was back home today, even more silent and calm than before he left to win the title at Baltimore last week.

It took a lot of the finest sleuthing in London to find out that he actually was home. Five times Mayor George Hayman had telephoned Sandy at Baltimore asking the time of his arrival home without getting a reply.

So there was no committee of welcome, no public reception or dinner arranged when Sommerville slipped off a train yesterday. No one met him. Even his mother did not know he was coming.

"He walked into the house a little before noon," she said today, "all alone and carrying his bags. He looked as though he'd just come from the hunt club."

Beaumont, Chattanooga Open Dixie Series Today

Beaumont, Tex., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—The Dixie series will open tomorrow with the Beaumont Exporters, Texas league champions, meeting Chattanooga, which won the Southern association pennant by two percentage points.

NEW A. A. U. CODE HITS PROMOTERS AND FIGHTERS

Culls Ranks of Amateur Boxing.

The central association of the Amateur Athletic union, at its annual meeting last night, acted to wipe out professionalism in amateur boxing. That amateur boxers, in many cases, have been paid for their services has been proved by testimony in the two hearings conducted by the Illinois athletic commission, the officials of the A. A. U. said last night.

Although the state investigation, directed by Gen. John V. Clinnin, chairman of the boxing commission, has not been concluded, the amateur organization has chosen to serve notice at this time on all clubs, organizations, and individuals, associated in conduct of boxing under previous sanction from the A. A. U. that they must conform strictly to amateur rules.

Twenty Boxers Suspended.

The Central A. A. U. will rule professional all boxers who have received more than a sum which covered their actual expenses. More than twenty already have been suspended.

The A. A. U. also prepared rules last night which do not recognize managers for amateur boxers. Matchmakers will be recognized and may be paid for their actual services, provided, of course, that none of the money is given directly or indirectly to the boxers.

All this was embodied in the report of the boxing committee adopted last night by the A. A. U. The report apparently will make it impossible for any club or individual to receive a sanction to hold an amateur boxing show when the interest of the club or individual is shown to be commercial.

This action was in accordance with the policy announced by Avery Brundage, president of the A. A. U., when the boxing problem first gained public attention. At that time Mr. Brundage welcomed the coöperation of any recognized agency in an effort to clean up amateur boxing.

The action, indicating that many of the 2,500 boxers now holding cards issued by the registration committee of the A. A. U. will be declared professional, was taken by adoption of this paragraph of the committee report:

"All boxers, clubs and promoters, who have been proved to have received or paid moneys contrary to A. A. U. rules will be suspended as soon as a transcript of the evidence before the state commission can be secured."

Brundage Reëlected.

Mr. Brundage, who is national president of the A. A. U and head of the American Olympic association, was reelected president of the Central A. A. U. Other officers elected were first vice president, George Donoghue; second vice president, Owen Van Camp; third vice president, M. Price Jones; fourth vice president, Herbert Nordegg; secretary-treasurer, Fred Steers.

Roy Davis was named chairman of the registration committee and Ed Parkes, Racine Thompson, Lyle Foster and George Donoghue were named members.

Tony Lazzeri Strikes Out to Achieve Fame

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 19.—Notwithstanding all the gratifying feats that Tony Lazzeri has performed in the six years that he has worn the proud regalia of the New York Yankees, he will be most readily remembered for something that he did not do under spectacular and dramatic circumstances in the world series of 1926, the year of his debut.

TONY LAZZERI.

That was the time that old Pete Alexander, the favorite horrible example of the National league, meandered into the box late in the final game, hiccuping gently, to relieve Jess Haines of the St. Louis Cardinals, who had filled the bases with the score 3 to 2 in favor of his side. I believe Haines had raised a blister on one of his pitching fingers, but I have no memory for clinical data, and it may have been Bill Hallahan who raised the blister in the series of 1931. Anyhow, I am positive that Haines filled the bases and turned the mess over to Alex, who had won his own game the day before.

It stands in black and white in the book. You don't suppose a body gets up these things strictly by ear, do you? No, you use a book, and if the book doesn't give an exact date you say "about that time," or "it was along in there," or "during this period," which is what you call strutting your footwork to get out of corners. Some of our chaps keep records and statistics of their own, which is a good plan if you can do it, but every time I try it the stuff gets mixed up with old press agent matter from the Garden and Jack Curley and Singletooth Yeager, and you can spend a whole day looking for a mislaid sheet of copy paper to find out that something happened on Aug. 28, 1922, and never find it out, even so. And even if you do, what?

Why, once when I had to write a book on the life of Babe Ruth and chased him all over the middle west to corner him for some information the only time he could spare from his social hopping around was 15 minutes, so practically the entire 55,000 words was written out of the books. And do you know what he got out of it? About two thousand dollars; but he wouldn't hold still long enough to tell a fellow whether he ever owned a dog. Then the phone rang and he sugared up his voice and said, "O, hello, baby," and turned to me and said, "Well, I've got to see a man

What's Fame to Warneke? But Wait, Lon

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

There should be quite a story coming out of Mount Ida, Ark., when Lon Warneke comes marching home next month.

LON WARNEKE.

When the present Cub phenom went away late last winter for the training camp the skeptical villagers casually mentioned only that: "The Warneke boy who lives a piece down the road is gone again."

They won't be treating his return as lightly as they did his departure. They'll be down to the depot to greet him, provided there is a depot, to assure him they always knew he could do it. They'll get the volunteer fire department to pull him up the main stem and the town band probably will pour forth a few nondescript notes to welcome the man who let the world know there really is a Mount Ida, Ark.

And just about the time the celebration is at its height the now famous Mr. Warneke, totally unimpressed by the turnout, will be asking somebody, "How's those 200 head of feeders I had running loose on the place when I left? I hope they've had enough to eat all summer."

Chawing Is His Pet Vice.

Mr. Warneke is that way about fame. He came up a farmer's son and a possible pitcher. He'll go back a pitcher, but still a farmer's son. The cut of his clothes probably will show the natives that the big city has influenced him at least in that respect. He's likely to be smoking a large cigar as a sign of affluence when he arrives, and he might even make his entry in an auto he didn't own when he left town. Then again he might be chewing a large wad of tobacco which is his pet vice. He might even tear off a few swear words if they don't get him out to that farm quickly enough. But the big league can't be charged with that. He swore fluently before the big league ever heard of him.

The Cub wizard had no excuse for becoming a ball player, except that he wanted to. That was enough. He was just a farm kid who played ball when there was nothing else to do. When the farm life irked him, he decided he'd see the world by visiting a sister in Houston, Tex. He got himself a job with a telegraph company and was at it only a short time before he began to figure that baseball players led easy lives, made fairly good money and that he might as well get some of it. He had no record to recommend him to a club owner, but that, to him, was just an inconsequential detail.

Thought He Was a First Baseman.

He walked in on the president of the Houston, Tex., league club in the spring of 1928 and assured the latter he was a ball player. The president thought otherwise, but the kid didn't mind that. He said he'd stick around and pay his own expenses. When he showed up for work he said he was a first baseman. He'd played there on the Mount Ida High school team and was sure he knew where he belonged.

The manager had a better idea. He saw Warneke throw and advised him that with an arm like that he should take up pitching. His pitching didn't create any excitement, so he drifted along and made his third stop that year in Alexandria, La., of the Cotton States league. And that's where a Cub scout found him and bought him for delivery in the spring of 1930.

Nothing happened to excite Warneke or his folks in 1930, most of which he spent in the International league. The season of '31, all of which he served as a Cub, was equally uneventful. But 1932 was different. The kid who knew he was a ball player proved it. And the men who have tried to hit his speed, curve and screw ball all season will attest that Warneke was right.

Grove's 25th Victory Is 100th Defeat for Hose.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

There were no extra flourishes attached to the season's farewell showing of the White Sox at Comiskey park yesterday. They said good-by in keeping with their percentage status. They suffered their 100th defeat of the season and gave the Athletics a better hold on the second place world series money. The score was 9 to 6.

Connie Mack turned the pitching job over to Robert Moses Grove after only two days of rest. Grove welcomed the opportunity to register his 25th triumph of the season against 10 defeats.

Gallivan Easy for A's.

Phil Gallivan's pitching life was in peril the moment he started his day's work. He walked Bishop, the lead-off man, and Haas bounced into a forceout. Mr. Cochrane then boosted a home run into the right field seats. Simmons drew a pass and took third on Foxx's double to left. Bill Chamberlain put a stop to the trouble after Simmons had scored the third run on McNair's infield out.

Grove singled in the second and scored when Seeds permitted Bishop's single to roll to the fence. Bishop sprinted to third on the error and registered on Haas' fly.

Simmons, the first man to face Red Faber in the third, ripped off a triple to right center and scored on an infield out. The Sox also came up with a run in their half. Norman singled to center and Hayes forced him. Hayes went to third on Seeds' single and scored while the Macks were retiring Seeds on Sullivan's roller to McNair.

Kress Kind to Guests.

Kress' throw on Grove's bounder in the fourth pulled Sullivan off the bag with one out. The big southpaw counted on Bishop's two bagger to center. Cochrane also doubled a bit later and this scored Bishop to give the faded champions a lead of 8 to 1.

The Sox bit four runs off the enemy lead in the fifth. Norman started the attack with a clean single and the next two men flied to Miller. Sullivan singled to center. Swanson's fly close to the line in right jumped off Miller's glove for a double, Norman and Sullivan scoring. Simmons made a dive for Appling's fly to right, but it got away for a double, Swanson counting. Kress' fly fell between an assemblage of Mackmen in right field for a single, on which Appling counted the fourth run.

Keeping the Patrons Awake.

Dykes singled to left in the eighth and Grove sacrificed. Norman speared Bishop's deep fly but Haas lined a single into center and Dykes ran home. The Sox also made a contribution in their half. Berry doubled and scored on a single by Fothergill, who batted for Faber.

Eight of the Sox members were spared the six days of work remaining before the campaign closes next Sunday. Jones, Lyons, Hodapp, Rothrock, Fothergill, Faber, Blue, and Selph started for their respective homes last night.

CASH, VETERAN PITCHER WOULD BRING 2 STARS

Clubs Discuss Deal for Month.

Ted Lyons, the pride of Vinton, La., and the most prominent alumnus of Baylor university, Waco, Tex., may have slipped out of a White Sox uniform for the last time yesterday.

The star right hander, who jumped from a college campus to the American league and who never has served with any club other than the Sox, is slated, according to rumor, to go in a deal which club officials hope to make as one step in reëstablishing the south side team as a first division contender.

Would Get Simmons and Pitcher.

The deal, supposed to have been under discussion for more than a month, involves present members of the Philadelphia Athletics. Lyons, along with cash and possibly other players, would go to the Macks in trade for Outfielder Al Simmons and either Pitchers Robert [Lefty] Grove or George Earnshaw.

Connie Mack, Athletics' manager, although denying that he has definitely decided to break up his team, is reported to believe that new faces would revive baseball interest in Philadelphia. Although a pennant contender this year, the Athletics have failed to draw satisfactory crowds. Another item under consideration by Mack is the Simmons' contract, which has another year to run at approximately $30,000.

Yanks Also Seek Simmons.

Mack, in the event of a break up such as took place in 1914 after his great team had been defeated in four straight games by the Braves, would rebuild around Foxx, Freitas, McNair, and Lyons. The Athletics' manager has a pair of good outfielders coming up from his minor league farms next spring.

The Yanks also are reported in the market for Simmons and are ready to exceed a White Sox bid in money. The Yanks, however, have no man of Lyons' class to give in return.

RED SOX BEAT TIGERS

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Smead Jolley donned the catcher's mask, mitt and chest protector for the Boston Red Sox today and figured prominently in a 5 to 4 victory over the Tigers. Jolley hit a home run with two men on base in the second inning. The victory was the Red Sox' sixth out of 22 games with the Tigers this season. The game was the final between the two teams. Score:

DOCTORS ORDER REST CURE FOR BABE DIDRIKSON

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Mildred Babe Didrikson, who won the woman's national track meet single handed and starred at the Olympics, has been ordered to take a rest cure.

Physicians told her today she was in danger of suffering a nervous breakdown or developing an athletic heart if she continued in competition. They said she would be as good as new after a few weeks of quiet.

Mildred, accordingly, went home and began to rest. She will not be allowed to have visitors, answer telephone calls, or take any strenuous exercise for two weeks.

Al Brown Knocks Out Pladner in First Round

Columbus A. A. Club Whips Cincinnati, 7-3

BY FRENCH LANE.

The 3 year old Marmion, from C. B. Shaffer's Coldstream stud stable, scored a brilliant victory in the Bunker Hill purse at Lincoln Fields yesterday.

Dashing up from behind, he rallied so stoutly in the stretch that he overtook the leaders and pulled out into a lead of a length and a half over the fleet Kentucky filly, Betty Derr. The favorite, Brown Wisdom, plodded home third, always beaten by the two leaders.

Marmion had many backers. He always does. Those who wager their money on him must get the jitters as they wait for him to score a victory.

Wins Three of 15 Starts.

Marmion was making his fifteenth start of the year and when his nose was showing in front at the finish it marked only the third victory he has scored. That's a very ordinary record for a colt, with his stylish breeding, which was expected to win a Derby and a Preakness early last spring.

Marmion is a son of Pot au Feu Bourse. He's bred in the purple. He's a great big upstanding athletic type of fellow. He can run fast when he turns on the speed, but he doesn't seem to be in the mood to do much running very often.

Brown Wisdom was first away from the barrier and then Betty Derr flew into the lead. Don Leon was right with them and so was Sweep All as they charged down the back stretch.

Moran Saves Ground.

Willie Moran, a far western jockey, was in the saddle of Marmion and he saved ground by skimming the rail around the turn. Then he took Marmion to the outside for his victorious drive. There was nothing to it but Marmion from there on home. He made Brown Wisdom look like a selling plater and in a few more strides had Betty Derr completely whipped. Marmion ran the seven furlongs in 1:24 1-5 after the half had been run in :45 2-5 and the three-quarters in 1:11 1-5.

With Brown Wisdom ruling as a 6 to 5 choice in the betting, Marmion rewarded his backers at nearly 5 to 2. He had turned in a spectacular race at Lincoln Fields just a few days ago, when he was beaten only by two noses by Merrily On and Prince Hotspur.

Jockey Monte Parke threatened to become a hero during the afternoon. He piloted Scream and Portcodine to victory and both were outsiders. Then he crawled into the saddle on Anita Ormont. Most of the folks at the track backed Anita. But Parke demonstrated he knows nothing about riding a horse except to get 'em out in front and stay there as long as they can.

Lucky to Land Third.

He showed little judgment of pace when he raced Anita Ormont up from the rear into first place wheeling out of the clubhouse turn. He rushed Anita Ormont along so fast he took everything out of her and she was lucky to be third back of Flying and Dawn Mist.

Flying was the favorite and showed a fine effort. This daughter of Star Master-Falconry, which races for Albert Sabath of Chicago, gave good evidence that she can run in any sort of going. Most folks had her pegged good only in the mud.

MOTOR TROUBLE HALTS ATTEMPT ON BOAT RECORD

Algonac, Mich., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Motor trouble on the Miss America X, today forced Gar Wood, Detroit, Mich., speed boat driver to postpone his attempt for a world's record until tomorrow. Before the giant motors broke down, Wood had sped down the St. Clair river at the rate of 126.09 miles an hour. Wood is attempting to shatter the record of 119.75 miles an hour, held by Kaye Don of England.

SMITTY—WHERE THERE'S SMOKE THERE'S FIRE

Favorites Win; Daily Double Pays $10.38

Two heavily backed favorites, Sally Irene and Hueu, captured the daily double at Lincoln Fields yesterday. Sally Irene was at 3 to 2 in the betting, Hueu was at 1 to 3.

Daily double sharpshooters can't lay up money when horses at those prices win. Betters collected only $10.38 for each investment yesterday. The daily double pool was large, but nearly everybody at the race track had a ticket on the two winners.

Chicagoans returning from the Futurity at Belmont Park say Ladysman was much the best of the field. They blame Jockey Sonny Workman, who rode C. V. Whitney's Caterwaul, for fouling Ladysman out of the victory.

Reports were also brought from New York that the attendance at Lincoln Fields is just about double that at Belmont Park during the autumn racing. In New York the admission price is $3.85. At Lincoln Fields it is $1.

GALLANT SIR WINS

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Gallant Sir made a successful eastern debut today as Havre de Grace opened 60 days of fall racing in Maryland with the first of two charity programs.

The three year old son of Sir Galahad III. paraded to the post the odds on choice in the Old Post Road purse at a mile and 70 yards and marched home like a real favorite. He finished a half length in front of Canron, an outsider, with Clotho two lengths back in third position.

A crowd of 10,000 welcomed the return of the thoroughbreds to Maryland, paying approximately $20,000 into the unemployed relief fund.

HALCYON WINS AT AQUEDUCT

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—The Bay Shore handicap, which featured the opening of the fall meeting at Aqueduct today, proved a contest of more interest than three horse races usually present. The winner was C. V. Whitney's Halcyon, which followed the pace to the eighth post, then took the lead and sprinted to a three length victory. The Wheatley stable's Dark Secret was second. His running mate, the Belair stud's Pardee, played little part in the race.

FINN, DE PAUL END, INJURED IN SCRIMMAGE

De Paul university's football camp reported its first serious casualty of the season yesterday when Dick Finn, end, suffered an injured hand during scrimmage. Finn was a letterman, being groomed to take the position of Babe Roche, star end last year. Hence his absence may be felt Friday night when the Blue Demons open the season against St. Viator at Loyola stadium.

Coach Ben Connor indicated last night that Phil Krause, brother of Ed, the Notre Dame tackle, probably will be used in Finn's place.

Pennant Sure if Cubs Beat Pirates Today

fighting heart makes him pretend. He has not been himself in recent appearances and it is said that Burleigh probably won't get a start in the world series, whereas he had been virtually selected to start the second game, according to reports circulated three weeks ago.

Whether or not Bush makes good his promises to clinch the pennant in the first game this afternoon, Bud Tinning will work the second game.

May Use Second String.

If Bush fails to clinch things in the first game Bud will be supported by the first string lineup. If Bush wins, Tinning probably will have among his associates Zack Taylor, who will catch; Marvin Gudat, who will play first base; Lance Richbourg, who will play rightfield; Frank Demaree, who will play left field; and Stanley Hack, who will play third base.

Johnny Moore will continue in center field, Jurges still will be subbing for Koenig [and what a substitute he was in that 15 inning affair in Cincinnati Sunday!], and Bill Herman will stay at second. Bill really needs a rest, but wants to stay in because he hasn't missed an inning since he joined the Cubs. His record to date includes 25 games at the close of last season and 148 games this year.

Now for Some Gloom.

As every fan knows, the Cubs have to win only one game from the Pirates to clinch the pennant. In the event the Pirates take four straight from the Cubs—and you know they took seven straight from the Cubs and eight out of nine in one span—then the Cubs' victory requirements will jump up to two games. In other words, the Cubs will have to win both of their remaining games from the Cincinnati Reds, to insure themselves against the possibility of the Pirates winning four games from the Cardinals to close the season.

The ticket sale is going along apace, with demands for the $6.60 box seats exceeding the demand for the $5.50 grandstand seats. The demand for reservations for today's festival, however, occupied a great part of the time of the boys and girls in the counting room. A capacity crowd is expected at today's games.

Many political and social clubs are planning to whoop things up in the event the pennant is grabbed. Marching clubs from all sections of the city are fretting to get into formation and politicians have expressed their intention to corral the players and cart them to the city hall to be congratulated by Mayor Cermak in a ceremony tentatively arranged for 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Frankie Petrolle Defeats Loayza; Verdict Unpopular

Holyoke, Mass., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Frankie Petrolle, 144, of Schenectady, N. Y., won a 10 round decision over Stanley Loayza, 143½, of Chile, tonight. Petrolle knocked down Loayza for a count of nine in the seventh, but the Chilean rallied in the ninth. The decision was not popular.

THE "DAILY DOUBLE."

THE so-called "daily double" has been the most popular innovation of the local turf season. At first regarded as a spur to speculation at winter tracks or tracks of minor pretensions, it proved so attractive to the public that it became a member of polite wagering society and now appears to be a fixture.

In substance, the "daily double" is an effort on the part of a bettor to pick the winner of both the second and third races any one day on a single $2 ticket. Now, as most of you know, it's hard enough to pick one race, let alone two. Therefore, to those fortunate enough to pick two the reward is correspondingly greater. If those two happen to be long shots the return for each $2 ticket may run into thousands of dollars.

For the "daily double" a separate mutuel pool is formed. All payments for tickets to this pool go into one pot. The payoff is to holders of tickets who have named both winners. If either horse named by a bettor to win fails to do so the ticket is worthless. The amount of payment is determined by the number of winning combinations. There are several minor details to be explained later.

This "daily double" pool at Lincoln Fields has been running from $16,000 to $27,000 a day. The number of tickets sold has averaged nearly one to each spectator, which attests its popularity. If the pool is $20,000, for instance, and 20 winning combinations are sold, the payoff, less the track "take" of 6½ per cent, would be $1,000 per ticket.

On one day a long shot won the second race. In the third race was another long shot. Only one ticket had been sold on this combination. No wonder a lady ticket holder was pulling for the second long shot and a pool of $15,000 for $2, but the second long shot ran "nowhere."

It is known that many persons attend the race tracks with the "daily double" as their primary object. Subscriptions are made up in various cigar stores or business places, with various persons contributing, and one member is sent to the track to place the wager or wagers.

Now, race tracks, of course, meet competition from hand books in all racing centers. Against the "daily double" the ordinary hand book cannot compete. No bookie cares to take a bet which might cost him $1,000 or more for only $2. The "daily double," in theory, is a parlay. Most hand books impose a limit of 50 to 1—some limits are as low as 20 to 1—on parlays. That is, no matter what a parlay actually should pay, the bettor gets only 50 to 1 for his money.

A parlay, as the turfwise know, is a wager on one horse, with the original wager and all winnings if the horse wins to go on the second horse, or even a third or fourth horse. The amount won might become stupendous, hence the hand book limit.

There's another thing about the "daily double" which commends it to sharpshooters hoping to get much for little. Tendency, if one wins a bet, is to "pinch" some of the proceeds, instead of betting it all back. That naturally is good financial sense, if there is any good financial sense in betting on races. In the "double," of course, that "pinching" is impossible, for the bet, once made, stays made.

There are two minor features of "daily doubles." It is not possible to play the "field" or an "entry." Only one horse in each race may be named—unless extra tickets are bought. Furthermore, the bet is what is known in betting as "play or pay." That is, if your horse won the second race and your horse in the third race was injured going to the post or excused by the steward.. for any reason, your ticket would be without value. No advantage would accrue to the track, but the money would just stay in the pool. This remote possibility has not happened yet.

The "daily double" is the same process on the part of the bettor as when tickets were sold in the old "combination books," except that in those combinations definite odds were quoted against the combination, while the "double" payoff is determined by the number of tickets sold. It is the difference between bookmaking and pari-mutuel speculation. Also in the old "combination books" odds would be quoted on one or more horses to place, if the bettor so desired. Under the "double" plan horses may be named only to win.

Col. Winn of Lincoln Fields says he will take the "daily double" back to the Latonia fall meeting, where it was tried more than twenty years ago, when pari-mutuel betting first was legalized. At that time it was popular only with horsemen. For some reason it did not go over with the public which so avidly embraces it now. As a result the pools seldom averaged more than $1,000 and the idea was dropped.

Baseball Injury Fatal to Concordia Student

about buying some property, but you just write it up yourself, the way you boys do."

So I don't mind your knowing that I go to the book for these pieces. You want to come in some time and see our plant.

Lazzeri was the next hitter when the bases filled up on Haines this time in the '26 series, and Manager Rogers Hornsby took him out and signaled to the bullpen for Alex, who was simmering in the sun out there, never expecting to be called on for anything, especially in view of his brannigan of the night before. One pitcher hopped up off the bench and pointed to his chest with a "Who? Me?" gesture, and Hornsby waved back, "No; not you; him."

"Him?" The pitcher pointed to old Alex, snoozing there. "You mean him, after last night?"

So Alex came dragging himself across the yard, taking a lot of time about it, and like to shake his uniform clear over the roof with the jitters, and faced this kid, Lazzeri, and struck him out, with the score 3 and 2 against the Yanks and the bases full.

That winter, in the baseball writers' annual biscuit throw and orgy, the quartet had a waggish song about the incident that went: "Does your mother know you're out, Lazzeri?"

Miller Huggins brought Lazzeri in from Salt Lake of the Coast league in 1926, and I remember him down in the training camp in St. Petersburg that spring, looking very snappy and intelligent but a little confused by the go-as-you-please tempo of the training exercises. The old Yanks were being made over in spots, and second base was one of those spots, but Babe Ruth was sore and surly at Huggins and the morale was very bad and the discipline worse. But Lazzeri hadn't come up to take baseball lessons, anyway. He was a qualified workman, and as soon as they showed him where second base was he went out there and took it over, playing throughout the season.

There were some efforts made to color him up with quaintness because we like quaint characters to write pieces about in our business, but Tony wasn't at all quaint, so beyond the nickname of "Poosh 'Em Up Tony" he has remained throughout his career just a real good ball player, of good behavior and repute. Although he has been a professional athlete for a dozen years, his health is not always good, and last winter during the trading season there was some talk of letting him go to Washington.

The Yankees were counting on a new fellow named Saltzgaver, from St. Paul, but there was no deal on Lazzeri, so they kept him, and a good thing for them they did, too. Saltzgaver wasn't good enough and Lazzeri enjoyed a big revival all season.

He is a long hitter and, notwithstanding that one memorable failure against Alex in the world series of his first year up, has generally been a hard man in the pinches. This will be his fourth world series, and one of the reasons for his temporary decline in 1931 was that he was sorrowing over the investments that he made with his money from the three previous series and his routine savings.

Here Are Formations in Notre Dame, Warner Systems

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The eleven players on a football team are designated by name according to their positions. These names are more or less confusing, since in this modern era of the game, players may lineup in one position on offense, and in another on defense.

More and more, with the shifting of positions in the back field, the appellations of left half back, right half back, quarter back and full back, have come to mean nothing. It would be more accurate to call the backs blocking backs, etc. This also is confusing for on different plays assignments are changed. On many teams the quarter back, time honored field general, does not direct the team. Neither does he always play down field waiting for a kick or as a final defender of the goal line.

Seven Man Line Standard.

This is a standard seven man line, with full back and half backs forming additional protection for runs and plunges and ready also to protect on forward passes. The quarter back, or the man in that position, constitutes additional protection on passes and is the final guard on runs in addition to handling kicks. He is known as the safety man.

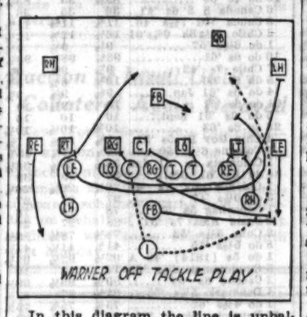
There are many variations of defensive formations and a team will assume as many as is deemed necessary to meet the attack as indicated by the offense.

If any one position can be singled out as all important in the line, it is that of tackle. Fundamental plays are aimed at the tackles, either inside of them or outside of them. A team which can not gain on these plays seldom can win consistently.

Tackle Play Fundamental.

Notre Dame's system of shifting backs banks on an off tackle play. It is a "power" play. With the Notre Dame idea of speed, it sends the ball quickly to the line of scrimmage. The off tackle play in the Warner system also is a power play, either with a single wing back or double wing back formation.

The diagram which follows produces the off tackle play of the Warner double wing back system which has been used by Northwestern, Ohio State and Wisconsin in recent years.



WARNER OFF TACKLE PLAY

Here's How Its Done.

The right end and the right half back charge to turn in the defensive left tackle or to force him back. The right guard comes out of the line at the snap of the ball and with the assistance of the full back blocks, and turns the defensive left end out of the path of the ball carrier No. 1. These are essential assignments since these men open the hole for the ball carrier.

In the unbalanced line the tackles play together. One checks the defensive left guard; the other blocks the defensive center. The offensive center is responsible for the defensive right guard. The other wing back [left half] first checks the right tackle from coming through and tackling the runner from behind. This is not a complete block and the wing back continues down field to get in front of the ball carrier.

Cramer, Ohio Quarter, Goes to Hospital

Columbus, O., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Carl Cramer, Ohio State's star quarter back, was taken to the Ohio State university hospital today for treatment.

Physicians treating his injured knee desired to keep Cramer quiet for the remainder of the week to insure against further injury and possible loss to the team for the season. Cramer hurt the same knee while in high school and was forced to spend a whole season on the bench.

The Buckeyes went through another scrimmage this afternoon. The battle for full back between Wetzel Vuchinich and Manjula has developed into a free for all. The tackle positions are also wide open with the leading candidates Rosequist, Monahan, Johnson, Yards and Hoskins.

MOSS BOOTS 'EM OUT.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—Paul Moss, veteran end, was kicking for good distances this afternoon in a punting scrimmage that featured the Purdue football practice. Moss averaged better than 40 yards a kick from the scrimmage line last season and was unusually accurate in his placements.

Alex Yunevich, star Purdue full back for the last three seasons, was signed as assistant football coach today. Yunevich will work with both varsity and freshman staffs.

CHANGES AT INDIANA.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 19.—[Special.]—The battle for positions in the Indiana line was continued today. Red Stevenson, letterman from last year, and Bruno Bercuski, promising sophomore, were shifted from tackle to end. At present Bernard Dickey and Fitz Lyons, Negro giant, are the ranking ends with Martich in third position. Others are Tiernan, Fred Johnson, Redding, Howorth, and Paul Jones.

BEARDSLEE WINS CADDY MASTER'S TITLE WITH 160

Beardslee of Lake Shore to shoot a 36 hole score of 160 to win the annual caddy masters' championship of the Chicago District Golf association at the Glen Oak Country club yesterday. Beardslee beat Spec Hammond of the home club by a single stroke, the latter finishing with 78—83—161. S. S. Brozek of Westmoor was third with 81—85—166.

Among the other leading scorers were Art Johnson, Illinois, 167; T. Notarnicola, Lincolnshire, 167; H. Schumacher, Itasca, 167; Ed Kruse, Mission Hills, 170; Gene Ciancanelli, Lincolnshire, 172; T. H. Dunski, Killdeer, 173; Harry Erickson, Itasca, 185, and J. J. Peabody, Nordic, 192.

CLEVER MR. DUBB SINKS 100 YARD APPROACH SHOT

Astounds Pros, as Well as Elmer, Himself.

BY ELMER DUBB.

Frank MacDonald, manager of the Beverly Shores Golf club, and Floyd Shell, the professional, said it was over 100 yards when they came out of their coma. I'd say it was a hundred, and be willing to call it half that. I mean that approach shot I holed out the other day on that fourth green of the picturesque Beverly Shores course five miles west of Michigan City, Ind. On the level, if Jones or Hagen had hit a hundred balls in a row from the same spot I don't think they could have duplicated it.

No, I did not break the course record of 69, which is held jointly by the old professor himself Harry Cooper of Glen Oak, and Horton Smith of Oak Park, both of them shooting that score in the last two Tri-State open tournaments, which have become regular fixtures at Beverly Shores. No, I wound up with 115, one of the best cards I've had since Cooper started giving me lessons back in May. It was the seventeenth time I ever had played golf, but that approach shot on the fourth, I'm afraid, made me a victim forever. It gave me a par four, enabled me to shoot a 59 for the first nine, and encouraged the making of a 56 out of the final half of the round.

You Must Pardon Elmer.

My public will have to excuse me if I seem to make a lot of that shot to the fourth, but I am not yet in the habit of making par fours on every round, especially with a shot that you will not find in many of the big shows.

This fourth fairway is a straight one with such little difficulty attached to it that MacDonald is thinking of moving the green into the forestry to the right to make it a trifle tougher. The main obstacles are the shallow green and the ditch about a hundred yards in front of it.

Anyway, I stand up on the fourth tee and look at the green leering at me, 350 yards away. Another six, I figure, if I'm lucky. The tee shot was anemic as usual, but somewhere near the middle, for a change. The second shot also was lacking in muscle, but still held to the center of the fairway, about half way to that ditch. My third sailed high in the air, and it looked as if it were going across. It bent in and back, suddenly, however and plop!—into some brambles at the end of the ditch.

It looked like an eight on the hole until MacDonald told me that this particular portion of the ditch was work under repair and that the ball could be lifted out without a penalty I did so eagerly, teed it up on the far shore of the ditch, and asked for a 7 iron. Everything must have been as Cooper had told me, for it went straight for the pin. I saw it was going to land for a short putt and had visions of a handsome five.

But it didn't land. It struck the green twelve feet short of the pin, bounced twice and then rolled in. MacDonald and Shell, who already had reached the green in two, swooned, the caddy beside me gasped and nearly fell into the ditch, and I stood rooted to the ground, afraid to believe it was anything but a dream. It was the closest I ever will come to a hole in one, and it was bit so right that Prof. Cooper ought to give Pupil Dubb at least B plus for this semester.

Beverly Shores is one of the youngest clubs in the central states, having been finished in the fall of 1929 by MacDonald and Charles E. Maddox, both of them experienced golf architects. When they started it the 160 acres on which it stands was one of the wildest sections of the dunes country. Now it is one of the most rugged and interesting layouts in the middle west, as the course record of 69 against par of 36—35—71 indicates.

The ditch which a golfer finds splitting the course at nearly every hole crosses the fairway twelve times, runs parallel to the twelfth and seventeenth and provides a unique system of fairway watering for the entire course.

RETZLAFF GETS STADIUM FIGHT WITH KENNEDY

The supporting card for the Max Baer-Tuffy Griffith heavyweight fight Monday in the Chicago Stadium was announced last night by Matchmaker Nate Lewis. Charley Retzlaff of Duluth has been substituted for the injured Izzy Gastanaga, against Les Kennedy in the semi-windup.

Among the newcomers on the card is Texas Moore, a young heavyweight who will face Jack Roper. They will go six rounds. Moore has been working at Trafton's gym and is the only man who has been able to stand up to King Levinsky and give the ex-fish peddler any kind of a workout.

Dazzo Meets Newcomer.

The other new boxer is Tony Pallazola, a 128-pounder from Detroit, who will tackle Paul Dazzo of Chicago in an eight round bout. A four-rounder between Solly Dukelsky and Bill Connell, Chicago 155 pounders, will open the show.

The Baer-Griffith battle and the duel between Retzlaff and Kennedy are scheduled for ten rounds each.

The program lost little through the change occasioned by Gastanaga's broken arm. Retzlaff has fought a number of times in Chicago and has won all of his local bouts on knockouts. In his most recent starts here he knocked out Les Marriner in one round and Paul Pantaleo in seven. He has won seven out of eight fights this year, five of them by knockouts. His only defeat was at the hands of Gastanaga, who won the first round in what is considered one of the outstanding upsets of the year.

Baer Seeks Speed.

Baer and Griffith will jump into the hardest portion of their training today. Max took yesterday off. At the Ashland arena Baer will face four sparring partners this afternoon. They are Kennedy, Pete Wistort, Jack Roberts and Tom Jones. The latter was added to Max's staff to provide speed, for in Griffith Baer faces one of the shiftiest in the business. Baer won't have the slow moving target before him that Schaaf turned out to be, when Max flattened him with only two seconds to go in the tenth round.

Four supporting bouts have been signed. Bud Langford is coupled with Johnny Baima for six rounds. In another six, Mickey O'Shea will tangle with Jack Ripp at 160. Leo Ranieri will meet Jimmy Lundy and Eddie Meyers boxes Kid Irish.

King Levinsky went to Omaha, Neb., last night to battle Angus Enyder there Thursday.

"Spring" Returns to Chicagoland as Asters Bloom

BY BOB BECKER.

Although this season of the year always has been lauded in the lyrics of the poets for its russet browns, flashing yellows and vivid reds, which appear in trees and shrubs, a walk or drive through the country this week will reveal plenty of evidence that late September is dominated by a color which seems to have been overlooked.

It's blue, a "spring" color. Because of hundreds of thousands of wild asters, which spread a mantle of cobalt over fields and meadows in Chicagoland, in some places almost putting the fading yellows of early goldenrod out of the picture, this particular part of our autumn season" quite properly can be called the aster season—a sort of "spring" that wedges into the fall before our Indian summer.

Motorists who have traveled through Chicagoland during the last few days have seen this blue march of the asters in Chicagoland one is not surprised that these "frost flowers" can drench the countryside with their varied tints, ranging from pale lilac and even white to the deepest, gayest blues and purples.

With the asters reaching the peak of their magnificence the outdoor fan now sees another phase of autumn which reveals an interesting contrast. We were conscious of it the other day when we hiked along the lake shore north of Chicago. In the oaks above us and in faded thickets of the ravines the warblers were singing off for the year.

These small birds, having taken on their fall traveling clothes, were passing through Chicagoland on their way to their winter quarters, far to the south. In May, when Chicagoland was bright with spring flowers, they were going northward. Now making their southern migration, they again look down on many gay flowers, which paradoxically have a spring blue color, although the season is autumn. The asters, a big family of them, are taking care of that. But their blues herald frost instead of the promise of a warmer season ahead.

With the shagbark hickory's leaves getting rusty, spotted and falling to the ground; with the squirrels dropping acorns like a bombing plane drops bombs on a battlefield; with thrushes scratching around in the dry leaves beneath shrubbery, and many other nature signs pointing to frosts and the end of the season's growth, the aster family offers the student of nature his last chance to study an interesting family of flowers.

The other day when we were hiking through the woods along Lake Michigan the heart leaved aster [cordifolius] dominated many parts of the woodland. Look for this handsome aster on your next country hike. Its flowers are very small, densely crowded, with lilac rays and yellow centers.

"WILT those stubborn WHISKERS!"

Bill Mennen

I DON'T care how stubborn a stubble you grow, I can wilt every whisker on your face. . . . I mean Mennen Shaving Cream can. Yes, I say "wilt", not "soften", because ordinary softening isn't enough. The one and only way to take all the fight out of your whiskers is to wilt it out.

Why does Mennen do what ordinary creams don't? Ask me another! The reason is that Mennen contains specially processed tri-stearin. That's the greatest whisker-wilter known—and our special process makes it do its work even with the horniest beard. Your blade zips through your wilted whiskers. Off they come. Clean and close. No pull. No yank. Blades last longer, too. Several more fine shaves from each edge. . . .

It's a neat trick—the way Mennen does it. Try it just once. You'll thank me for it.

Skin Health—For You!

You gain two ways by shaving with Mennen. You not only get better shaves, but you also get a Skin Health Treatment. How come? Here's the answer: the pores of your skin are dirt traps. They catch dust and grease deposits. Then skin troubles may start—pimples, blackheads, muddy skin. Mennen lather gets into the pores—deep in—and loosens the imbedded deposits. Then, when you rinse off the lather, you leave your face clean, fresh, healthy.

Speculative Rail Loans Lead Advance.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 19.—Bond prices were firm today. Absence of offerings was chiefly responsible for slight gains in United States government bonds, although these small gains were sufficient to carry four issues to new highs for the year. These new records were made in the high coupon issues which are selling above par. Low coupon issues sold off from their early highs.

Still under the leadership of railroad issues speculative bonds scored gains up to 3 points, while high grade carrier and utility liens reflected a continuation of quiet buying. This also was true of treasury issues. Foreign obligations on an average were higher but much less active than usual. Thinness of the market was the most notable feature.

Rail Bonds Rise.

The best improvement in rail bonds was shown by such issues as Baltimore and Ohio 4½s of 1960, St. Paul 5s, Rock Island convertible 4½s, Nickel Plate 6s, New York Central refunding 5s, and Missouri Pacific issues.

Activity in railroad issues was traced to Gov. Roosevelt's speech Saturday on government control. Traders were impressed by the candidate's avowed intention of having the government stand behind the railroads to prevent receiverships.

While the better class railroad and power issues moved within a narrow range, dealers found reason for optimism in their steadiness, called the result of institutional buying.

Argentines Up 3 Points.

The foreign list was brightened by strength in Argentine bonds, which rose up 3 points on Finance Minister Hueyo's declaration that the government is able to pay all of its debts and will not resort to moratoriums or the issue of scrip. The mark-up in Argentines was accomplished on the purchase of only a few bonds.

There has been a notable falling off in offerings of speculative bonds since the sharp break in the market early last week. In the high grade section, including treasury issues, the floating supply is small, dealers report.

Aviation Corp.

Thank you for your report on Ludlum Steel company. I appreciate it a great deal. Can you now do me the favor to give information on Aviation corporation?—P. H.

Aviation corporation was incorporated in March, 1929. It engages in all phases of the aviation industry and deals in securities of aviation companies. Its transport system, American Airways, Inc., operates more than 8,625 miles, serving 58 cities in 20 eastern, middle western and southern states. The company's policy has been one of consolidation. There were originally 31 separate corporations. On March 10, 1932, there were 26, only 14 of which were active.

Net loss for the first half of 1932 was $2,565,000. This was after loss of $1,389,000 on sale of securities and $238,000 loss on liquidation of surplus equipment. Loss for the first half of 1931 was $729,000. This included loss of $243,000 on sale of securities.

Loss for 1931 was $3,206,000. This was after a $2,023,000 loss on sale of securities and $115,000 loss on surplus equipment. Loss in 1930, after a $14,000 profit on sale of securities, was $4,074,000.

On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $11,682,000, and current liabilities were $569,000. Cash assets alone were more than $10,000,000. These included government and other marketable securities at market. Investments in securities of aviation companies, carried at market prices, were not listed with current assets.

Securities with a cost of $17,300,000 had a market value of $9,322,000. Profit and loss deficit was $9,353,000 and capital surplus was $13,836,000.

There are outstanding 2,647,358 shares of no par capital stock on which no dividend has yet been paid. There is no funded debt.

Mobile Gas.

Please give me a report on Mobile Gas 6s.—Miss M. B. L.

Mobile Gas company is controlled by Southern Cities Public Service company, part of the Central Illinois Public Service system. It supplies Mobile and three other communities with gas through 268.1 miles of mains.

Gross earnings in 1931 were $405,000, against $504,000 in 1930 and $550,000 in 1929. Only about one-third of charges were earned in 1931. In 1930 charges were barely earned before depreciation. In 1929 charges were earned 1.33 times, against 1.04 times in 1930.

On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $319,000 and current liabilities were $74,000.

The 6s, due 1956, are more of a speculation than an investment.

MAY CUT RAIL PAY 5 PCT. MORE INSTEAD OF 10

Halt Formal Notes; Parley Today.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 19.—In a sudden move for conciliation with labor, the railroad managements suspended notices for a 20 per cent wage reduction which they were to have served today on the unions. Instead, they will discuss with union officials tomorrow a proposal that the move be negotiated outside the provisions of the railway labor act. The meeting will be between the management committee headed by W. F. Thiehoff, general manager of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, and members of the Railway Labor Executives' association.

This action left open the possibility that instead of proceeding under the law for a 20 per cent reduction in wages, the two sides would negotiate for a voluntary reduction of possibly 15 per cent in the same manner that the present 10 per cent reduction was obtained at Chicago last January. The net change in that event would be 5 per cent below that now effective under the pact terminating on Feb. 1, 1933. The roads' proposal was for an additional cut of 10 per cent, to a level 20 per cent below the rates prevailing before the cut made as of last February.

Better Loading Figures Expected.

Preliminary reports of freight car loadings for the week ending last Saturday indicate the American Railway association's compilation, due at the end of this week, will show substantial improvement, even after making due allowance for the Labor holiday.

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé reported for the week total loadings of 25,597 revenue freight cars compared with 22,052 in the preceding week and 30,691 for the corresponding week last year.

Estimates of loadings of the New York Central lines indicate a larger movement of several important freight classifications. After making due allowance for Labor day, heavier loadings of coal and grain are looked for.

Hope to Cut Deficit.

Should traffic continue to gain at its present rate, New York Central executives will be able to revise downward their estimates of the deficit which will be incurred during the twelve months.

While reports for the week as a whole are not yet available, the Missouri Pacific railroad announced that on Friday last it had handled 3,699 revenue cars. This was a new record for the current year, the last previous peak having been made on Jan. 9 when 3,644 cars were loaded.

The upward trend noted in the United States also is in evidence in Canada. Heavy grain loadings in the western division for the week ending Sept. 10 offset decreases in the east, due to the holiday, and total traffic increased to 44,278 cars compared with 41,521 in the previous seven days.

Act to Stop Waste.

Dick T. Lawrence, chairman of the Trunk Line association and Traffic Executive association of the eastern territory, has been nominated without opposition to the chairmanship of the president's traffic committee.

This organization represents all roads east of the Mississippi and north of the Potomac. It was formed recently to halt destructive rate cutting and to advance the efficiency program which the railroads began last summer.

Mr. Lawrence has for many years been a traffic and rate expert for the eastern lines. The late Robert N. Collyer formerly was chairman of the three organizations.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 19.—The Reconstruction Finance corporation today lent to the Pennsylvania railroad two million dollars to be used in what was described as a direct attempt to bolster the road's employment situation through construction of new equipment.

It was the first railroad equipment loan to be granted by the federal loan agency since the banking and industrial conference called recently by President Hoover adopted a resolution to "increase employment on railroads and stimulate industry through expansion of maintenance of equipment and purchase of new equipment in cooperation with the interstate commerce commission and the Reconstruction Finance corporation."

The two million dollars it was announced will be used by the Pennsylvania to build 1,285 new freight cars

Explains Tax Handicap Now Curbing Rails

BY SCRUTATOR.

The tendency of industry to quit states which impose unduly severe taxes and hampering labor legislation was shown in this column recently. It was found that taxation was the chief factor in determining location of new plants or shifting of old ones.

However, this right of selection is denied to one of the greatest American industries, the railroads. The extent to which taxation affects the carriers was pointed out recently by F. E. Williamson, president of the New York Central. He said that since 1914 the railroad had paid $508,000,000 in taxes and only $366,000,000 in dividends. Thus, over a period of 17 years tax payments averaged $29,000,000 annually and dividends averaged $21,000,000.

Not Unusual Situation.

This situation of taxes exceeding dividends is not a product of the current depression. In only one year since 1924 has the New York Central paid out more in dividends than in taxes. That was in 1930, when dividends totaled about $40,000,000, and taxes were about $34,000,000. During the prosperous period of 1924 to 1929 taxes exceeded dividends by varying amounts ranging up to nearly $15,000,000. Taxes in 1931 exceeded dividends by about $12,000,000.

The railroads cannot do much about taxes but pay and protest, but their protests are even less effective than those of other industries, as pointed out in Poor's Analytical Service.

"Industrial companies of course pay taxes—large taxes," it is said. "But it is doubtful if many industrial companies have paid more in taxes than they have returned to their stockholders. Most industrial companies have a trump card that the railroads do not have; if local taxes become too high they can move. There can be no doubt that this veiled threat has stopped many tax increases.

Rails Must Stay.

"But the railroads cannot leave, they cannot give veiled threats to local tax-makers. They have no threat to veil. Yet often the city or state owes more to the railroad than to any industry which pays less burdensome taxes. However, the railroads do have one trump card—failure—and all that failure entails. It is impossible to foretell the future of the railroad industry but it is certain that the railroads cannot work out their salvation unless their shackles are at least partially removed. Heavy taxation is one of the shackles.

"The railroads admittedly form one of the country's most important industries. Although the government has been criticized because of its financial aid to the tottering railroads, the majority of the public probably would concede that this aid was justified.

Dependent on Roads.

"The public and manufacturers are dependent on railroads for transportation, notwithstanding buses, trucks and airplanes. The insurance companies hold a tremendous stake in the railroad industry—the banks do, too. Failure of the industry would affect seriously almost all insurance companies—the public would suffer again. Many towns and cities owe their very existence to the railroads.

"The industry is important, but today the railroad industry is in a very perilous position. In order to survive it needs every resource at its command, all its brain power and outside help besides."

Frigidaire Patents Upheld; Grigsby-Grunow Agt. Loses

Des Moines, Iowa, Sept. 19.—(AP)—Federal Judge Charles A. Dewey today upheld the validity of two patents owned by the Frigidaire corporation for an automatic temperature control in a suit against Jesse Moore, Des Moines agent for the Grigsby-Grunow company. Judge Dewey held that the Grigsby-Grunow devices "are the same, or the mechanical equivalent of the plaintiff's device."

UTILITY OBTAINS FEDERAL WRIT; HALTS KANSAS

3 Judges Will Hear Gas Rate Case.

Topeka, Kas., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Cities Service company interests, in Federal district court today challenged the validity of recent orders of the public service commission directing them to reduce their natural gas rates to consumers in nearly 100 cities in Kansas approximately 25 per cent.

Judge Orie L. Phillips of the Tenth United States Circuit court at Denver signed an order temporarily restraining the Kansas Public Service commission and Roland Boynton, state's attorney general, from enforcing the commission's rate reduction orders.

As made public here by Cities Service attorneys, the order also restrained the commission and Boynton from instituting suits, "the purpose of which is to intimidate and coerce" Cities Service Distributing companies into abiding by the regulatory body's recent orders or to take the conduct of their business out of the hands of their officers.

Have State Writs, Too.

Nine of the companies and one other not a party in the suits filed today in the federal court in Denver obtained in Shawnee District court here last Saturday an order temporarily restraining Boynton and Gov. Harry H. Woodring from filing receivership proceedings against them.

Gov. Woodring had directed Boynton to institute receivership actions against the companies, contending they had violated state corporation laws.

Judge Phillips set the federal court suits down for hearing here next Saturday before a three-judge court to be composed of himself, Judge George T. McDermott of the Circuit court and Judge Richard J. Hopkins of the United States District court.

Points at Issue.

At issue in the proceedings, in addition to the rate reduction orders, are the commission's findings that 30 cents a thousand cubic feet is a reasonable price to be paid by the distributing companies to an affiliated pipe line concern, Cities Service Gas company, and that a management charge of one and three-fourths per cent of their gross revenue, paid to the Henry L. Doherty company of New York, should be disallowed in arriving at a rate base. The City "gas rate" now averages 39.5 cents a thousand cubic feet.

The distributing companies, in their bills of complaint filed here, contended the commission was without authority to fix a rate for the pine line company.

Commissioner Makes Reply.

"This company [Cities Service company] has always stated it was willing to present its case to the courts and it is a strange thing that instead of presenting its case to the courts in Kansas it became necessary for them to go to Denver. It's just another example of their dilatory tactics and proves they are afraid to present the true facts to Kansas courts."

Willys to Make Truck Model for International Harvester

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Officials of the International Harvester company and the Willys-Overland company yesterday confirmed reports that the two concerns are negotiating for a united sales and manufacturing program.

The Harvester company is reported to be making final tests of a half ton six cylinder motor truck which will be manufactured to its specifications by the Willys-Overland company. The truck will be marketed through the Harvester organization under its own name.

George A. Ranney, vice president of International Harvester, said yesterday that engineers of the two firms have been working for several months on the development of a light truck to complete International's line.

Testing New Products.

Final road and block tests are now being made, he added, of experimental models developed by the engineers. Mr. Ranney said he expected that the companies shortly would reach a final decision and that the new product would be placed on the market as soon as the necessary tooling equipment could be provided.

L. A. Miller, president of the Willys company, said in New York that the negotiations with the Harvester company have been in progress for several months.

Since John N. Willys resumed active control of the automobile concern last July the company has been mentioned in several possible hookups. Mr. Willys sold out his common stock holdings three years ago to a Chicago group headed by Charles F. Gore, but retained a large interest in the preferred stock. This year the management of the company reverted to the preferred stockholders by virtue of the omission of four consecutive dividends on the issue.

Willys' tie-up with International Harvester is regarded as favorable. The latter holds a commanding position in the manufacture of industrial and motor trucks in addition to being the foremost producer of farm machinery.

Have 15,000 Dealers.

International's distributing system includes more than 15,000 independent dealers throughout the world in addition to 181 branch houses, motor truck and service stations in the United States and Canada. The company also has 130 principal distributing centers in foreign countries.

The Toledo plant of the Willys company is regarded as one of the best equipped in the industry. The company has practically exclusive rights to the Knight motor in America.

INSULL "ANGEL" IN MANY DEALS, ACCOUNTS SHOW

Individuals settling the tangled affairs of Samuel Insull have run across some interesting sidelights on the personal transactions of the former utility magnate.

"There are scores of people in Chicago who owe Insull money that will never be repaid," says one of them.

"Very frequently it happens that a borrower asked to liquidate a bank loan explains that to do so would be very embarrassing to him because the collateral securing the loan does not belong to him, but was lent to him by Samuel Insull.

"Insull had a lot of friends, and when he was in an expansive mood he gave or lent generously. Also, he had a lot of enemies. Because of his varied interests and his position he was the target of dozens of professional 'touchers.' In many instances this 'touching' amounted to little less than blackmail."

Liggett & Myers Prospects.

Reports in Wall street indicate a possibility that Liggett & Myers will show an improvement in earnings for this year in comparison with 1931. Last year net earnings were equal to $6.87 a share on the combined common and common B shares. The suggestion was made that earnings may exceed the all time record of $24,002,315, or $7.15 a share, made in 1930.

Publix-Dubinsky Motion Picture Merger Dissolved

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 19.—(AP)—Dissolution of the Publix-Dubinsky Brothers Theaters, Inc., and the return of motion picture houses operated by the Dubinsky Brothers was announced today. Twenty-two Missouri and Kansas theaters are affected. The Dubinsky Brothers acquired three more houses than they started with in St. Joseph.

Auction of Insull Utility Collateral Again Delayed

New York, Sept. 19.—[Special.]—The auction of collateral of the two finance companies, Insull Utility Investments and Corporation Securities company, scheduled to be held yesterday on behalf of New York banking creditors, was again postponed until next Monday.

CREDIT MEN SEE BUSINESS AS ON THE MEND

Demand Government Cost Be Cut.

Definite signs of an improvement in business conditions were cited in a report made yesterday by Henry H. Heimann, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men, at a conference of secretary-managers of the association at the Stevens hotel. Commodity price increases were taken as the most favorable sign. A demand that one billion dollars be lopped from the national budget and that local governmental expenditures be cut 20 per cent was made.

The report, which combines the investigations of the 100 delegates attending, each of whom represents a local credit association, follows:

"There are many indications that the worst is over and that the end of the business detour may be in sight.

"Not the least favorable of these are the rising commodity prices and the firming of our security markets in reflection of this increase in commodities and the better spirit that pervades the entire nation.

Cures for Depression.

"Corrective forces have been at work all through this depression period, but it is only in recent months they have been able definitely to assert themselves. For some time consumption has been exceeding production, a situation that cannot long continue without starting our productive machinery.

"There is one definite remaining barrier to a sound recovery. That is the matter of governmental cost. Although theoretically we balanced our national budget, in reality there is a deficit in the making of such size as to be alarming. The next session of congress will be immediately confronted with the need of a new type of revenue measure if even the semblance of a balanced budget is to be secured.

Must Cut Government Costs.

"The unfortunate part of it all is that the balancing of the budget by raising more revenue is not the answer to the problem of governmental costs. The solution lies in the reduction of appropriations. Not less than one billion dollars should be lopped off the national budget and a saving of between 20 per cent and 25 per cent should be effected in state and local governments.

"These are minimum requirements necessary to lay a sound foundation for a healthy business recovery.

New York, Sept. 19.—Little spirit was shown in trading, which reached only a small scale on the stock exchange today. Prices moved back and forth throughout most of the day. In the final hour fractional losses were general. U. S. Steel lost 2⅝ points, closing at 36¼, but that was an exception. Other leaders dropped less.

Sales for the day total only 1,200,000 shares whereas a week ago there was a turnover of more than 4 million shares. All efforts to inject life into the trading seemed to be half hearted and the response was worse.

There were flurries in some of the specialties such as J. I. Case, Sears

EARLY ADVANCE FAILS TO HOLD IN WHEAT PIT

Close Shows Slight Losses for Day.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Action of the wheat market Monday was discouraging to interests on either side. An early advance took place in the face of a decline in stocks. December touched 54c on the advance, or ¾c above the final figures of Saturday.

The bulge brought in selling against offers. Later when there was pressure from houses with eastern connections the active future dropped sharply and sold down to 52⅛c. The finish was at net losses of ¾@1c, with September, 49¼@49¼c; December, 52¼@52⅝c, and May, 57⅜@57½c.

Wet weather in the Canadian northwest which may delay threshing and the movement of wheat as well as the influence of relative strength in Liverpool were factors in the early trading. However, deliveries of wheat at interior points in the three Canadian provinces were reported at 8,637,000 bu, against 1,201,000 bu last year. This started a selling movement both here and at Winnipeg which did not culminate until the close. Continued weakness in stocks contributed to the bearish sentiment which developed on the way down.

Winnipeg Finishes Lower.

Hedging pressure was given as the main factor in causing the late weakness in the Canadian market and the latter was off ⅛@¼c for the day with December at 52¾c in Canadian funds. Minneapolis gained sharply on Chicago, being only ⅛@⅝c lower for the day, while Liverpool was ⅜@½c higher with December at 56⅞c. Strength in the latter was due in part to continued dry weather reports from northern Argentina.

Taken as a whole there was little in the routine developments in wheat that attracted much attention and the aggregate trade in futures was limited. A majority of local operators are inclined to follow the path of least resistance and await new incentives before taking a decided stand on either side.

Owing to the continued limited exports of domestic wheat the visible supply is steadily increasing, the gain the past week being 1,461,000 bu, making the total 184,324,000 bu compared with 233,132,000 bu last year. Bearish crop comment was received from Europe with the Spanish wheat crop placed at 181,000,000 bu compared with 139,000,000 bu harvested in 1931.

Corn at New Low.

Scattered liquidation developed in corn after a fractional advance early, and the December and May dropped 1c from the top and to a new low for the season, the December touching 28¾c on the break. Closing trades were unchanged to ½c lower, the former on September which was 27½c at the last while the December was 29c, and May 33⅞@ 34c. Early there had been some selling against offers and later buying against bids checked the break. The country offered corn to arrive on a limited scale and purchases of only 20,000 bu were reported by local handlers.

Oats were dull and somewhat unsettled. The September finished ⅛c higher at 15⅝c, while the distant futures were ⅛@¼c lower, December being 17⅝c, and May 20½c. Shipping demand was slow. All futures at the last were selling within a fraction of the lowest figures of the season. Rye followed wheat and closed ⅛@⅜c lower with September, 30⅛c; December, 33¼c, and May, 37⅝c.

Research Group Reports Improvement in August.

The "net aggregate improvement" in business conditions in August was slightly better than seasonal, according to the conclusion drawn by the Conference of Statisticians in Industry, a group which operates under the auspices of the National Industrial Conference board.

The report of the research group which was issued last night is based on the opinions of representatives of 10,000 industrial firms, according to the announcement.

The turn in events last month, as reflected in accomplishments in production and trade, still awaits an upturn in the heavy industries, the board believes. The board adds that the retention of business confidence and the general strengthening of commodity prices in recent weeks remain the best evidences of an improved underlying situation.

Conflict in Production.

"Productive activity on the whole showed conflicting movements during the month," the report continues. "Automobile output declined further, while building and engineering construction showed continuing increases, which were counter to the usual trend at this time of the year. The slackening in steel and iron output was contrary to seasonal expectations.

"Bituminous coal produced increased sharply during August, while anthracite shipments disclosed but a slight gain over the July total. Electric power generated in August increased seasonally and showed additional improvement in the first half of September. The cotton cloth, silk, rayon and woolen industries all showed unmistakable gains of more than a seasonal amount.

"The distribution of commodities by rail freight increased by 8%, an approximately seasonal amount in August as compared with July. Total car loadings, averaging 521,500 cars per week, were at a level 30% under loadings in August, 1931. Shipments of merchandise and miscellaneous commodities, averaging 353,300 cars per week, increased by 6%, which amount is also approximately seasonal. These loadings were at a level 29% under those of a year ago.

Store Sales Up 12%.

"Department store sales in August turned upward by 12% in dollar values over their level in July, following sharp contraction in the latter month. The gain for the month compares well with seasonal expectations, though they are still at a level approximately 25% under what they were a year ago.

"Commercial failures during the month, estimated by Dun's at 2,796, increased by 8% over July to a level 44% above that of a year ago. The movement was against seasonal expectations. Liabilities incurred, on the other hand, declined by 12% to a total of $77,031,200, which is 45% above the amount incurred in August, 1931.

"Preliminary estimates of employment in manufacturing industries in August show a marked gain over conditions in July, compensating for the low level in that month brought about by widespread suspensions of a temporary nature. Hourly and weekly earnings declined slightly."
